GIRL SCOUTS TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

RALEIGH — The celebration of Girl Scout Birthday week is held March 10-16 to commemorate the founding of the Girl Scout movement in America on March 12, 1912 in Savannah, Ga.

Mrs. Juliette Low, the founder, was born in Savannah but after her marriage went to England where she lived for many years. After the death of her husband she met Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement and became interested in the Scouting Movement at once. Mrs. Low started her first company of Guides in Scotland and gave a great deal of help and encouragement to the organization there.

Later when she returned to her home in Savannah, Ga., she was determined to have her own country share in the movement. She began her work by organizing a small group of eight girls.

From this small beginning has grown the mighty organization which today spreads all over America and gives opportunity for the girls of this country to enjoy all the benefits of Girl Scouting.

Girl Scouts have a chance to participate in more of the things in which they are interested and to have good times together. They learn through working and playing together how to be resourceful out-of-doors, helpful at home and useful in their communities.

The activities of Birthday Week will include:

Attendance of the Church of their choice on Sunday, March 10. Individual troop activities during the week. Rally Day at Chavis Park on Saturday, March 16th.
