Writers' Pluck

Sinclair Lewis, at an Algonquin luncheon, praised writers' pluck.

"A writer," he said, "will work two or three years on a book, make $40 out of it, and then plunge pluckily into two or three years' more work on another book.

WOMEN: watch your BOWELS

What should women do to keep their bowels moving freely? A doctor should know the answer. That is why pure Syrup Pepsin is so good for women. It just suits their delicate organism. It is the prescription of an old family doctor who has treated thousands of women patients, and who made a special study of bowel troubles.

It is fine for children, too. They love its taste. Let them have it every time their tongues are coated or their skin is sallow. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

When you've a sick headache, can't eat, are bilious or sluggish; and at the times when you are most apt to be constipated, take a little of this famous prescription (all drug stores keep it ready in big bottles), and you'll know why Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the favorite laxative of over a million women!

Weather Dictionary

Some people collect stamps and some collect snuff boxes, but C. F. Talman, librarian of the United States weather bureau, is collecting words relating to the weather. His encyclopedic weather dictionary, when completed, will contain about 15,000 weather terms, including slang, dialect, and scientific names for weather phenomena. It may be some years before the dictionary is finished, but meanwhile each definition is filed on a card and the cards are in daily use as references for the scientists of the weather bureau and others.

Plaque on Historic Spot

A bronze plaque marking the spot where gold was first discovered in Silver Bow county, Montana, recently was dedicated by the Butte chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The plaque, which was mounted on a six-ton granite bowlder, marked the spot where B. H. Barker and companions panned the first gold from Silver Bow creek in 1864. The spot is between Nissler and Silver Bow.

Large-Hearted Fish

A catfish weighing about two and one-half pounds swam up to the boat of Clifford King, of Del Rio, Texas, and nibbled bits of chicken tossed to it. After taking a few bites the fish swam back to the channel and returned in a few moments with four others. They partook of the refreshments, then swam off and returned in a short time with a whole school of fish about the same size.

Grain Went Wrong Way

James C. Garver remodeled a large building at Madison, Wis., to manufacture cattle feed. Friends were invited to witness its first production. Garver pushed a button. Wheels turned. Workmen poured great sacks of grain into hoppers, but nothing came out as the finished product. The building was searched from top to bottom without discovering where the grain was going. Garver went to the roof. There out of a ventilator spouted the mixture, and the wind scattered it afar. A workman had diverted the ground grain into the wrong pipe.

ORDER RETURNS TO ITS ANCIENT HOME

Knights Hospitallers Back in Jerusalem.

Rising like a stalwart sentinel from one of the hills of the Holy City stands a structure which turns back the flight of time more than 800 years.

It is the shelter which houses the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, founded about the year 1090 for the protection of pilgrims coming to the Holy land to visit the holy sepulchre. Driven from the city by the Saracens in 1187, they have returned after eight centuries of persecution and vicissitudes, and are once again carrying on here the service for which they were organized.

For the Knights Hospitallers, as they were then called, built in the Eleventh century an establishment known as the hospital of St. John, which besides being a shelter for pilgrims, provided accommodations for lodging and caring for the unfortunate and infirm.

Having as their motto, "Pro Fide, pro Utilitate Hominum," the Order of St. John of Jerusalem was one of the first of the various orders of chivalry and was in character partly religious and partly military.

When in 1187, the Saracens, under Saladin, conquered Jerusalem, the knights were turned out and fled to Acre which later, after Richard Coeur de Lion had conquered it, became known as St. Jean d'Acre. Here the knights established themselves and the city became the most important stronghold of Christianity in the East.

The knights remained for 100 years until they again came into conflict with the Saracens, and after suffering heavy losses, were turned out. This time they fled to Cyprus, where the king allowed them to found a convent and hospital—the chief house of the order in Cyprus and the castle of Kolossi which exists to this day.

Seeking a permanent home for the knights in 1310, the grand prior of the order succeeded in expelling the Saracens from the island of Rhodes, which then became their home. They remained in power until 1522, when Suleiman the Magnificent determined to oust the knights from their island, as they were a formidable obstacle to his scheme of conquering the West. There followed a period of seven years homeless wandering along the Mediterranean littoral, until in 1530 the Spanish emperor, Charles V, decreed that they might settle in Malta. Here they built the city of Valetta which became a city of knights.

A branch of the Knights Hospitallers had existed in England from the Eleventh century, having as their headquarters a priory in Clerkenwell, London. From all available accounts, this priory must have been a fine example of Thirteenth century architecture, but unfortunately the only remains of the original building today are to be seen in the crypt of the church of St. John in Clerkenwell.

When Henry VIII dissolved all religious orders, the knights were again disbanded. Queen Mary reassembled them, but only for one year, as on the succession to the throne of her sister Elizabeth the order was again dissolved.

Nothing further is heard of the knights in England until 1878, when Queen Victoria again reinstated the order by granting them a fresh charter.

ONLY Firestone can give you all these extra values. They are the result of patented construction features found in no other tires.

Gum-Dipping penetrates every cord and coats every fiber with liquid rubber. Gives longer flexing life to every cord and longer tire life.

Two Extra Cord Plies Under the Tread give stronger bond between tread and cord body — greater protection against punctures and blowouts.

Tough, thick tread made of non-oxidizing rubber gives better protection against skidding and longer non-skid wear.

Firestone save in buying, manufacturing and distribution to give these extra values at lowest prices.
