Harper's Bazar.

ILLUSTRATED.

HARPER'S BAZAR will continue to maintain its reputation as an unequalled family journal. Its art illustrations are of the highest order, its literature is of the choicest kind, and its Fashion and Household departments of the most practical and economical character. Its patterns-sheet supplements and fashion plates alone will save its readers ten times the cost of the subscription, and its articles on decorative art, social etiquette, house-keeping, cookery, etc., make it indispensable to every household. Its bright short stories and timely essays are among the best published; and not a line is admitted to its columns that could offend the most fastidious taste. Among the attractions of the new volume will be serial stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. Alexander, William Black and Thomas Hardy, and a series of papers on nursery management by Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick.

The Daily Review.

"Another Baby."

When the wild winter winds did blow,
The bitter winds of January,
That swept with sparkling swirls of snow
The wastes of western prairie,
A little child came to my arms
To bring me joy—or sorrow may be,
And so, beset by vague alarms
I sighed "Another baby!"

Another little waif to tend,
Another little helpless stranger,
To lead, to feed, to fold, to fend
From every wrong and danger.
To make one anxious, make one sad,
And fearful for each morrow maybe,
With heart half sorrowful, half glad,
I moaned, "Another Baby!"

And then I thought how near, how dear,
The little children God has sent us,
How full they made our home of cheer,
And how their presence did content us—
Hard if but one were laid away
This year or next, as might or maybe,
Our hearts would ache, would burn, would break,
And now—Another baby!

Ah, so I thought! and so I said
In ecstacy of peace and pleasure,
As bending down I kissed the head
Of my last, weakest treasure—
"Oh, dear child of my life and love,
Whate'er you are, whate'er you may be,
I take you from the Christ above,
And thank him for—Another baby!" —Kate M. Cleary.

"My son, when you go the city, get you a Bicycle, some tight pants, some tooth pick shoes, and a slender cane, but with all your gettings don't fail to get a bottle of Salvation Oil, for "pride (you know) goeth before a fall."

Necessitates Constant Singing.

Robert Chessman, of Etna, Penn., is suffering from an affection of the heart, complicated by the impairment of his bronchial tubes. The latter affection necessitates that he shall exercise his vocal powers constantly, whether sleeping or waking.

Visitors to the town, in passing the Chessman house late at night, are surprised to hear musical notes coming from the room of the sleeping singer. He has sung three or four different airs nightly for several years. Singing is the only specific which prevents him from suffering while asleep.—N. Y. Press.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Col. W. K. Nelson, of Brooklyn, came home one evening feeling a peculiar tightness in the chest. Before retiring he tried to draw a long breath but found it impossible. He suffered four days from pneumonia and the doctors gave him up. Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption saved him and he is well to day. Munds Bros., druggists

The Cow Would Not Be Harnessed.

One could scarcely expect a cow, not trained to the profession of arms, to conduct herself with great self-possession as one of an army. In the "Story of a Boy Company" is to be found an anecdote concerning one such new recruit—a cow, which, with several hens and a rooster, were attached to a Confederate battery. As soon as a halt was made for the night, the fowls were taken from the wagon, where they rode, the rooster was tied to a wheel spoke by the leg, and his family always remained near him.

As the war progressed, and the horses grew poor, the cow was brought into use as a beast of burden. She was saddled, dishes, frying pans and coffee pots were hung upon the saddle, and the docile creature moved away, quite oblivious of the clatter on her back. She was usually tied to a carison, but often she was turned loose, and thus followed the battery, like an enlisted soldier.

During the last winter of the war a large, raw boned, brindle cow strayed into camp, and although at first wild, she soon followed the example of the veteran and became an orderly recuit.

One day, when a sudden start had been ordered, it was thought advisable to utilize the new cow as a porter. A little fellow named Carlton was ordered to saddle the cows. The old one was quickly loaded with the Captain's baggage, recently killed chickens and other rations, and Carlton then proceeded to put the coffee pot, skillet and other cooking utensils upon the brindle. He was obliged to make her fast to a pinetree in order to load her rapidly.

Everything was ready, the battery was about to move, and the Captain directed Carlton to let go the ropes, and make the brindle follow in the wake of the old cow, who had just taken the line of march in good order. But no sooner had the ropes slipped from old brindle's horns than, with head, heels and tail high in the air, she sped down the hill, the sound of her bellowing mingling with the clatter of tin, and forming a bass and tenor seldom heard.

After freeing herself of every vestige of her pack she slowly returned, seeking her companion. The scattered load was collected and placed again upon her back, but as soon as she was free, with a bound and bellow, she fled down the hill, this time never to return.

TAKE IT IN TIME.

"For want of a nail, a shoe was lost; for want of a shoe, a horse was lost; for want of a horse, a rider was lost." Never neglect small things. The first signs of pneumonia and consumption can positively be checked by Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption. Munds Brothers, druggists.

Merit Wins

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Wm. H. Green & Co., Druggists.
