"More Rankles and False Assertions."—The Greensborough Patriot puts an effectual extinguisher upon another of the malignant assaults upon Mr. Gilmer by the Winston Sentinel. The Sentinel announced itself to be "pretty well posted" as to "the true facts" of the prosecution of Crooks and McBride; said that Mr. Gilmer "has received a great deal more credit for the prosecution" "than he deserves," and that "three of our citizens in the town of Salem determined to take the matter into their own hands, had their names placed upon record as prosecutors, employed one J. R. McLean, Esq., who is a "Democratic Lawyer," as their counsel, and thus was the prosecution commenced, thus were these gentlemen arrested, convicted and driven from the State. It is probable that Mr Gilmer was afterwards retained as one of the counsel. We do not pretend to say."

These last were statements as to matters of fact about which there would seem to be no room for a misapprehension. The statements were either true or they were knowingly false. What they are, is shown by the following from the Patriot:—

"Now the truth of the matter is—and we have it from Mr. McLean's own mouth, that Mr. McLean never was employed to prosecute Crooks and McBride, and never had anything to do with the case in any shape or form. We also learn from Mr. G. C. Mendenhall who is in Greensboro' while we write, attending Court, and who was one of the Counsel who defended Crooks and McBride, that the prosecution was conducted by Messrs. Waddle and Gilmer—that the bill of indictment was drawn by Mr. Gilmer according to Mr. Mendenhall's recollection, and as he thinks will appear by reference to the papers on the file. "Will the Sentinel inform us how it became so "well posted!" Who were the "three citizens of Salem," who employed one J. R. McLean, Esq?"

What next, we may well ask, will Locofocism resort to against Mr. Gilmer.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION.

One Man Killed.—Narrow Escape of Others.—Building Demolished.

This morning at about half past 10 o'clock the boiler attached to the steam grist mill of Messrs. Ellis & Mitchell on North Water street, exploded with terrible effect, wounding the fireman—a negro—to such an extent that he died a short time after. Another man was slightly wounded.

A horse was killed instantly. The building was torn to atoms, the roof being entirely blown off, and the bricks scattered for some distance around.

A piece of the boiler, which would weigh 1,000 lbs., or more, was thrown a distance of thirty or forty feet after having passed through a brick wall. The building in front of the one where the boiler stood, is also greatly injured, supposed by some to be now insecure.

The fire companies were quickly upon the spot to prevent conflagration.

We have been unable to learn the cause of the explosion but presume it was from a flaw in the boiler.

The amount of damage cannot yet be ascertained.—Wil. Herald.

Lynching of Northern Abolitionists in the South.

The Republican journals are endeavoring to raise a great outcry over the fact that some incendiary Northern travelers have been driven from the South, as they are likely to be hereafter, without much ceremony. The New York Express reminds them that the abolitionists permit no Southern mother to come North, or travel North, even with a slave nurse, nursing an infant the slave herself may dearly love; but, on the contrary, in every way, and in all ways, these abolitionists resort to cunning, or force, to abduct such servants from their mistresses or masters, in order thus to harass or distress them.

A northern man could go anywhere South, before the recent outbreak, with his or her man or maid, and nobody touched him; but for years past, no Southern man or woman could travel North, with his or her man or maid.

The law of courtesy, called the Nine Months' Law, existed in the State of New York, until abolitionists ran rampant there, by which a Southerner was permitted to live there with a servant during nine months, without becoming free; but, when abolitionism began to tear away churches, missionary societies, and tract societies, it began with tearing this law away, and now it is gone. If George Washington, the Father of His Country, were living, and were desirous of going via New York to Niagara Falls, with his servant attending him, he would be half mobbed in Utica, Syracuse, or Rochester, by the abolitionists there—while his servant would be stolen away from him, certainly, at Niagara Falls.—Richmond Flag.

THE "THUNDERER" ON BROWN.

The London Times, in a leader upon the execution of John Brown, expresses its contempt for his backers, and closes as follows:

"The result will be to strengthen the South by the adhesion of the floating mass of opinion which in every country lies between two extremes. Whatever may be the future of the negro race, no one in his senses can believe its regeneration can be effected by inciting it to murder planters and ravish white women, and if any man chooses to head an outbreak of this kind he must expect to meet a fate which right-thinking men will not glorify with a crown of martyrdom."

We hope the Brown sympathizers at the North will put the foregoing paragraph in their pipes, and smoke it at their leisure—for they have received a blow from a direction they little contemplated.

The Underground Railroad.—A correspondent of the Baltimore Sun writes from Berryville, Clarke county, Va., as follows:

A report reached here the other day from the most reliable source, that a slave (a man) belonging to R. M. Hunter, Senator from Virginia, was kidnapped and conveyed in the underground railroad to Canada. Strange as it may seem, the kidnapper was a Northern lady, a member of a distinguished family there. The name of this lady and the whole story will be made public in a few days. An old college mate of Mr. Hunter, a resident of this place, wrote him yesterday the full particulars of the extraordinary affair.

Unnecessary.—The Charlotte Bulletin complains that the proceedings of a political meeting recently held in that place have been withheld from it for the benefit of another paper.—Now this is ungenerous in the Bulletin, for, the party papers—the "organs"—having all the dirty work to do, certainly have a right to expect whatever poor compliments, honors and profits court-house cliques have it in their power to bestow. And further, independent dailies should procure their own reports of political and other meetings held in the community where published by private enterprise, and not depend on courtesy from men whose very position (political) sometimes prevents their granting them.—New Era Progress.

CLINGMAN'S SPEECH.

We referred in our last to this speech, and spoke of it as an able and logical effort. The editors of the Fayetteville Observer have also had their attention on this speech, and we copy below the remarks of that paper concerning it. The Observer rarely strikes at a nail head without hitting it well:

Mr. Clingman's Speech.—The Globe brought us a few days ago, after long delay in the mails, Mr. Clingman's speech in the Senate last week. It is an interesting speech, and displays ability, which nobody doubts that Mr. Clingman possesses. We have read it with interest, not a great deal lessened by the fact that we had read the speech of which this is an elaboration in 1847, when Mr. Clingman was a member of the House and professedly a Whig. At that time and in that speech Mr. Clingman held that Congress had authority to rule the Territories as it pleased, with regard to slavery as to all other questions; and he denounced the present democratic doctrine as to the Territories, announced by Mr. Calhoun a year previously, as the most shallow and superficial that could possibly be presented. He also traced the troubles between North and South to a very different source—to the policy originated, for party purposes and individual advancement, by Mr. Calhoun in 1821 and persisted in to this day, of calling for a "united South," impressing the North with the belief that Southern men who did not fall into this policy were unsound; inflaming the feeling of both sections, at that time entirely peaceful; and thus building up a great abolition party. Mr. Clingman, however, should have credit for frankness in announcing, as he does in the beginning of his speech the other day, that he had viewed this subject (as most others indeed) "from different points of view," and for skill in making the same speech answer for the expression of these differing views.

Mr. Clingman praises the democratic party for "manliness and statesmanship in reforming the currency system in part by the adoption of the sub-treasury system." This is of course a new light, for Mr. Clingman was a whig for many years after this "manly and statesmanlike" measure, and was in the habit of most furiously denouncing this same democratic party which he now praises.

Again, he says that in 1850 he "had announced already, his separation from the organization of the Whig party." Mr. Clingman is reputed to have a good memory; but in 1852 he attended the Whig Caucus at Washington, and was publicly stated to have made a speech to his constituents in the Fall of that year in the course of which he claimed to be a whig.

We cannot make room for the speech. It is longer than a President's Message.

SHOCKING AFFAIR.

We have just heard of a most shocking affair, which occurred recently in the edge of Rockingham county, near the Guilford line. The particulars, so far as we have been able to gather them, are these: A man by the name of Williams, a Justice of the Peace and member of the Special Court of Rockingham, had seduced a young lady, whose name our informant had forgotten, under promise of marriage. In order to avoid the fulfilment of he promise he determined, it is supposed, to murder her. The girl was missing, and no inquiry led to any intelligence concerning her, until recently her comb was found in Haw river, near Williams', which fact coupled with other circumstances, created the suspicion that Williams had made way with her. The river was dragged but the lady was not found. Subsequently, a plant bed, which Williams had burned for the purpose of sowing tobacco seeds, was searched, and among the ashes was found the rings and necklace clasp that were known to have belonged to the girl, partially melted, and also some substance, pronounced to be part of a human body. Upon these discoveries Williams was arrested and is now in jail.

The above are all the facts our informant could give us. We learn that Williams will have an examination to-day, when the facts will be more fully brought out.

Remarkably Quick.—The Schr. Ida Della Torre, on her last trip from New York to Morehead, had one of the quickest passages upon record, making the run in thirty-six hours. When our friends who are fond of bragging upon quick trips beat this, we shall ask Captain Tyler to draw another draft upon the sailing qualities of his good Schr. Ida; that he will do so, and that she will honor the draft we doubt not.—Beaufort Journal.

Right.—The Charlotte Light Infantry have resolved to equip themselves with uniforms made of Rock Island cassimere, manufactured in Mecklenburg county.

DIED:

The Manufactories of the South MUST BE SUSTAINED.

☞ We make the above declaration, and shall, so far as it concerns with the wants of our patrons, stand square upon the platform. NORTH CAROLINA CASSIMERES will be introduced into our establishment in a few days; and we shall make the same to measure, in the highest style of art. They only need to be handsomely cut, well made, and trimmed with real Merchant Tailors' Trimmings, and they will look well.

We are now about completing extensive arrangements for the introduction of large quantities of these goods into our Southern Houses—numbering in all, eight in NORTH CAROLINA AND VIRGINIA—most of which have been established upwards of 20 years. Retailing from these establishments over five hundred thousand dollars worth of Clothing and Gentlemen's Furnishing Goods, annually—a large capital hitherto employed in Northern purchases will, hereafter be used and distributed among our own people.

GEO. A. KEEN, Esq., of our Richmond Va., House, (firm Keen, Baldwin & Williams,) is now in Europe, where he has been located since September last. This enables us to conduct a trade as nearly independent of the North, as could well be imagined.

Our long experience among the citizens of North Carolina and Virginia—the well known character and standing of our establishment, renders it unnecessary to refer in any way to the manifold advantages we possess over others of less experience and practical knowledge in the CLOTHING TRADE.

Endeavoring, as heretofore, to meet the wants of the people, and to conduct our business acceptably to our numerous patrons, we respectfully solicit a liberal patronage from the citizens of North and South Carolina.
