What's Cooking At The JCC

Political Issues Lecture Series

The Jewish Community Center is proud to present a 4-session lecture-discussion series entitled "Political Issues Today". This timely series will address the major issues faced in this election year and in the future. It is an opportunity to become informed, express opinions, and be a part of a dialogue with someone "in the know". The series will be moderated by Mr. Heinz Jaffe and has been coordinated through the efforts of Dr. Harold Josephson of UNCC. It will be held on four Wednesday evenings, November 7th and 14th and December 5th and 12th, at 8 p.m. at the JCC. (This will not conflict with Wednesday Symphony Series).

The following topics will be discussed:

November 7th - "Energy and America's Future" - Carlos Bell, Celanese Professor of Civil Engineering, UNCC

November 14th - "U.S. - Russian Relations: Salt II and It's Future" - Harry Chernotsky, Asst. Professor of Political Science, UNCC

December 5th - "The Inflation, Economy and You" - Ronald Madsen, Asst. Professor of Economics, UNCC

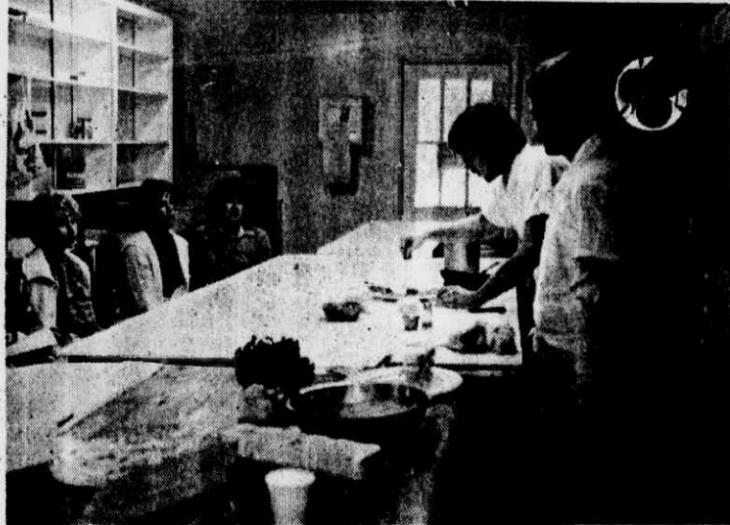

December 12th - "Politics, Politicians & The 1980 Elections" - William McCoy, Associate Professor of Political Science, UNCC

Register now by calling the JCC (366-0357). The fee is $8/members and $12/non-members.

Chef's Choice

Ken Blackney and Brian Madden, chefs from the Silver Cricket Restaurant on South Blvd. are shown preparing Flounder Asparagus as part of the Chef's Choice class being sponsored this semester at the JCC.

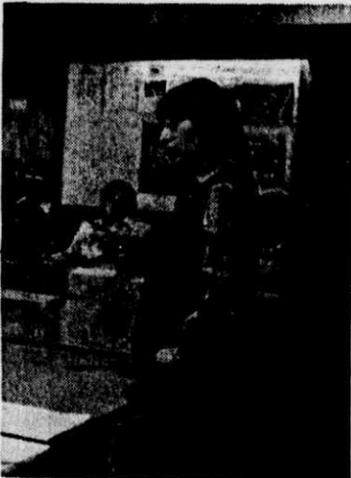

The participants in the class have the opportunity to meet and learn from six of Charlotte's finest chefs each representing a major restaurant. The six restaurants are Riccio's, the Silver Cricket, Cafe Eugene, House of Hunan, Breadbasket and Feathers. Each chef prepares in front of the class a speciality such as veal or fish or a baked dessert. The class observes the entire preparation, has the opportunity to ask questions, receives printed copies of the recipe and - most important - gets to sample a generous portion of the finished product.

Scouting

Every Monday night at 7:30 p.m. the "J" becomes the center of activity for Boy Scout Troop #4. Although the aims and purposes of scouting should be well known, many parents are still unaware of the benefits to be derived when their son turns to scouting.

The Boy Scouts build character by teaching leadership, self discipline, team work and citizenship. Leadership is practiced at all levels where the scout is challenged but not overwhelmed. Self discipline is taught through physical activities and by learning the wide range of information which is needed for advancement. This instills self confidence and self reliance, both very important to a young boy. Learning to work with others towards a common goal shows the value of team effort. Above and beyond the skills of teen sports teamwork, scouting teaches leadership.

Troop #4 is relatively small at present, however its excellent leadership affords rare opportunities for boys to grow and advance with the troop. Advancement programs have many options designed to meet the needs and interests of all. Scouting recognizes that every boy is an individual with very special personal requirements.

Prospective scouts will be pleased to know that the troop usually camps out one weekend per month at which time Scout crafts and skills are taught. Outdoor survival emphasizes crafts such as building shelters, use of axe, knife, and rope work. Other skills cover cooking, first aid, water safety, conservation and ecology. A variety of such crafts and skills are also stressed during campouts and regular meetings. During the summer Boy Scout Camp offers the opportunity to put all this valuable knowledge to practical use.

These are just some of the many reasons why parents should encourage their sons to become Boy Scouts. At the most formative time of his life, a young boy can become part of the troop and enjoy a strong sense of belonging. He will be an integral part of a vibrant and productive peer group.

Any boy is welcome to join Scouting if he is 11 years old or 10½ years old and has completed 5th grade.

For further information please call Scout Master Bill Beamer at 568-6424, Assistant Scout Master David Lintz at 364-0227, or Chairman of Troop Committee Jack Lash at 364-0419.
