From the British Quarterly Review.

WORLDS ON FIRE.

On the 12th of May, 1866, a great conflagration, infinitely larger than that of London or Moscow, was announced. To use the expression of a distinguished astronomer, a world was found to be on fire. A star, which till then had shone meekly and unobtrusively in the Corona Borealis, suddenly blazed up into a luminary of the second magnitude. In the course of three days its discovery in this new character by Mr. Birmingham, at Tuam, it had declined to the third or even fourth order of brilliancy. In twelve days, dating from its first apparition in the Irish heavens, it had sunk to the eighth rank, and it went on waning until the 26th of June, when it ceased to be discernable except through the medium of the telescope. This was a remarkable, though certainly not an unprecedented proceeding on the part of a star; but one singular circumstance in its behavior was that, after the lapse of nearly two months, it began to blaze up again, though not with equal ardor, and after maintaining its glow for a few weeks, and passing through sundry phases of color, it gradually paled its fire and returned to its former insignificance.

How many years had elapsed since this awful conflagration actually took place it would be presumptuous to guess; but it must be remembered that news from the heavens, though carried by the fleetest of messengers, light, reach it long after the event has transpired and that the same celestial courier is still dropping the tidings at each station it reaches in space, until it sinks exhausted by the length of its flight. Now when this object was examined, as it was promptly and eagerly by Prof. Miller and Mr. Huggins, they found to their great wonder that it yielded two spectra—the one imposed upon the other, though obviously independent. There was the prismatic ribbon crossed by dark lines, which belongs to the sun and stars generally, but there was another in which four bright lines figured; and these according to the canons of interpretation previously mentioned, indicated that some luminous gas (or gases) was also pouring out its light from the surface of the orb.

Two of the lines spelled out hydrogen in the spectral language. What the other two signified did not then appear; but, inasmuch as those four streaks were brighter than the rest of the spectrum, the source from which they came must obviously have been more intensely heated than the underlying parts, or photosphere, from which the normal stellar light proceeded. And as the star had suddenly flamed up, was it not a natural supposition that it had become enwrapped in burning hydrogen, which, in consequence of some great convulsion, had been liberated in prodigious quantities and then, combining with other elements had set this hapless world on fire? In such a fierce conflagration the combustible gas would soon be consumed, and the glow would, therefore, begin to decline, subject, as in this case, to a second eruption, which occasioned the renewed outburst of light on the 20th August.

By such a catastrophe it is not wholly impossible that our own globe may some time be ravaged, for if a word from the Almighty were to unloose for a few moments the bonds of affinity which unite the elements of water—of the ocean on the land and the moisture in the air—a single spark would bring them together with a fury which would kindle the funeral pyre of the human race, and be fatal to the planet and all the works that are therein. It cannot but be a startling fact for us that in yonder doomed and distant world we have, probably, seen in our own day, a realization of the fearful picture sketched by Peter, "when the heavens (or atmosphere) being on fire, shall be dissolved, and the element shall melt with fervent heat." And if we regarded it as the centre of a system, it is impossible to think without horror of the fate of the numerous globes around it when overwhelmed by this sudden deluge of light and caloric.

[From the Courier-Journal.]

WORKING OF HOAR'S OPINION.

Attorney General Hoar's late opinion in the Virginia test-oath case involves curious results. He decides that Virginia can, as a State, ratify through her Legislature the fifteenth amendment, but that if Congress, after that, shall reject her Constitution as not legally or fairly adopted, she cannot be recognized as a State, and must be kept in a condition of military subjection. Her act of ratifying the amendment will, in the supposed case, be held by Congress to be a State act to all intents and purposes, and she will be counted among the States making the amendment a permanent part of the federal Constitution, and yet at the same time she will be treated in regard to all things else as a non-State province, whatever, in short, Radicalism may choose to have her. All this is vastly ridiculous, but, if it were otherwise, it would be wholly out of keeping with Radicalism's general theory and practice.

Yes, under Hoar's plan, the fifteenth amendment is to be adopted at once by a Legislature in embryo, and that action is to be regarded as a valid and irreversible sanction of the amendment, and yet it will remain with Congress to reject the new Constitution or the officers elected under it, or to impose such new terms as the exigencies of the Radical party may then dictate.—Canby would secure the adoption of the amendment by turning out the legislators who are opposed to it; Hoar, instead of this so-best proceeding, proposes by a gross perversion of language and common sense to cheat Virginia into an apparent assent to the amendment and then leave her just where she is now, to be dealt with by a reconstructed Congress. Such sophistical sophistry and jubilant over the "situation." If they have gained, or if they succeed in gaining ultimately anything by Hoar's opinion, we shall rejoice exceedingly, but we cannot, as yet, see it, strain our eyes as we may. We see only, as we have seen from the first, that the persistent determination of having the South reconstructed solely in the interests of her Radical faction is steadily and surely prosecuted, and that the Southern people themselves are in a great measure used as the instruments through which that faction is working to its ends. And we confidently predict, that, if Virginia now acts in the hope of securing peace and self-government in a mode which the Attorney General pronounces satisfactory to the administration, the people of that State will be swindled out of their expected recognition and will be as far at sea as ever.

It is certain that the Radical Congress will not let Virginia be reconstructed if it shall see any particular motive to keep her unreconstructed. That's a truth that she cannot understand a moment too soon.

DOTY'S WASHING MACHINE,

LATELY HIGH TO OFFER,

AND THE NEW

UNIVERSAL CLOTHES WRINGER.

Improved with Rogers's Patent Double Cog-Wheels, and the Patent Stop, are now unquestionably far superior to any apparatus for washing clothes ever invented and will save their cost twice a year, by saving labor and clothes.

Those who have used them give testimony as follows:

"We like our machine much; could not be persuaded to do without it, and with the aid of Doty, we feel that we are masters of the position."—Rev. L. Scott, Bishop M. E. Church.

"It is worth one dollar a week in any family."—N. Y. Tribune.

"In the laundry of my house there is a perpetual treat every time on Monday for the invalids."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler.

"I heartily commend it as economical of time, money, and confectionery."—Rev. Dr. Robinson.

"Every week has given it a stronger hold upon the affections of the inmates of the laundry."—N. Y. Observer.

"Friend Doty—Your last improvement of your Washing Machine is a complete success. I assure you 'our machine,' after a year's use, is thought more of to-day than ever, and would not be parted with under any circumstances."—Seth Robinson.

"Your Washing Machine has been in daily use in our laundry and the housekeeper expresses herself as highly pleased with it. It certainly accomplishes a greater amount of work, with less labor, and does not wear the clothes near so much as the old fashioned washboard. By using it the linen is dispensed with."—Wm. M. F. Round, Superintendent of Insane Department of St. Catherine's Hospital, N. Y. City.

PRICES.—A Fair Offer.

Send the retail price—Washer $14, Extra Wringer $5 and we will forward either or both machines, free of freight, to places where no one is selling; and we are so sure they will be liked, that we agree to refund the money if any one wishes to return the machines, free of freight, after a month's trial according to directions.

Husband, father or brother should permit the drudgery of washing with the hands, fifty-two days in the year, when it can be done better, more expeditiously, with less labor, and no injury to the garments, by a Day Clothes Washer, and a Universal Wringer.

Canvassers with exclusive right of sale make money fast selling them.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE SUBSCRIBER BEING DESIROUS OF removing South, offers for sale his valuable property, adjoining the town of W. C. R. R. in Hickory's North Carolina, N. C., consisting of one store house and two dwellings. There is a well of excellent water and a fine orchard of improved fruit on the place, also all necessary out buildings and in good repair. There is about two acres of land all under good fence. The place is in town of capacity and is very desirable on account of its convenience and cheapness.

Any person desiring to invest in such property would find it to their interest to address Messrs. Jas. T. Bryan & Co., at Charlotte or the subscriber at Hickory Station.
