FROM WASHINGTON.

RESIGNATION OF MESSRS. DEWESS AND HOLLADAY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The House was considerably surprised to-day when the Speaker had read the resignation of two members, James B. Golladay, a Democratic Representative of the fourth district of North Carolina. Mr. Dewess learning that the evidence implicated him in the sale of a cadetship, and that the Committee would probably report to-day or to-morrow for his expulsion sent in his resignation to the Governor of his State on Friday last, and to the Speaker to-day. This member, it is understood, received five hundred dollars for appointing a cadet from the District of Columbia, but had offered some time since to return the money. The case of Mr. Golladay is quite different. The Committee had come to no conclusion whatever regarding his case, and the evidence so far as taken, did not, members of both parties on the Committee say, implicate him directly as being governed by improper motives or in receiving money. Mr. G. has simply appeared in the attitude of confessing judgment to the House by so suddenly resigning. He was in the House to-day for an hour and wrote his resignation at his desk, apparently on the impulse of the moment, though he informed his counsel this morning that he intended to resign. The latter maintains that no evidence implicating his client had been submitted beyond the fact that the cadet when appointed was not a resident of G's district. The father of the cadet, Haldane by name, testified that his son was appointed by Golladay at his request in 1868, and during the last Congress, after a personal acquaintance, and that he never offered nor agreed to pay to Golladay, directly or indirectly, a cent for the appointment, that none of his family agreed to pay anything, and that no consideration of any kind had passed between them before or since the appointment. The witness said that his boy in jesting might have said that two thousand dollars was paid, but that it was not true, for no amount was ever paid, nor had he ever told the boy that his nomination was purchased. The witness swore to this over and over again, and the cadet, who was examined this afternoon, was unable to testify that money had been paid. The slight acquaintance which existed between Golladay and Haldane, the admission that the cadet was appointed out of the district, and Golladay's resignation are the only circumstances against the latter.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY IN SULLIVAN COUNTY, INDIANA.

One of the most singular and wonderful discoveries of the age was made in the Curryville coal mines a few days ago. At a depth of 180 feet, while the miners were cutting through a slate stone, they discovered the petrified body of a sea serpent.—We examined this petrifactive, and can say, with truth, that it is the finest specimen we ever saw. Unfortunately it was broken into three pieces, and a piece from near the centre is missing—perhaps thrown out in after of stone. A limb had evidently fallen across the serpent, about eight or ten inches from the head, and mashed the part underneath flat, and strange to say, even this thin part was formed into solid stone, and was taken out perfect. The wrinkles in the body of the serpent, in its writhing as if to extricate itself from the stick that fell across it, were as perfect and natural as the day the affair took place. The head is shaped like that of an eel, and the tail, from indications, must have been supplied with a broad fin, or a flat, fleshy substance, as a propeller. The eyes and mouth can be distinctly traced, while the body is covered with small sunken spots, similar to those on a hog skin, though not so small or numerous. This specimen is five feet three inches long, and near ten inches around the largest part of the body. In addition to this most singular curiosity, perfectly preserved of leaves, limbs, brush and other samples of vegetation were taken out at this enormous depth. Among these was a beautiful impression of what is familiarly called snake wood, or fern, which grows in almost every valley throughout the western country.

The most singular specimen is yet to be described, and in attempting to communicate the fact to our readers, we feel as though the history of our earth is just as much a mystery to the present generation as it was to those who inhabited before the flood—the "half having not yet been told." The sole of a shoe, or sandal, was taken out in a complete state of petrifaction. The heel is almost perfect, and the impression of something in the heel resembling tacks or nails, is plain and distinct. This specimen is about eight inches long and of the usual width.

When this discovery is seriously considered in connection with the general formation of the earth for a circumference of between seventy and eighty miles around—there not being a hill of any material height—not a ravine of a depth worthy of remark—not a ravine; and the Wabash the largest stream within this scope, and the earth almost level, and thickly and heavily timbered, what mind can go down into the bowels of the earth one hundred and eighty feet beneath the firmly-rooted, aged oaks of the forest, and solve the mysteries thus unfolded?

HORRIBLE.—Mr. Joseph Powell, commercial agent of the United States at Point Stanley, Falkland Islands, writes home as follows:

"You may be aware that this is the last sailing point near to the South Pole. Beyond this no vessel ever sails, and human footsteps are never seen. It is perpetual winter—snow every month in the year. The islands are naked of trees and bush, and very little soil—high mountains and hills of volcanic rock over nine-tenths of the surface. Nothing of the grain kind to subsist—no sand time of flowers. There are no animals, except wild horses and cattle. Foxes and rabbits have been brought here and introduced—the latter larger than those in the United States. No snakes, frogs, nor spiders, but swarms of insects of every kind. The wind blows all the time—so much so that you cannot do it, and the population are very high and living price—the comforts of life whatever. Board and lodging annually $400. I'll come home the first opportunity. I am distant from New York twelve thousand miles by sea. My voyage to my post of duty occupied one hundred and five days. I am thirty days sail from Rio de Janeiro, fifteen thousand five hundred miles to your Chili and Peru, and six hundred miles off Cape Horn.
