Anecdotes, &c.

"BOLD AS A LION"—Not many years since there lived in a small village somewhere in the State of Pennsylvania, a "crook tailor" by the name of D———; who was in the habit of going around to the farm houses, cutting and making cloths for the farmers' sons. He had an apprentice, who was very unmanageable at times and who, to be "revenged" of his employer, resolved to get him a "licking."

One day the tailor was at a farm house making clothes, and at the same time trying to "cabbage." The farmer asked the boy if Mr. D——— did'n sometimes keep some of the cloth for himself.

"Yes," said the boy, who wanted to have some sport, "he cabbages" a great deal; and when he is about to do it, he makes three raps upon the table with his shears."

"Ah, very well; I'll watch him," said the farmer.

Some days passed away without any notice on the part of the farmer at the transactions of Mr. D———, until he took down a fine piece of cloth from which to cut a coat. He measured, and measured then his lips moved as though he said, "I'll have a piece of you," and down came three raps.

"None of that!" exclaimed the farmer, watching him closely; "I'll have none of that."

"None of what?" said Mr. D———, utterly astonished.

"You are 'cabbaging,' and I'll have no such thing done in my house, and especially from my cloth."

"No, I am not," said Mr. D———.

"Yes, you are; and you shall go out of my house!"

By this time they had clenched each other, but neither could get the advantage. They stopped to gain breath, and went at it again. This time the farmer whipped his adversary. They both settled up these accounts, and Mr. D——— left.

While walking along the road, the tailor asked his apprentice how he looked while fighting the farmer.

"Pretty bold," answered the boy. "I think if you would go back and try it again you could whip him."

"Do you think so?" said the tailor, feeling very brave; "I believe I will go back and whip him!"

So back he went to meet the farmer, but this time he got whipped a leetle worse than before. Again he asked the boy how he looked when he was fighting.

"Oh, you looked furious,—bold as a lion; yes, you looked as bold as them lions yonder in that field."

"You fool!" said Mr. D———, "they are cow beas, but sheep."

"Well, anyhow," replied the mischevious urchin, "you looked just like them!"

A TRUE AND TOUCHING STORY.

We clip the following from the Fredericksburg (Va.) Christian Banner:

A young man and his wife were preparing to attend a Christmas party at the house of a friend some miles distant.

"Henry, my dear husband, don't drink too much at the party, to day; you will promise me, won't you?" said she, putting her hand on his arm, and raising her eyes to his face with a pleading glance.

"No, Millie, I will not; you may trust me." And he wrapped his infant boy in a soft blanket, and they descended.

"Now don't forget your promise," whispered the young wife, as she passed up the step.

Poor thing! she was the wife of a man who loved to look upon the wine when red. But his love for his wife, and their babe whom they both idolized, kept him back, and it was not often that he joined in Bacchanalian revelries.

The party passed off pleasantly, the time of departing drew near, and the wife descended from the upper chamber to join her husband.

A pang shot through the trusting heart as she met him, for he was intoxicated—he had broken his promise.

Silently they rode homeward, save when the drunken man broke into snatches of songs or uncomeeting laughter. But the wife rode on, her babe pressed closely to her grieved heart.

"Give me the baby, Millie, I don't trust you with him," said he as he approached a dark and rapid stream.

After some hesitating, she resigned her first born, her darling babe, closely wrapped in the great blanket, to his arms.—Over the dark water the noble steed safely bore them, and taken they reached the bank, the mother asked for the child.

With more rare and tenderness he placed the bundle in her arms; when she clasped it to her bosom, no babe was there! It had slipped from the blanket, and the drunken father knew it not.

A wild shriek aroused him, and he turned just in time to see the little rosy face rise one moment above the dark waves, and then sink forever.

This is no fiction, but the plain truth.—The parties were known by the friends of the writer, and it should be a warning to those who indulge in intoxicating drinks, and resist the pleadings of loving wives.

CHARLOTTE HOTEL,

BY

D. H. McNEILL,

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

THE Proprietor of this Hotel is still at his post ready to fulfil the duties of "mine host" to the travelling public and others who may call on him, and he flatters himself that as comfortable quarters can be found with him as any where in this county. Being situated nearly in the centre of Charlotte, Business Men will find this Hotel a most convenient and desirable location. He has been engaged in the business at this stand nearly eighteen years, and in that time he has made several additions to the former house, and it has been greatly enlarged and improved, presenting in front a two story VERANDA 100 feet in length by 12 feet in width, handsomely shaded by trees on the side walk, affording a pleasant promenade at all hours of the day.

The House has been thoroughly furnished throughout, and in every part of it ample comforts are abundant and tangible, especially in the DINING ROOM, where the "inner man" is "refreshed" day by day.

Connected with this Hotel are Stables affording room for 100 horses, abundantly furnished with great care, prudence, attention by faithful and obliging hostlers.

The Proprietor believes that with his long experience and many new advantages added to his desire to please, he is prepared to offer his friends and the "rest of mankind," as many comforts and as much good cheer as will be found anywhere, perhaps a little more so.

☞ At any rate try the Charlotte Hotel.
