Follow the Crowd!

Do you remember the advice given by Mr. Pickwick when asked what to do in a time of great excitement? "In such cases, do as the mob does." "But," said Mr. Snodgrass, "what if there are two mobs?" "Shout with the largest," said Mr. Pickwick. Volumes could not have said more. If you, gentle or ferocious reader, want to buy dry goods or notions, the crowd at our place will tell you where to buy them.

The New Store Always Busy.

The big double glass front indexes the store inside.

Selling at smallest profits, we bring the consumer nearer the prime, first original cost than credit stores care to do or dare to imitate. There is "method in their madness" when they decry our popular system.

Encouraged by Our Patrons.

Enconiums copiously showered binds us in closer relationship to public favor and nerves us to the greatest work for the smallest pay—in a word, we become public benefactors.

Unsuspecting Victims Sometimes Robbed.

We never have, do not now, nor never will sell staple articles for less than cost, then charge those unfamiliar with the qualities or ignorant of the values extortionate prices, as some, by duplicity and false representation seek to do. Such is not BUSINESS, but a downright betrayal of confidence—a sharp trick played by some to "keep in the game."

Mr. Sherwood Higgs is now in New York covering the market for all it is worth in the way of bargains and he has just "struck it right," as great clearing prices are now being made to wind up the year's business.

Big invoices of Cloth and Plush Capes, new styles Dress Goods, all kinds of Woolen Underwear, heavy stock Plaid Goods, Kerseys and Cassimeres have just been received.

Greatest line of children's Tam O'Shanters ever displayed in the city, and from the SIGNS before us, we lay claim to the biggest stock of Handkerchiefs in the State.
