Puts End To Bad Habit.

Things never look bright to one with "the blues." Ten to one the trouble is a sluggish liver, filling the system with billious poison, that Dr. King's New Life Pills would expel. Try them. Let the joy of better feelings end "the blues." Best for stomach, liver and kidneys. 25c. Freeman Drug Co.

Ministers For T. R. In Two Straw Votes.

Mauch Chunk, Pa., Oct. 10.—At the monthly meeting of the Schuykill County Methodist Episcopal Ministers' Association at Tamaqua a straw vote was taken for president, resulting in the following count: Roosevelt, 14; Wilson, 4; Chafin, 1; Taft, 0.

At the monthly meeting the Panther Creek Valley Ministerial Association, composed of Ministers and church officials from Mauch Chunk, East Mauch Chunk, Nesquehoning, Summit Hill and Lansford, held in Lansford, a straw vote taken resulted as follows: Roosevelt, 7; Wilson, 3; Debs, 3; Taft, 1.

Moose Are Active.

Fayettville, Oct. 9.—Representatives of the regular Republican and Bull Moose parties in Cumberland met here today and named Frank Talbot as a candidate for the senate from the thirteenth district on the "citizens" ticket put out some weeks ago by the Progressives and Republicans, and challenged the Democrats for a joint canvases. With this end in view they set the same dates for the "citizens" ticket as those announced today for the Democratic candidates.

The Ohio Farm Journal has made up a poll on the political situation.

"While it is too early to tell, the indications are that there will be some suprises the morning after the votes are counted. During three weeks previous to the closing of our forms for the October issue, the following straw votes were taken:

Roosevelt	362
Taft	58
Wilson	151

In Clark County MO, a family which will probably cast the greatest number of votes of anyone indvidual family in the United states. C.B.Shirwood, amiller and grain merchant is the Progressive leader. Mr.Sherwood has six sons and a seventh one who is not old enough to vote. Four of the sons live in Clark Couty and are ardent Bull Moosers likd their father. The fifth son lives in Colorado and will cast a vote for Col. Roosevelt there.

Mr Shirwood was worried about how the sixth son out in Oregon was going to vote, untill he recieved a day or to ago, this message from his son.

"Go to it day, I am a Bull moose myself."

But that is'nt all. counting up all his relationship Mr Sheerwood has found that with cousins, nephews, brother—inlaws and sons, there are forty—six in his relationship who are going to vote Col. Roosevelt.

Col. Roosevelt at Home.

(From the New Evening World)

TheColonel ishome again after athousand mile swing.

He was the healthies looking „sick man who ever stepped of a train' He was there with the smile, there With laugh, there with the new hat fresh from the ring and not a dent in it. "Do I look feeble?" he retorted, and the crowd laughed with him and the ered him. "I'm the first Presidential candite who has campaigned against the Republican party in the south in sixty years" said the Colonel.

President Taft arrived from Washington alittle over a week ago at the same depot. Four newspaper men and one cameraa greeted him Six cameras covered the Colonel as he stepped from his private car. A score of newspaper men swooped down on him say he had nothing to say. He he had notheing to say. He said it and the crowd cheered. A women bushed her way through the crowd with her baby in her arms. "See." said to the child, "that man there? that's Col Roosevelt. That's onr next President." "Goo goo!" cheered the baby. Paesident Taft came with a guard. The Colonel dident need one. He had the crowd with him. Aoffe colored porter with a red cap pushed his way through the crowd, his eyes sborkled and his teeth shining like new white shining like new white dice." Ah, welcome home, Cunnel," he greeted, and the Colonel shook the out stretched hand.

The news of the Colonel's comeing spread throughthe depot like an electric shock. women took a chance of loosing their trains in preference of loosing a sight of the Bull Moose. Men stopped to raise their hats. Off came the Roosevelt lid. The Colonel was was held up again in slight of his auto and family by the camera road agents. Binge Snap! Plunk! Let her "go!" cried the Bull Moose. Precious words for thl news paper men. There cheers as the Colonel emerged into the open. Reportes paessed forward to hear what the Bull Moose had to say to his family. A story was being built up on 'nothing to say."

President Finley On Farmer's Highway Improvement.

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. President Finley, of the Southern Railway Company, who one of the principal speakers the Annual Convention of Alabama Good Roads Association to-day, spoke on "Interest of Farmers in Highway Improvement," treating his subject road way as covering the entire transportation system of the United States and embracing waterways railways as well as country highways. He said part:

"The value of any commodity is dependent, in large measure upon the facility with which may be devoted to human * * * A bale of cotton would absolutely without value farmer if grown in a field which it would be a practical possibility to remove it. Its value because of the fact means are available for carrying it to a cotton mill and for carrying the products of the cotton mill to their final consumers. know of no commodity that serves to illustrate the importance of transportation than cotton. It is in demand when clothes are worn and by far greater part of the world's supply is produced in our Southern States. The price of cotton the farm is fixed by the portion of the total supply to world demand and the effect of the demand is dependent ability to carry the raw cotton and to carry the cotton mill products into every inhabited locality in the world. An Alabama cotton grower is, therefore, interested in transporation, not only his own county and in his State. but throughout the United States, across the ocean, and all countries. On the other hand, every family in Alabama uses to some extent commodities gathered from distant localities in the United States and in foreign countries. Thus we all interested in the efficiency world-transportation.

"More directly we are interested in the transportation system of the United States, which braces three kinds of highways the waterway, the railway, the wagon road, each having important function to perform and each supplementing others. With respect to each these highways every citizen land of popular government an individual responsibility.

Mr. Finley pointed out that the country highway is the over which commodities other localities must be distributed through an agricultural and over which all farm products must be moved in the first of transportation to market any agricultural region is tain the highest degree of perity it is essential that it be provided with a system improved wagon roads. He illustrations of the advantage road improvement in some Southern localities and quoted from a Farmer's Bulletin issued by the United States Agriculture Department an estimate that improvement of the wagon in the cotton belt as would reduce the cost of hauling five pounds would mean a saving of $2,000,000 a year to the grower.

After telling of the progress already made in Alabama, Finley emphasized the importance of each county adopting definite plan for road improvement so as to benefit the large number of road users, pointed out that this would involve improvement primarily of roads radiating from a market town or shipping station. strongly advised the importance of expert supervision in the building of highly improved roads in the improvement and maintenance of the outlying roads could not be rebuilt at once. expressed the opinion that would be profitable for county to put all of its road under the direction of a competent highway engineer suggested that it would greatly be desirable to provide for road improvement by issuing bonds and limiting current taxes to the amount necessary provide for maintenance, interest charge and for a sinking fund. Continuing said:

"While carrying forward work of improving the country highways and supporting progress for the improvement of the waterways we should not overlook third element in our transportation system—the railways. though our waterways and roads should be improved highest state of efficiency would fall far short of having adequate transportation without the railways.
