times turned in.

Conditioning and distance events still seem to be receiving the most work in the dailly sessions. Co-Captain Mike Morrow, Bob Hutton, Ronnie Basescu, Ike Norwood and Carl Drews were the only men who showed any appreciable improvement in last week's time trials.

The main purposes in the informal test are to give both squads a line on their weak points and also to bring the boys around to a better training mood.

Bursley Announces Necessary Return Of Photo Proofs

Harold Bursley, Yackety Yack editorial board member, yesterday had an announcement for any student who has failed to return his proofs to the Chidnoff studio in New York.

Stating that he had received a letter from them asking that the announcement be made, Bursley said that the studio was considering taking the first of the four poses on the individual picture sheets, in cases where a selection is not promptly made by the student concerned.

He suggested that any student who had not received his proofs check with the Yack office, and those who had received them but had not returned them to New York do so by the end of the week.

Tryouts To Be Held Today For 'Mikado'

The second public tryouts for the Carolina Playmaker production of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Mikado," are to be held this afteroon in Memorial hall between 2:30 and 4:30, under the direction of Lyn Gault and Paul Young.

First tryouts were held Friday, and casting will be concluded after today's session. Candidates are not required to sing material from the operetta, but are asked to come prepared with selections of their own choice. An accompanist will be present to help.

The 1947 meeting between Duke and Carolina is attracting even more attention than in previous years. The Tar Heels have come roaring down the homestretch with consecutive wins over William and Mary, Florida, Tennessee, N. C. State, and Maryland to climb back among the top teams of the nation after dropping two of their first three games. They have been mentioned frequently in connection with various post-season bowls.

The Southern conference title also will be affected by the game. Duke at present leads the league but must beat Carolina to keep its position. If the Devils lose, William and Mary, with six loop wins and one loss probably would take the title. Carolina also has lost just one conference game but has but three wins so far.

out that Poland lost six million people in the last war.

"As long as harmonious, friendly cooperation of the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain exists, no German politician and no German can dream of the rebirth of German imperialism," Mr. Winiewicz declared. "The lesson of the past indicates that Germany is not dangerous so long as there exists against her a united and closed front of all peace loving nations.

"It is for these reasons that Poland looks with some anxiety at the present state of relations among the Great Powers. In their unity we see the guarantee of peace and our own safety. . . For this reason the full success of the Conference of the Great Powers in London is much to be desired. . . . Let us all trust that the unity of the Great Powers and the unity of the United Nations which endured through the last war with such fruitful results will be preserved."

pointment of Lucy Jordan and Bill Mackie as temporary UNC delegates to the new legislative council. They are charged with the duty of representing the University on the interim governing body of the legislative assembly until a regular slate can be elected by the Debate council, which traditionally sponsors UNC delegations to the legislatures.

Miss Jordan and Mackie declared last night they had received no official word on what action they should take in light of the planned buildings board meeting today.

"I think we should have representation at the meeting," Mackie said, but he indicated that no plans for such had been made.

that they are daring and sometimes wreckless in nature.

The concensus of opinion about the game changed as often during the contest as did the Tar Heel offensive and defensive teams. First, it looked as if the Carolina boys would run wild; then that they would just run to a point; then at the half, it looked like the makings of a scoreless tie; after three quarters it was sure to be; late in the game it was developing into a Tar Heel rout, and at the close of the contest Tar Heel footballers had turned to thoughts of Duke, while Tar Heel fans wondered how the Terps had held their idols as long as they did. Who ever said weather was a great equalizer, certainly knew what the score was. For the stragglers, it was 19-0, Ca'lina.

Washington was none too receptive to the Tar Heel followers, constantly fearing possible damage to life and limb. It was the greatest march on the capitol since the Veteran Bonus issue in the early twenties.

ALL IN ALL, it looks as if no one actually profited from the ball game, but the weather and the laundry man.
