DIED.

Suddenly, on Saturday, 25th September, at Magnolia, N. C., of disease of the heart, Mrs EMILY NEWBURY, wife of F. A. Newbury, in the 5th year of her age.

The subject of the above notice had but a short time before returned to her home from the North, where she had been very ill, and was now apparently restored from immediate danger. She had spent the day preceding her death in the greenhouse and conservatory arranging the plants which she dearly loved and preparing for the coming winter. Towards evening she had a sudden attack, and before the next morning dawned, she had fallen asleep in Jesus. Though her death was sudden, it did not find her unprepared. She was no stranger to sorrow, having, one by one, been bereft of all her children, some of whom had lived long enough to give abundant promise of domestic happiness and earthly enjoyment. But her sore trials were borne with fortitude and resignation, and the pure gold of her Christian character came forth brighter from its trial in the furnace of affliction. The estimation in which she was held by the community was attested by the crowds that followed her remains to "the narrow house made for all living," and husband and relatives and friends are consoled by the assurance that "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." Com.

In this city, on Thursday, 21st inst., at 2 o'clock, Dr. WILLIAM A. BEMRY, in the 72d year of his age.

The Novel of the Season! CHRISTIAN REIDS' "A QUESTION OF HONOR."

"A Question of Honor, by Christian Reid, is praised by the press as a work highly creditable of American literature. The subjoined extracts therefrom very favorable criticisms:

From the Philadelphia Press.

"A new work of fiction by Christian Reid is always acceptable . . . 'A Question of Honor,' is a story of Southern society, with a well constructed and well-sustained plot, and with a finish which will be unanticipated by most readers."

From the New Haven Register.

"An admirably-told story, full of incident and plot, that are in no respect overstrained, and carrying intense interest as the threads of the narrative are caught up and joined together."

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"The story is a charming one, and is fully worthy of the author's reputation; indeed, it has assured to us the best and noblest of all that she has yet written."

From the Boston Globe.

"Exquisitely clear in style and elevated in tone, and is worth more than one careful reading.

From the Utica Herald.

"The author has wrought with care, and with a good ethical and artistic purpose, and these are the essential needs in the building up of an American literature."

From the Boston Gazette.

"As a contribution to American fiction, 'A Question of Honor,' will more than maintain the already enviable reputation of its author."

From the Buffalo Courier.

"The author of 'Valerie Aylmer' is one of the most successful of those who have tried to construct novels out of the crude material of American life."

APPLETONS' AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA. New Revised Edition. Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with several thousand Engravings and Maps.

THE work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA was completed in 1863, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States, and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editors and publishers to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitle THE AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want.

The movement of political affairs has kept pace with the discoveries of science, and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the conveniences and refinements of social life. Great wars and consequent revolutions have occurred, involving national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our own country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily been ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorers of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important sieges maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, but which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editors to bring down the information to the latest possible dates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the newest inventions in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress of political and historical events.

This work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination.

None of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming in fact a new cyclopædia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater secondary experience, and with such improvement in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater facility and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and of natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture, and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than embellishment no pains have been spared to render their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopædia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to Subscribers only by Subscription payable on delivery of each volume. It will be completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.
