Responds to memorandum

Stallings hits student fee policy

by Jessica Hanchar
Staff Writer

Student Body President Joe Stallings Sunday raised several objections to the present University student fees policy, citing "specific administrative problems" arising from "the added needless step in the bureaucracy created by the new system."

His objections came in response to a memorandum from Richard H. Robinson, assistant to Consolidated University (CU) President William C. Friday, to all CU student body presidents asking for objections to the policy.

Student Government funds from student activities fees are presently kept in trust fund accounts by the University administration. From 1932 until last February, however, the money was kept in a bank account operated by the Student Activities Fund Office.

The University argued the new system "was the only way the University could be accountable for that money," Stallings said. "Since they collected the money, they felt they had to know where it went."

If any objections were raised, Robinson told the presidents in the memorandum, he proposed a meeting where the presidents could discuss the objections. At that meeting, the presidents would decide which objections to take to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, Robinson said.

The Executive Committee upheld the administration's policy July 9 but said it would reconsider the policy if enough objections were raised against it.

"The present policy does need reviewing and reconsideration," Stallings said.

He outlined three main objections to the present policy.

"First of all, I do not feel all of the alternatives had been pursued," he said. "The University can be accountable and still keep the money in the Student Activities Fund Office. But that avenue has never been seriously considered.

"There have never been any serious allegations brought against the Fund Office since its beginning in 1932," he added. "But rather than correct part of the system, they abolished all of it."

His second objection was to "specific, administrative problems" with the system. For example, not all summer school fees were reported to Student Government last summer until the sessions were over.

"Student Government could not use the money coming to them because they did not know it was coming to them," he said.

He also objected to the "added needless step in the bureaucracy." Rather than receiving a check directly from the fund office, Student Government requisitions must be transferred to the trust fund and back to the fund office before they are approved.

"Instead of taking one day to get a check, it now takes five days," Stallings siad. "The added step is needless because the accounting procedures are not as thorough in the trust funds office as they were in the Student Activities Fund Office."

Stallings added, "If the University must be accountable to student fees, they can be. There are procedures that could be worked out with the Student Activities Fund Office."

Day-care center fights to continue operations

by William March
Staff Writer

When university employes went on strike two years ago, the women employes said one of their greatest needs was a good, low-cost day-care center.

Many of these women employes were heads of households – they had to work to support their young children. But because of their limited incomes, they could not pay to have someone take care of their children during the day.

At that time, a women's liberation group on campus submitted to the University a proposal for such a day-care center, asking use of a vacated campus building.

The university denied their request for the building, but they started the center anyway. The Community School for People Under Six now operates in the basement of the First Baptist Church in Chapel Hill.

At first glance, it doesn't look impressive. There is a large main room, usually pretty noisy since people under six are not noted for quiescence and a small kitchen.

But because it houses 40 people under six who probably wouldn't have anywhere else to go all day, its contribution to the community is important.

The school takes tuition on an ability-to-pay basis. The fees they charge, for an 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. program including two hot meals, range from $30 to $75 per month. Most of the families involved pay $30.

The school is still struggling to survive financially. It is presently almost $700 in debt and must pay off its debts to qualify for U.S. Department of Agriculture food subsidies.

Patti Paddock, one of the seven paid staff members at the school, is a graduate student in special education. "As far as I know," she said, "we are the only center in town that operates on an ability-to-pay basis, and the only one that serves breakfast.

"Last year, three-fourths of our children were from fatherless homes. This year, more than a third are. Many of the mothers would have to quit work or discontinue their educations if it weren't for this center."

Miss Paddock said the school must turn down a lot of applicants "because of lack of money and staff members."

Not all of the staff members are paid, however, and the school badly needs more volunteers to take care of the children.

"Besides providing a day-care center," said Paul Jackson, a UNC senior and staff member, "we are trying to provide an atmosphere that will orient these children to success."

Jackson said many of the children have "seen their fathers leave home for good, and their mothers have to go to work every day. Some of them, as a result, feel insecure about thier adult friends."

But Jackson described the children as "on the whole, very healthy, nearly all of them."

He especially wants to help the black children there to learn self-respect as blacks, and though he has worked there only three months, says he has already seen tangible success.

At this point several groups of people under six, who had been outside for thier daily constitutional, exploded back into the room. Conversation became a little difficult.

"Eventually," Miss Paddock said, "we'd like to move the school into a larger building and begin to accept older children. But right now we're still fighting just to stay in operation."

Dean Smith to preview basketball

An extra showing of "A Preview of Carolina Basketball with Dean Smith" has been scheduled for 9 p.m. on Thursday Nov. 18. The original 8 p.m. show has sold out.

The presentation is sponsored by the Carolina Union Recreation Committee, and will include a preview of the coming season, filmed highlights from last year's N.I.T. with comments by Dean Smith, and a question and answer period.

Alan Mann, chairman of the Union Recreation Committee, said yesterday, "With the upcoming season, typical UNC enthusiasm, and the high pre-season rankings, we want students to become more a part of the team earlier in the season through this activity."

The show is free, but tickets must be picked up at the Union information desk.

THIS SEASON FOLLOW THE TAR HEELS
toward an A.C.C. championship
IN
The College Basketball News

A new and complete weekly covering eight conferences (including the ACC) rating the top 100 teams each issue.

Time is short – so don't miss the first issue . . .

SUBSCRIBE NOW!
Just $3.75 for 17 BIG Weeks

Send check or money order to:
H.P. Publishing Company
P. O. Box 335
Athens, Ohio

☐ Payment enclosed
☐ Bill me later

Name _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

The Daily Tar Heel is published by the University of North Carolina Student Publications Board, daily except Sunday, examination periods, vacations and summer periods.

Offices are at the Student Union building, Univ. of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514. Telephone numbers: News, Sports – 933-1011; 933-1012; Business, Circulation, Advertising – 933-1163.

Subscription rates: $10.00 per year; $5.00 per semester.

Second class postage paid at U.S. Post Office in Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Student Legislature shall have powers to determine the Student Activities fee and to appropriate all revenue derived from the Student Activities Fee (1.1.1.4 of the Student Constitution). The budgetary appropriation for the 1970-71 academic year is $28,292.50 for undergraduates and $4,647.50 for graduates as the subscription rate for the student body ($1.84 per student based on fall semester enrollment figures).

The Daily Tar Heel reserves the right to regulate the typographical tone of all advertisements and to revise or turn away copy it considers objectionable.

The Daily Tar Heel will not consider adjustments or payments for any advertisement involving major typographical errors or erroneous insertion unless notice is given to the Business Manager within (1) one day after the advertisement appears, or within one day of the receiving of tear sheets, of subscription of the paper. The Daily Tar Heel will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of an advertisement scheduled to run several times. Notices for such correction must be given before the next insertion.

Campus Calendar

There will be a meeting tonight of the Art and Architecture Committee of the Carolina Symposium, 7 p.m. Carolina Union. Anyone interested is invited.

The UNC Laboratory Theatre will present two one-acts, Chekhov's "The Bear" and "Marriage Proposal" through tonight in Graham Memorial, room 06. There is no admission charge. Curtain is 8 p.m.

Tryouts for Carolina Readers Production "Pooh and Company" will be held in 103 Bingham Monday Nov. 15 from 7-9:30 and on Tuesday, Nov. 16 from 4-6.

Alpha Epsilon Delta will meet today at 7 p.m. in room 106 of The Basic Sciences Bldg. All members are urged to attend.

The UNC Fellowship of Christian Athletes will meet tonight at 8 in the Ram's Room of Kenan Field House. A film will be shown and everyone is invited.

There will be a meeting of the UNC Young Democrats Club Tuesday at 7:30. Rep. John Ingram will speak. All interested students are invited to attend.

"Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," the Carolina Playmakers third production of the season, will run from Tuesday through Sunday. Tickets are available in Graham Memorial and at Ledbetter-Pickard's downtown for $2.50 a ticket.

Tired of term papers and backlog reading? Put some excitement into the weekend before exams. Sign up to work as a salesman at the Y International Bazaar, Dec. 3-5. Those who indicated interest before Nov. 8 please come by the Y office to sign up for time and place.

Dr. Loren Eiseley will speak at 8 p.m. today in Hill Hall. The topic will be "The Search for Man."

Who was Baha'u'llah? If you don't know, come to the Union at 8 p.m. Mondays or 213 Purefoy Rd. at 8 p.m. Tuesdays to find out.

History 47, an introductory course in Latin American history, will be taught by Prfs. J.S. Tulchin and R.L. Seckinger at 10 MWF, using debates, guest speakers and simulations. The course is open to all students.

The U.N. Seminar trip organizational meeting will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Union.

Girls interested in bowling, playing pocket billiards or ping pong may be able to represent UNC in the Annual Regional Recreation Tournament, Feb. 10-12, in Blacksburg, Va. For more information, call 933-1157, or come by Suite A of the Union.

Carolina Union Calendar has which Transcendental Meditation lecture scheduled for Thursday. The lecture has been changed to Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Union.

All those who participated in the Joyce Kilmer Forest protest weekend: remember the affadavits for the proposed wilderness area must be sent to Ted Snyder by today.

Preregistration sessions for spring semester will be held for undergraduate Education majors today, 4:30-6 p.m., in Peabody.

The North Carolina Society of the Archaeological Institute of America will present an illustrated lecture by Lanny Bell of the Department of Egyptology, University of Chicago, Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in Zener Auditorium on the Duke campus.

FOUND: Female black and white [illegible] with collar, in University Gardens. Call 942-7687.

FOUND: Brown glasses in black case between fire station and University Garden. Claim at DTH office.

FOUND: Man's watch in library. Call 929-5142.

LOST: Denim jacket at Tull concert. Call 933-6157.

Will the person who took basketball [illegible] from Woollen Gym please return it to the gym. Otherwise I have to pay $15. No questions asked. Bob James.

LOST: Brown wallet near PO. Call Paul Vogel, 966-3297, or come by 17 Old [illegible]. Reward.

LOST: Pair of thick ski mittens, left in [illegible] or music classroom. Call 929-2832.

LOST: Pair brown glasses in light brown case. Call 929-2832.

LOST: Wire-rimmed glasses in brown [illegible] case, near Kenan Stadium last Saturday. Contact 208 Manly, 966-5432.

LOST: ID and athletic pass at Clemson game. Return to P.O. Box 569, Chapel Hill.

LOST: Gold wire-rimmed glasses between Scuttlebutt and Beard Hall. Call 968-[illegible]. Reward.

LOST: Creme colored pocketbook in undergraduate library. Call 933-4689. Reward.

LOST: Dundas plaid scarf. Call Deborah Ingram, 966-5333. Reward.

LOST: White gold ladies' Bulova watch with two diamonds on setting. Call 933-[illegible]. Reward.

ZOOM ZOOM

GOOD LUNCHEON SPECIALS
11:30 - 2:30

Mon. Country Style Steak
Tues. ¼ BBQ CHICKEN
Wed. Roast Leg of Lamb
Thurs. Beef Parmagiana w/ Spaghetti
Fri. Fish Fillet or Hot Pastrami on rye

97¢

$1.30

SOUP AND SALAD WILL BE SERVED WITH ANY OF THE $.97 LUNCHEONS FOR . . . $1.30

We serve over
500,000 North Carolinians.
One at a time.

Wachovia.

Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation

OLD WORLD
GIFT CENTER
153 E. Franklin

What do we have for you lately?

COME AND SEE

FUR RUGS AND FLOKATIS
CASWELL-MASSEY CORNER
CANDLE CREATIONS
FAR EAST BAZAAR
FLOWERS AND FERNS
BASKETS AND BOTTLES
MUSIC BOXES
SWEDISH HANGINGS
HALLOWEEN NONSENSE
SALE ON DANSK ORECAST

OPEN FRIDAY EVENINGS,
SUNDAY AFTERNOONS
REGULAR HOURS
9:00 AM–6:00 PM

Making love is your business. Keeping it private is ours.

Whether you live in a big city with its crowded drugstores, or in a small town where people know each other so well, obtaining male contraceptives without embarrassment can be a problem.

Now, Population Planning Associates has solved the problem . . . by offering reliable, famous-brand male contraceptives through the privacy of the mail. Popular brands like Trojan and Sultan. Crest-skins and Naturalambs, made of super-sensitive animal membrane. The pre-shaped NuForm. And many more. All are electronically tested and meet strict FDA standards.

We'll be glad to send you our free illustrated brochure which describes the products and services that we have been bringing to 10,000 regular customers for nearly two years. Or send just $3 for a sampler of a dozen contraceptives – three each of the brands described above – plus our brochure. Money back if not delighted!

For free brochure or $3 sampler mailed in plain package, write:

Population Planning Associates, Dept. N-237
105 No. Columbia, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514