HER LOVERS.

My first—my very first—his name was Will;
A handsome fellow—fair, with curling hair,
And love'y eyes, I have his locket still,
He went to Galveston and settled there—
At least, I heard so. Ah, dear me, dear me!
How terribly in love he used to be!

The second (Robert Hill), he told his love
The first night that we met. 'Twas at a ball—
A foolish boy! He carried off my glove,
We sat out half the dances in the hall,
And flirted in the most outrageous way.
Oh, me! how mother scolded all next day!

The third woke up my heart. From night till morn
From morn till night again, I dreamed of him,
I received upon rose but he had worn;
Jessica said I kissed it; it is pictured in Jessica's album. Strange that I can feel the old, old flame
Burn for my cousin Paul—that was his name.

The fourth and fifth were brothers—twins of course,
Kind divided, conversation was far from easy to use; there's no
Use in telling you that—in the old days—but what use could I
My heart was still with Paul, he had gone
Yacht sailing with the Misses Garleton!

He never cared for me—I found that out—
Despite his foolish clinging of my hope;
A few months proved it clear beyond a doubt;
I steeled my heart; I would not pine or mope,
But masked myself in gayety, and went
To grace his wedding when the cards were sent.

So these were all my loves. My husband? Oh,
I met him down in Florida one Fall—
Rich, middle aged, and prosy, as you know;
He asked me—I accepted; that is all.
A kind, good soul; he worships me; but then
I never count him with the other men.

Mr. Barker's Picture.

'Your charge against Mr Barker, the artist here,' said the magistrate, 'is assault and battery, I believe?' 'Yes, sir.' 'And your name is——' 'Potts! I am art critic of the Weekly Spy.' 'State your case.' 'I called at Mr Barker's studio upon his invitation to see his great picture, just finished, of 'George Washington cutting down the cherry tree with his hatchet.' Mr Barker was expecting to sell it to Congress for fifty thousand dollars. He asked me what I thought of it, and after I had pointed out his mistake in making the handle of the hatchet twice as thick as the tree, and in turning the head of the hatchet around, so that George was cutting the tree down with the hammer end, I asked him why he foreshortened George's leg so as to make it look as if his left foot was upon the mountain on the other side of the river.' 'Did Mr Barker like it kindly?' asked the justice. 'Well, he looked a little glum—that's all. And then when I asked him why he put a guinea-pig up in the tree, and why he painted the guinea-pig with horns, he said that it was not a guinea-pig, but a cow, and that it was not in the tree, but in the background. Then I said that if I had been painting George Washington, I should not have given him the complexion of a salmon-brick. I should not have given him two thumbs on each hand, and I should have tried not to slue his right eye around so that he could see around the back of his head to his left ear. And Barker said, 'Oh' wouldn't you?' Sarcastic, your honor. And I said, 'No, I wouldn't;' and I would not have painted oak leaves on a cherry tree; and I wouldn't have the spectators in doubt as to whether the figure off by the woods was a factory chimney, or a steamboat, or George Washington's father taking a smoke.' 'Which was it?' asked the magistrate. 'I don't know. Nobody will ever know. So Barker asked me what I'd advise him to do. And I told him I thought his best chance was to abandon the Washington idea, and to fix the thing up somehow to represent 'The Boy who stood on the Burning Deck.' I told him he might paint the grass red to represent the flames, and daub over the trees so's it would look like the mast, and pull George's foot to this side of the river so's it would rest somewhere on the burning deck, and maybe he might reconstruct that factory chimney, or whatever it was, and make it the captain, while he could arrange the guinea pig to do for the captain's dog.' 'Did he agree?' 'He said the idea didn't strike him. So then I suggested he might turn it into Columbus discovering America. Let George stand for Columbus and the tree be turned into a native, and the hatchet made to answer for a flag, while the mountains in the background would answer for the rolling billows of the ocean. He said he'd be hanged if it should. So I mentioned that it might perhaps pass for the execution of Mary Queen of Scots. Put George in black for the headsman, bend over the tree and put a frock on it for Mary, let the hatchet stand, and work in the guinea pig and the factory chimney as mourners. Just as I had got the words out of my mouth, Barker knocked me clean through the picture. My head tore out Washington's near leg, and my right foot carried away about four miles of the river. We had it over and over on the floor for awhile, and finally Barker whipped. I am going to take the law of him in the interests of high art.' So Barker was bound over, and Mr Potts went down to the office of the Spy to write up his criticism.

Baltimore American.

A Remarkable Find.

The story is told of a clerk of the firm of Stewart & Co, commission merchants No 46 South Howard street, who it is related, on Saturday night found in a chicken coop which he had just sold to an Arab two express packages, one containing $5,000 and the other $2,500. The discovery of course aroused great surprise and Mr Stewart immediately set to work to find how or where the money got into the coop and to whom it belongs. The packages were taken to the Baltimore and Ohio express office as the coop had reached Baltimore from the West through that channel. The matter was carefully traced up and finally unravelled with the following result: But a few days before the money was entrusted at Benwood, Ohio, to the charge of the express agent running from that point to Baltimore. The express agent, by an act of supreme carelessness, laid the packages of money on the chicken-coop at Benwood, and they must have fallen inside. He apparently forgot all about them and it was not until he reached Baltimore that the loss was discovered. The company considered the carelessness of the express agent sufficient for his dismissal. The find of the money was certainly remarkable.

A Sure Cure for Piles.

A SURE CURE for the blind, bleeding, itching and ulcerated piles has been discovered by Dr. William (an Indian remedy), called Dr. William's Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst old chronic cases of twenty-five and thirty years' standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electuaries do more harm than good. William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for Piles, itching of the private parts and nothing else

"I consulted physicians in Philadelphia, Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and this city, and spent hundreds of dollars, and found no relief until I obtained a box of Dr. William's Indian Ointment some four months ago, and it has cured me completely."

JOSEPH M. RYDER, Cleveland, O.

"Has done me more good than all the medicine I ever tried, and have spent more than $100 with doctors, besides medicines I am cure cost me more than $40."

DAVID SPARLING, Ingraham, Ill.

"Have suffered twenty years with itching and ulcerated piles, having used every remedy that came to my notice without benefit until I used Indian Ointment and received immediate relief.

JAMES CARROL, (an old miner)
Tecoma, Nev.

No Pile Remedy ever gained such rapid favor and extensive sale. Sold by all wholesale and retail druggists. For sale by J. C. Munds and T. S. Burbank.
