For the mere asking, a bulletin on canning will be sent you by Mrs. Jane McKinnon, Raleigh, N. C.

Beginning with Monday, May 28, the tea room will be opened every evening. Drop in—don't forget the sandwiches will be served if you wish quiet, cool and inviting welcome which awaits you. Iced tea and sandwiches will be served if you wish. There will be other attractions from time to time—go in and see what is to be seen.

Remember that you want to get your ticket for the Chautauqua as early as possible. Look over the program and see if it isn't worth the price.

Notice that the children from 6 to 14 inclusive have a morning session given to amusements. There will be a supervisior, specially trained at Teacher's College, Columbia University, N. Y. in charge of the play ground—don't let your boy or girl miss these five days of pleasure for the sake of saving a dollar which you will probably spend on something for less in value than your child's happiness should be.

RED MEN HAVE BIG TIME

Last Friday night, May 18th, Chicora Tribe, No. 183 Imp. O. R. M. had an interesting meeting when they administered the warrior's degree to a number of applicants. The Smithfield tribe was invited to come over and witness the work and the following responded to the invitation: Sachem Ellis, C. A. Martin, Ira Keen and Roy Bailey.

After the degree work was over and business dispensed with, short talks were made by the visiting brothers and members of the local tribe. Before adjournment refreshments were served by P. A. Parker, of Dunn Cafe, which were thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The meeting was one of the most interesting ever held which is sufficient evidence that the local tribe is wide-a-wake and enjoying an era of fraternal prosperity.

He who has conferred a kindness should be silent; he who has received one should speak of it.—Seneca.

To help upward and onward a young man of good character, good purpose, good ability and good health—is the best investment on this earth."—James J. Hill.

MUSIC CLUB

Vocal selections from the opera by Miss Iva Pearson. Also victrola selections from Lucia.

This was the last meeting of the year and the success of the past meetings has been due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. J. Lloyd Wade, chairman of the music department of the Woman's Club.

An ice course was served.

Who's Who Club

Mrs. Russell Young was the hostess to the last meeting of the "Who's Who" on last Saturday evening. Officers for next year were elected and all business matters settled.

NOTES

The drama of mother love, never old, is the theme of "Heart Strings," the Red Feather five reeler about which critics unanimously agree and which will be seen at the White Way Theatre on Monday evening (next).

"Even as you and I," Leonie loved her daughter, and when she learned that she could not have her, save by dragging her down to her level, she gave her up, with the man she grew to love. How the mighty transformation was brought about in a being as craven as she was beautiful, furnishes scene after scene, unsurpassed for dramatic intensity, pathos and heart interest.

Supporting the featured player, Allan Holubar, are such artists as Francelia Billington, Basil Byron, Maud George, Irene Hunt, Mrs. Witting and Charles Cummings. Holubar is responsible for the direction of the picture, after the scenario of Fred Myton.
