JOSIAH TURNER, Jr., EDITOR.

From the San Francisco Chronicle, Dec. 28.

KLOPEMANIA—A SINGULAR CASE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Three or four months ago, a woman who gave the name of Kate Smith, was arrested in connection with several extensive larcenies which had at various times been committed at the residences of some of our citizens. A noticable fact in connection with them was, that at about the same time a woman, dressed completely in black had been seen around the premises. With this clue the detectives went after "The Woman in Black." She was arrested and admitted all that was charged against her.

She gave the name of Kate Smith, but was known under several aliases. She is twenty-eight years of age, about four feet six inches in height, and is very prepossessing in appearance. She has good conversational powers and converses on all subjects with great fluency. She is a native of Ireland, and came to this country when quite young. Fourteen years ago she was first arrested on a trifling offence and has since been frequently before police tribunals in New York. This was kept up until a few years ago, when she made her crowning effort by stealing $18,000 in United States Treasury notes from a banking firm in New York. For this she was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment in the State Prison at Sing Sing for two years and six months. She was subsequently pardoned out and about a year ago came to this State. During the trial in the County Court yesterday two fine looking children were standing by her side. They are of a family of three, all of whom are in the city.

The first witness called to the stand for the prosecution was Mrs. Dannenberg. She testified to having lost a large quantity of wearing apparel and a set of diamond jewelry valued at $1,500; it was presented by her husband; did not know what he paid for it, but assume that $1,500 was its lowest value; do not know whose money paid for it, mine or my husband's; am a sole trader.

The chief of the detective police of the city testified to having arrested the prisoner, and stated that she had confessed to the Dannenberg larceny, and also to several others. The aggregate of the different robberies was about $20,000. Several other witnesses testified to the confession.

The prisoner was then placed on the stand, and testified as follows:—

My name is Kate White; I am twenty eight years of age; have been married eleven years; left the East one year ago in October; from my earliest remembrance I have at times been addicted to stealing; nearly always stole jewelry; sometimes could manage to overcome this desire for a year at a time; again it would come upon me with such force that there was no resisting it; I cannot tell how much I have stolen in this city—a great lot; since I was fifteen or sixteen years of age I have been subject to convulsions, the children in court are mine; the other is my mother's; when arrested some keys were found on me; do not know if they are skeleton keys; when I entered Mrs. Dannenberg's room I went to the bureau and took the articles that were found; took no diamonds; never saw any; found the key to the lady's room on a hook in the hall; opened the bureau with a key of my own; I was convicted of robbery in New York and sent to Sing Sing for two and a half years; was sent for a boat robbery; the amount stolen was $18,000; was afterwards pardoned on the ground of insanity; it was so stated in the pardon; the feeling comes over me with trembling and at it I can not work I have to leave it and steal something; never plan thefts; was only purchased once; I stole silverware from Mr. Ayers; erased the name as I was going to keep the spoons; in New York I was always excused when my misfortunes was made known; my husband often paid for what I took; have always owned up my thefts; sometimes destroy the stolen property, and often gave it away; had an uncle that was known as "Mad Larry;" he was so called for his semi-insane manner, never got over $300 for all I have stolen; the bonds were stolen from a man by the name of Haffner; was going home from work when I went into his office and took them; I threw $1,300 into the East river; when I was arrested in this city I did not tell Captain Lees that I was a fool for surrendering the bonds, and that I would have a "stake" when I got clear; Captain Lees has been very unkind to me since my arrest; could speak of three weeks during which he subjected me to ——, but I do not wish to state what; when I threw the bonds into Fulton ferry I was in the custody of the owner; I never stole in the night.

Mrs. Dooley, the mother of the prisoner, was then sworn. She testifiedy to the same facts and circumstances relating to insanity as her daughter. She stated that the daughter had told her that most of the articles were presented from her beaux; her real name was Ellen Gibbons; her husband was on the police in New York; was dismissed on account of his dissolute habits; she has always been subject to these attacks.

A speck of war in the East. The Egyptian Viceroy persists in treating with contempt the demands of his suzerain at Constantinople, and yesterday the rage of the Sublime Porte ran over. He has forwarded to Alexandria a violent message, commanding Ismail Pacha to abandon his iron clad fleet. If the Viceroy feels strong enough to strike for independence, there will shortly be throat cutting in the Levant. The extraordinary coolness with which he has hectored his peppery master indicates a mind contented with the prospects of a future struggle.

Fossil Lake, in the Cascade Mountains in one of the greatest curiosities in Oregon. It is ten by twenty miles, and seems like a gigantic well scooped out in the heart of the mountains. The walls are nearly perpendicular, average two thousand feet in height, and run sheer into the water, leaving no beach at all. The lake is never ruffled by the wind, and its depth is unknown, as thus far no person has been upon its surface.

A Novel Theory—A Mr. Walker puts forth the theory that indigestion is the cause of corns and proceeds to sustain that view by giving his personal experience. When he was moderate in diet, his feet ever so tight shoes did not hurt, but on dieting heavily the pain of the corns became intolerable.
