THE TROUBLES IN THE SOUTH.

[From the New York Herald.]

The troubles at Richmond, Virginia, in Tennessee and Georgia, and at some other parts of the South, are giving the Administration some uneasiness. It hardly knows how to act.

The chief difficulty is that there is too much reconstruction and too much military in the South. Five years, or thereabouts, the agony of reconstruction has been kept up for political purposes, when it might have been, and ought to have been ended in one year, or two years, at farthest. In the effort of the dominant Radical party to secure the negro vote, and by that the balance of political power, military authority was maintained much longer than was necessary. The ruling faction has looked to that, consequently, for support. The negroes, under the influence of ambitious and evil minded carpet baggers, have been led to believe that the political power of the South belonged to them, and was in their hands.

This naturally placed many of them in antagonism to the Conservative white population. As the States have become restored to the Union, and the white native population have shown their power, the negroes and their carpet-bag leaders feel disappointed. They forgot that the white population was much the largest, and that throughout the greater part of the South this population had a majority of votes. As long as the States were unreconstructed and under military authority the Radicals and their negro allies had their own way to a great extent; but as soon as civil authority was restored the white Southerners began to take the control. This is the secret of the disturbances in Richmond, of the clamor for reconstruction over again in Georgia, and for the demand of the Radicals for a military government over Tennessee.

The prolonged military rule over the South has had the effect of making General Canby and other commanders mistake their duty. Though these gentlemen may be governed by the best motives, they are influenced by their military training and ideas. They cannot understand that when a State has been restored the civil law should be supreme. In the trouble at Richmond, for example, General Canby should have taken no action or have assumed co-authority but to suppress insurrection when called upon by the civil power. In any dispute about the formality of an election or the right of parties to hold office he should not have interfered, but have left that to the courts. And election to office is to be taken as a bona fide fact, though carried by fraud, till examined and acted upon by the proper civil authority. This is the way such things are managed in the Northern States, and there is no other safe way compatible with the laws and civil liberty.

The same principle applies to Georgia and Tennessee, though Georgia, not being fully reconstructed, is in rather an exceptional position. With regard to Tennessee, a State in as perfect relations with the Union as New York or Pennsylvania, it is preposterous and dangerous to talk of reconstructing that State or of placing it under military authority, unless in the case of positive insurrection. If Tennessee can be reconstructed or placed under military rule, why not New York, Massachusetts, or any other Northern State? All the States are on the same footing. If this infamous practice were to be admitted no State would be safe. Any political party in power could destroy its political equality and rights, and there would be an end to civil liberty. This Government would be the most perfect centralized despotism.

No, better let the factions in the South fight it out among themselves; better let the two races try their strength, even by some bloodshed than establish a despotism either under the military or a political oligarchy. The negroes of the South have acquired all the political rights and privileges of the whites. They ought to be contented. It is absurd to suppose that eight or ten millions of the white race are to be the political slaves of or to be controlled by three or four millions of semi-barbarians, who hardly know their right hands from their left. In any contest the negroes must go to the wall. This is seen in the troubles at Richmond and elsewhere. It is positively cruel in the heartless carpet-bag politicians to lead those poor people to destruction. We hope General Grant will exercise his good common sense in these Southern troubles, and, above all, will maintain the supremacy of the civil laws.

AN amusing paragraph states that in Vandenburg county, Indiana, one of the red children of the forest is officiating as a Methodist minister. After he has finished his sermon he delights the congregation by giving the warwhoop and executing a scalp dance, with which benedictory performance the brethren are dismissed full of pugnacity and piety. Isn't this just the kind of missionary-embassador to send with the pipe of peace to our rebellious tribes? To be sure, he would have to begin with the whoop and scalp dance. This would touch the native heart and prepare it to acquiesce in a good solid treaty on Christian principles. The Quaker agents may whoop, but they cannot in conscience dance; and the Indiana man might be had uncommonly cheap.

Greeley went to Washington to lobby for the appointment of Bailey, the recent defaulter, and Vulkin, Callicott, another of the rascals whose appointment he labored indefatigably to secure, is now serving out his sentence in the State prison for stealing the people's money. Either Greeley is a very poor judge of men, or else he works for scoundrels for pay.

There is nothing purer than honesty, nothing sweeter than charity, nothing warmer than love, nothing brighter than virtue, nothing more steadfast than faith. These united in one mind, form the purest, the greatest, the holiest, the highest, the holiest and the most steadfast faith.

A Rutland, Vermont clergyman has abolished the hard vial from his choir because it made him think of dancing. A minister dancing to the airy notes of a bass viol would be a lively sight.

Said a learned astronomer, when talking to a bright eyed girl about ratchets: "Did you ever see a lunar bow, miss?" "I have seen beaux by moonlight, if that is what you mean," was the sly rejoinder.
