THE SENTINEL.

NARRATIVE OF COLONEL DAVID FANNING

Written by Himself, Detailing Astonishing Events in North Carolina From 1775 to 1783.

I had information of the rebel, Col'n Wade with 450 militia, was, then, on his march to attack Col. McNeal, who had assembled 70 of the loyal militia of Bladen, and then lay on the side of Drowning creek. I instantly dispatched, an express, to know his situation, and offering assistance; in three hours, I received for answer, he would be glad to see me, and my party. I marched as directed, and by day light, arrived with 155 men. Our pickets was fired upon; and retreated into camp, having exchanged several shots with those of the Rebels. We had information they were crossing a bridge on Drowning creek, about three miles off when the pickets fired on them, and that there was 420 men crossed that bridge. I immediately ordered all my men to arms, and counted them; which in number was 225, horse and foot; I then marched immediately to attack them; when I found my little party I felt great vacancies in order to appear as numerous as possible, and to prevent their turning my flanks. We attacked them at 11 o'clock; and engaged them an hour and a half; on my ordering a charge; they retreated. We persued them 7 miles and took 53 prisoners; 4 of which died that night. On our return we found 19 dead; and the next day several came in and surrendered, all of whom were wounded, and we had reason to suppose that several died in the swamps, by accounts, we received from those who came in afterwards. Our loss was only 5 men wounded; one of which took 250 horses; most of which were loaded with effects they had plundered from the friends of Government; and as I had formerly ordered that whoever found concealed goods, of any kind should keep them; I now ordered that every man should keep that he had taken that day, after mounting, and equipping those 50; who were not mounted in the action. I then paroled the prisoners, excepting 30, which I sent to Wilmington, under a guard of Col. McNeal's men. Then, with my party, I marched that evening to Little river, 16 miles from McFall's mill; where the party returned, which had gone to Col'n Slingsby's assistance. The day following, I arrived at Coxe's Mill, where I issued the following advertisement; and circulated it through the country:—

"ADVERTISEMENT.

This is to let all persons know that do not make ready and repair immediately to camp, that their property shall be seized and sold at public sale; and if they are taken and brought into camp they shall be sent to Wilmington, as prisoners, and there, remain, as such, in the provost; and be considered as Rebels; also, if any rebel is willing to surrender and come in he shall reap the benefit of a subject.

DAVID FANNING
Col'n Com'g loyal Militia
Camp Coxe's mill 6th Sep 1781

On the 9th Sept. I was joined by Col'n McDugald of the Loyal Militia of Cumberland county, with 200 men; and Col. Hector McNeil, with his party from Bladen of 70 men; and in consequence of my advertisement I had also 135, who came in; and many found me afterwards.

I had previously determined within myself to take the Rebel, Governor Burke of North Carolina and I had a conversation with Maj. Craigg, on the subject. I now thought it, a favourable opportunity, as I found myself at the head of 950 men of my own Regiment; exclusive of McDugald and McNeil's regiments. I acquainted Major Rains, of my resolution, who approved of it. The rebel General John Butler, and Col. Robert Mayhin of the Continental line, lay within 40 miles of our encampment, on the Cape Fear river, It was supposed by my officers, that I intended to attack them. After marching 16 miles to Rocky river. I went a little distance, out of my road, to a friends house, for intelligence of the situation of the Rebels; during which time, the guide led my little army about two miles out of the way, towards General Butler. On my return, I was under the necessity of making my intentions known; and immediately directed my march to Hillsboro; I pushed all that day and the following night; At 7 o'clock on the morning of the 12th we entered the town in three divisions, and received several shots from different houses;—however, we lost none and suffered no damage, except one man wounded. We killed, fifteen, of the Rebels and wounded twenty; and took upwards of two hundred prisoners; amongst them was the Governor, his Council, and part of the Continental Colonels, several captains and subalterns, and seventy one continental soldiers out of a church. We proceeded to the Goal, and released thirty Loyalists, and British soldiers; one of which, was to have been hanged on that day. About 12 o'clock, I left Hillsboro; and proceeded Eighteen miles that night towards Coxe's Mill; in the morning I pursued my march about Eight miles further, to Lindsey's Mill on Cane creek, where Gen'l Butler and a party of rebels had concealed themselves. Col'n McNeal who had the advanced guard, had neglected to take the necessary precautions for our safety, and by information of Capt. McLain Cumberland county, Little river; and as soon as I had discovered the situation, we were in, and having so great a number of prisoners, I left my station, and pushed for the advanced guard; on my coming up with Col'n McNeal, I inquired the reason of his neglect; and before he could answer, we were fired upon by the rebels. They killed Eight men, among them was Col'n McNeal, who received three balls through his house. I then ordered a retreat back to where I left the prisoners, and after securing them, I made the necessary preparations to attack the enemy; and after engaging them four hours they retreated. I lost twenty seven men killed, and sixty, so badly wounded, that they could not be moved; besides thirty slightly, hurt so, that they could keep up with our main body. At the conclusion of this action, I received a shot in my left arm, which broke the bone in several pieces; my loss of blood was so great, that I was taken off my horse, and led to a secret place in the woods. I then sent Lieut. Webster, to my little army, for Col'n Arch McDugald, and Major John Blaine and Lt Col'n Arch McKay, to take command; & to send to Wilmington for instruments, as I was not able to take any command. I also desired that Major Balfour would return as soon as he could leave Col. McDugald; as I thought we might be the means of saving me from head of my enemies. These gentlemen conducted themselves in such a manner, I think they deserve the applause of every loyal subject, both for their valour and good conduct, as Col. Mayhin and Gen'l Butler pursued them all the way until they had Major Craigg coming to their assistance. They made their march good for 180 miles and never lost one prisoner, but introduced Thos. Burk, their Governor, and his regiment of rebels, to Major Craigg; who very well accepted them; and Major Craigg introduced his Excellency, and Regiment, to the worst Master. I am informed by letters from Col. Arch McDugal, dated 6th Aug 1789 that no provision has been made for him yet. Also, Major Rains, the 2d of Oct'r 1789 But I am in hope when the Government comes to be informed of the many services that they have done, they will consider them, and make some allowance for them I am personally acquainted with their services. Major John Rains, was the first man, that took up arms within North Carolina; and the last man with me, and took an active part in command in six and thirty skirmishes in N. C. (also Capt. George Rains.)

ROCKBRIDGE ALUM SPRINGS
VIRGINIA.
Open June 1st, 1873.

This favorite and celebrated Watering Place will offer additional attractions this season. It possesses a magnificent Ball Room, fine Billiard Rooms, Bowling Alley for ladies and for gentlemen, and a superb Croquet Ground. It will be kept in a style not surpassed anywhere in Virginia.

The waters of these special springs either cure or greatly relieve most cases of Scrofula, Indolent Consumption, Chronic Laryngitis, Chronic Diarrhea, Chronic Pneumonia, Chronic Dyspepsia, Chronic Dysentery. They are also a great value in those affections which are peculiar to the female constitution, and as an aperient, a tonic and a general restorative they are, perhaps, unrivaled amongst mineral waters. The Proprietor has provided for the lawns and ball room a first class band of music, and in general all the sources of amusement and recreation usually found at our best summer resorts will be at the command of the guests at "ROCKBRIDGE ALUM." The place is within from eleven to thirteen hours of Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, etc., by rail, all in daylight. Passengers leave the cars of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad at Goshen Depot, and now and elegant stage coaches, passing rapidly over a smooth and level road of only eight miles, set down the visitors at the springs to tea.

THE HOT SPRINGS,

BATH COUNTY, VIRGINIA,

HAVE BEEN IMPROVED AND REFITTED for the season of 1873. The waters vary in temperature from 50 to 116 degrees. The BATHS have for nearly a century been used in the treatment of Gout, Rheumatism, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Diseases of the Liver, Bladder, Skin and Womb, Old Injuries, Cutaneous Affections, Contraction of Muscles and Joints, Chronic Diarrhea, &c., and have attained world-wide celebrity for their efficacy in curing and relieving such diseases.

The bathing arrangements are extensive and complete, and include the new feature of MUD BATHS, which are now attracting the especial attention of the medical profession and invalids. The Drinking Waters include several varieties, among them a spring of chalybeate alum water equal if not superior to any of its kind in the United States.

These springs are easily accessible from the West via Cincinnati, thence by boat to Huntington, the terminus of the (recently completed) Chesapeake and Ohio railroad to Covington depot, and thence by stage 18 miles to the springs.

DIAMOND SPECTACLES.

The Spectacles are manufactured from "Minute Crystal Pebbles" melted together, and are called Diamond on account of their hardness and brilliancy. It is well known that Spectacles cut from Brazilian or rock pebbles are very injurious to the eye, because of their polarizing light. Having been tested with the polariscope, the diamond lenses have been found to admit fifteen per cent less heated rays than any other lenses. They are ground with great scientific accuracy, are free from chromatic aberrations, and produce a brightness and distinctness of vision not before attained in spectacles. Manufactured by the Spencer Optical Manufacturing Company, New York. For sale by responsible agents in every city in the Union.

E. Mahler, Jeweler and Optician, is Sole Agent for Raleigh, N. C., from whom they can only be obtained. No pedlers employed. Do not buy a pair without you see the trade mark.
