WITH THE AEF

40 Months Across The Pacific

By SPENCER DAVIS
(Substituting for Kenneth L. Dixon)

NEW YORK—(AP)—It takes little more than a day and a half to travel some 8,300 miles from Luzon's war front to San Francisco's home front.

In 40 hours from west to east you see the islands which Americans have fought and bled over these past 39 or 40 months.

Perhaps in years to come air travelers may doze and but vaguely remember the task forces, the bombings, the assault troops and the aviation engineers that made this skyway to the Orient possible. Right now it is impossible to forget. The scars are too fresh.

You leave Luzon in a Mitchell bomber carrying mail. Guns are fully manned. An alert watch is kept, although enemy aircraft, only a few short weeks ago based on the lush green island below, are mostly gone now.

In less than three hours you are at Tacloban airstrip, Leyte. The wreckage of bombers and fighters reminds that the fight there three months ago was not easy nor without cost.

The Red Cross canteen is crowded with fliers just returned from strikes over Japanese-held islands. Mopping up missions don't make headlines but they are constantly in progress.

From Leyte to Saipan you fly 1,400 miles in a new C-54 transport. The tired young lieutenant next to you is Alfred Fernande of San Antonio, Texas, who was on Mindanao in 1941 and has been fighting with the guerrillas ever since.

He is going home to a 30-day leave and about $15,000 back pay. "If it was a million I wouldn't like to earn it over again that way," he says with a wan smile. "The stories I could tell you. . ." But he falls asleep and you don't awaken him.

In a little more than seven hours you are on Saipan. Long rows of silver Superforts are lined up for the next smash at Tokyo.

Magnificent runways, hangars and administration buildings have replaced the battlegrounds of less than nine months ago.

An ATC traffic officer advises you to "hitch" a ride on a Liberator to Guam. "You'll have a better chance to catch a through plane to Pearl Harbor from there."

Also "hitching" is Brig. Gen. Herman Feldman, Washington, D. C., returning from a Leyte conference.

Intercommunication between planners of the joint Army-Navy staff of Admiral Nimitz with members of General MacArthur's staff is not uncommon. General Feldman is returning from such a mission.

Forty-five minutes later, Guam is another surprise. You know that Admiral Nimitz has made it headquarters. You also know that Japanese snipers occasionally make themselves troublesome, but you are hardly prepared to find six-lane highways and solidly built new buildings.

General Feldman is moving on to Pearl Harbor and invites you to accompany him in a Naval Air Transport service C54 flagship, as different from the transport you rode before as a Pullman is from a freight car.

The four great engines, capable of carrying six tons of cargo some 4,000 miles without setting down, are muffled by sound proofing. There is a rug. There are three bunks, a table and private lavoratory in one compartment and a score of soft-backed chairs in another.

Flagships carry ranking officers around the Pacific and are made comfortable.

From Guam to Honolulu by way of Kwajalein measures 4,130 statute miles and takes 20 hours. During the Kwajalein stop the base commander tells you he has seven coconut palms which endured the naval bombardment preceding the invasion of this former Japanese possession a year ago. He plans to divert one of the seven trees for shade. The rest are ornamental, he says. Under the heat of the Equatorial sun you wince at this jibe. And again when the says Kwajalein is so barren of vegetation that even mosquitoes and flies have abandoned it.

The last leg of your journey, from Honolulu to San Francisco, takes just 9 1-2 hours in a C-87—a Liberator converted to a passenger plane. In 40 hours you have traveled a streamlined sky road it has taken more than three years to build.

MOUNTAIN UNITS COMPLETE TASK

ROME, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The Italian front simmered down to an uneasy quiet of endless partrolling, constant vigil and grim discomfort today as the 10th U. S. Mountain Division completed its task of mopping up German positions around Mt. Belvedere, west of the Bologna-Pistoia highway.

Artillery kept up a ceaseless pounding along the jagged battle line running across Italy through the peaks of the Apennines and down into the valley of the Po near the Adriatic.

There was some improvement in American positions in the Belvedere area.

Characteristic of the difficulties faced by American troops in Italy are those of the 805th U. S. Tank Destroyer Battalion, whose presence in the Apennines was disclosed officially today.

Most of the 805th is so isolated in the rugged mountain country south of Bologna that its only communication with the outside world is by field radio and pack mules, which periodically hike above the line where even jeeps must halt.

POLES NAME HEAD OF ARMED FORCES

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—Gen. Wladyslaw Anders today was named acting commander-in-chief of all Polish armed forces controlled by the Polish government in exile here and in an order of the day he appealed to them to fight on as "the expression and token of the sovereignty of the Polish republic" in the country's "darkest hour."

Anders' appointment and his order of the day were interpreted in diplomatic quarters as a new round in the fight for life of the exile government of Premier Tomas Arcisewski, against a death sentence voted by the Big Three at the Crimea Conference.

The new move came one day before a House of Commons foreign debate in which Prime Minister Winston Churchill is expected to outline Allied safeguards for a free election in Poland.

The election would be called by a Polish government, approved by the Big Three, based on the Russian-sponsored Lublin regime which now is established in Warsaw.

Anders' appointment was announced by Polish President Wladyslaw Rackiewicz
