Young Raleigh Soprano Pleases In Recitial Here

BY JAMES A. SHEPARD

Music lovers who stayed at home or went elsewhere last Monday evening missed a rare musical treat by failing to attend the first public recital given by Miss Jeanette Hortense Fields, a budding young soprano of this city. In this appearance, Miss Fields, who possesses a voice of great charm and masterful ability showed promise of great things to come in the not-too-distant-future.

Miss Fields was presented by Group No. 1 of the Oberlin Baptist Church and this group as well as this Church of which Miss Fields is a member, deserve much credit for their foresight and initiative in presenting this fine young artist to the public. Sitting listening to the sweet richness of Miss Fields' voice, one was reminded that it was under just such auspices that the now renowned Marian Anderson began a career that culminated in world-wide acclaim and richly deserved honor.

The program presented last Monday evening by Miss Fields covered a wide range of selections and included classical, semi-classical as well as the much beloved Negro spirituals. Although the spirituals were almost perfectly rendered and were warmly received, it semed that Miss Fields' renditions of 'Ave Maria'; 'O Rest In the Lord' and 'Prayer Perfect' were so poignantly tender with soul-filled emotions that the attentive and receptive audience was lierally swept off its feet and transplanted in another realm.

Miss Fields is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Fields of 802 Oberlin Road. She is a sophomore at Hampton Institute and is a voice student here of Miss Geraldine Cate, voice teacher of this city. Not being affected by the awkardness and stage fright with which so many young artists are affected, Miss Fields, with her poised dignity, graceful charm, and winning personality to go along with the magnificent voice God had bestowed upon her, can by continued study and consistent application reach the heights already attained by so many of her gifted race.

Mrs Pettiford was a hard working, devout Christian and her influence for good was felt not only in the mission field but in all the activities in which her church was engaged.

There will be special music and short remarks made by the pastor and others. This service is sponsored by Group No. 1 of the Oberlin Baptist Church of which Mrs. Pettiford was captain.

No court will review the decision of a lower court unless the application is founded on errors in the former proceedings. Thus the proof of wrongful admission of or the refusal to admit proper evidence in the former trial would be sufficient to obtain a rehearing.
