GUANO MILL BEGINS WORK

Lillington Oil Mill Company has completed its fertilizer factory and expects to start the manufacturers of guano this week. The mill is of 100 tons daily capacity. It will make a specialty of the brands suited for Harnett county soils and will label three special brands "Harnett Cotton and Tobacco Grower" and "Lomax Special Fertilizer.

Nitrate of soda is now coming in to be mixed into "Top Dresser" for supplying to crops later on.

Farmers will be able to obtain this company's products from their local dealers in any quantity in plenty of time for the spring planting. The mill will not do any retail business, of course.

This is one of the most complete and best constructed mills in the country. It was designed and constructed by Mr. Parham Jones, who was formerly with the Caraleigh Mills of Raleigh and the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company. Mr. Jones drew his own patterns and had the machinery built.—Harnett County News.

THE CITYWARD DRIFT

I believe it would be an excellent thing for humanity if its civilization could be based on rural industry mainly and not on urban industry. More and more men and women in our modern civilization drift out of nature, out of sweet air, health, strength, beauty, into the cities, where in the third generation there is a sickly population, mean in stature, vulgar or depraved in character, with the image of the devil in mind and matter more than the image of Deity. Those who go like it at first, but city life is like the roll spoken of by the prophet, which was sweet in the mouth but bitter in the belly. The first generation are intoxicated by the new life, but in the third generation the cord is cut which connected them with Nature, the Great Mother, and life shrivels up, sundried from the source of life.—Geo. W.

INAUGURAL SPEECH OF PRESIDENT HARDING

achievement.

"If revolution insists upon overturning established order, let other peoples make the tragic experiment. There is no place for it in America. When world war threatened civilization we pledged our resources and our lives to its preservation, and when revolution threatens we unfurl the flag of law and order and renew our consecration. Ours is a constitutional freedom where the popular will is the law supreme and minorities are sacredly protected. Our revisions, reformations and evolutions reflect a deliberate judgment and an orderly progress, and we mean to cure our ills, but never destroy or permit destruction by force.

"I had rather submit our industrial controversies to the conference table in advance than to a settlement table after conflict and suffering. The earth is thristing for the cup of good will. Understanding is its fountain source. I would like to acclaim an era of good feeling amid dependable prosperity and all the blessings which attend.

Protection of Industries

"It has been proven again and again that we cannot, while throwing our markets open to the world maintain American standards of living and opportunity and hold our industrial eminence in such unequal competition. There is a luring fallacy in the theory of banished barriers of trade, but preserved American standards require our higher production costs to be reflected in our tariffs on imports. Today as never before, when people are seeking trade restoration and expansion, we must adjust our tariffs to the new order. We seek participation in the world's exchanges, because therein lies our way to widened influence and the triumphs of peace. We know full well we cannot answer we do not buy and we cannot sell successfully where we do not carry.

"Opportunity is calling not alone for the restoration, but for a new era in production, transportation and trade. We shall answer it best by meeting the demand of a surpassing home market, by promoting self reliance in production and by bidding enterprise, genius and efficiency to carry our cargoes in American bottoms to the markets of the world.

An America of Homes

"We would not have an America living within and for herself alone but we would have for self reliant, independent and ever nobler, stronger and richer. Believing in our higher standards, reared through constitutionality and liberty and maintained opportunity, we invite the world to the same heights. But pride in things wrought is no reflex of accomplished task. Common welfare is the goal of our national endeavor. Wealth is not inimical to warfare, it ought to be its friendliest agency.

"There never can be equality of rewards of possessions so long as the human plan contains varied talents and differing degrees of industry and thrift but ours ought to be a country free from great blotches of distressed poverty. We ought to find a way to guard against the perils and penalties of unemployment. We want an America of homes, illumined with hope and happiness, where mothers, freed from the necessity for long hours of toil beyond their own doors, may preside as befits the hearthstone of American citizenship. We want the cradle of American childhood rocked under conditions so wholesome and so hopeful that no blight may touch it in its development and we want to provide that no selfish interest, no material necessity, no lack of opportunity shall prevent the gaining of that education of essential to best citizenship.

There is no short cut to the making of these ideals into glad realities. The world has witnessed, again and again, the futility and the mischief of ill-considered remedies for social and economic disorders. But we are mindful today as never before of the friction of modern industrialism and we must learn its causes and reduce its evil consequences by sober and tested methods. Where genius has made for great possibilities, justice and happiness must be reflected in a great common welfare.

Service, the Supreme Commitment

"Service is the supreme commitment of life. I would rejoice to acclaim the era of the golden rule and crown it with the autocracy of service. I pledge an administration wherein all the agencies of government are called to serve and ever promote an understanding of government purely as an expression of the popular will.

"One cannot stand in this presence and be unmindful of the tremendous responsibility. The world upheaval has added heavily to our tasks. But with the realization comes the surge of high resolve, and there is reassurance in belief in the God-given destiny of our republic. If I felt that there is to be sole responsibility in the executive for the America of tomorrow, I should shrink from the burden. But here are a hundred millions, with common concern and share responsibility, answerable to God and country. The republic summons them to their duty and I invite cooperation.

"I accept my part with single mind edness of purpose and humility of spirit and implore the favor and guidance of God in His heaven. With these I am unafraid and confidently face the future.

"I have taken the solemn oath of office on that passage of holy writ herein it is asked: 'What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly and to love mercy and walk humbly with thy God.' This I plight to God and country."
