FOR THE CHILDREN

How to Handle Animals.

"There is hardly a live creature," said a naturalist, "that will not permit a human being to touch it if it is done in the right way. It is necessary to be gentle and patient and at the same time without fear. I have seen natives snatch the heads of vipers and lions within a few days after they were trapped. Hunters of wild elephants often crawl among a herd and rub their legs. The great beasts, although they are on the alert, will permit the caress and stand still until the plucky hunter is able to slip a rope around the leg of the animal he wishes to capture.

"In our own country I have seen many men who can creep to a trout stream and gently place their hands under a trout. Very easily they rub its belly, and the trout will lie quite still until, with a sudden jerk, it is landed on the bank.

"I have also seen professional rat catchers put their hands, palm upward, before a rat hole when the ferrets were driving them. As a rat ran out it would sit still for a moment on the rat catcher's hand. Then with his other he would stroke it delicately, and in three times out of four he would manage to life the rat without alarming it and drop it into his bag.

"I have even known a man who could handle the salt water blue crab, the most belligerent and vindictive creature in the sea."

The Golden Chain of Duty.

A little story is told of that great, good man Bishop Phillips Brooks that is worth passing along. He was visiting at a friend's house and holding a little daughter of the family on his knee. After awhile she looked up into his face and said, "Bishop Brooks, you ought to see my dollie."

For a moment he said nothing. That simple speech seemed to set him to thinking. Then he answered slowly:

"I—ought—to—see—your—dollie! Well, if I ought, I must, and I will."

Three great words linked together by conscience—the chain of duty.

What a good motto for an American boy to wear!

I ought, I must, I will!—American Boy.

Wanted Another Boot.

Elwood, aged four, had stepped into a candy store to talk to the girl behind the counter. "What is your name?" he asked.

"Mary Howe," was the answer, "and if you will remember it I'll give you a candy boot for your doll." After talking a few minutes the girl asked, "What is my name?"

"Mary Howe," he said.

"That is right, and here is the boot for your doll."

"Thank you," said Elwood sweetly. And then, after a moment's thought, added, "But my doll has two feet."

A Young Pilot.

Harry Herrington, son of Charles Austin Herrington of Chicago, is one of the youngest pilots on the great lakes. He is twelve years old and during last summer stood at the wheel of the Harvey Watson, which runs as a ferry from Macatawa Park to Ottawa Beach. He is hardly big enough to look over the wheel that he turns. Although the boat during the summer carried more than 200,000 passengers, the boy never had an accident. He takes his boat alongside the dock with the skill of a veteran.

Scare Makes People.

Two little fellows of seven and eight years heard older people speaking of skeletons, says Lippincott's Magazine. The seven-year-old boy listened intently to the conversation, when the older boy, with an air of superior knowledge, said abruptly:

"You don't know what a skeleton is, and I do."

"So do I," replied the younger. "I do know. I know for certain, I do!"

"Well, now, what is it?"

"It's bones with the people off!"

His First Oration.

'Twas the last day of school, and Theophilus Beech
Was going to make on the platform a speech.
His mother had carefully taught him each word
And fifteen or twenty rehearsals had heard.
Beginning, "Dear teacher, so kind and so pleasant,"
It told how the scholars had bought her a present.
The phrases were long, but Theophilus knew them,
And backward, he boasted, was sure could go through them.
He'd learned when to bow, and the pitch, too, to leave;
It came after saying, "This token receive."
Then, handing the box, he would gracefully go
To resume his own seat in the best scholars' row.
"Some day I shall stand in a pulpit and preach,"
He thought to himself proud Theophilus Beech.
But when it was time for the elegant speech
He lost (because he hadn't Theophilus Beech)
His wits vanished with most terrible symptoms untold
He'd certainly die if he stood and recited.
And when assisted to his seat mysterious of all,
The very first sentence he couldn't recall.
So, trembling and panting, he slipped up the aisle
And met with a cruel his teacher's cruel smile.
He snatched up the box as if he would break it
And rushed from the room to the school house lot.
Then, throwing it down for out of her reach,
He ran in his sad, poor Theophilus Beech.

Addie Kenner, When to Teach Composition.

Cause of the Stomach.

When the stomach is overtaxed, when food is eaten faster than it can be digested, it decays and ferments the mass in consequence, producing the sours and gases which distress so many people. Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Tablets (tablets of Alkaline Salicylates) taken at this time will prevent the food from souring and generate heat to neutralize the acids and gases. Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Tablets are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per full size package.

SHORT STORIES.

The American Tract society is seventy-eight years old.

A turtle inscribed "B. F. V., 1862," has come out of a swamp at Canterbury, N. H.

At the present time pig iron is produced in the United States at the rate of nearly 21,000,000 tons a year.

The British post office department handled last year ninety-two pieces of mail matter per capita of population, while the United States post office handled 107 pieces per capita.

In the Tamarack copper mine a plumb-line 4,250 feet long of piano wire was recently lowered from the shaft mouth. It took thirty minutes to drop and is probably the longest plumb line ever used.

A Portsmouth (N. H.) man has a goldfish that will take food from his hand. He will hold some dainty in his fingers just above the surface of the water in the globe, and the fish will invariably come up and take it.

A letter was received at the agricultural department the other day asking for two loads of "turtellizer." The writer, having received seeds from a paternal government, was anxious to get whatever else was coming to him.

After the unveiling of the Sherman statue in Washington in October the dragon guarded studio of Rohl-Smith, the sculptor, which has stood near the site of the proposed monument for more than five years, will be torn down.

Tricky Dynamite.

"Perhaps nothing is more uncertain in the line of accidents than dynamite," said a dealer in the dangerous stuff. "You might drop a cartridge out of your hand, and it would explode and tear your body to atoms. Another cartridge taken out of the same case might be hurled from the top of a tall building and would land on the pavement like so much harmless wax, to be ground up under the wheels of heavy trucks and to be exploded with frightful havoc by the soft cushion tire of a bicycle."

Beautiful Thoughts

The sweet, pure breath of the babe is suggestive of innocence and health. Some children are as lovely and delicate as the modest flower, some are strong and bright, some are frail and sickly.

A mother's yearning for children is inseparable from a love of the beautiful, and it behooves every woman to bring the sweetest influence to bear on the subject of her maternity.

To make easy that period when life is born again,

Mother's Friend

is popularly used. It is a liniment, easily admitted and for external use only.

No risk, no experiment, merely a pain reliever and harmless.

Pregnant women are earnestly entreated to try this remedy, it being undeniably a friend to her during nature's term of suspense, fears and anticipation.

Mother's Friend, if used diligently throughout gestation, will soften the breasts, thereby preventing cracked and sore nipples. All thoughts, nausea and tendency attending with the burden will soften, relax, become soothed, supple and elastic from its continued application.

All fears in the abdominal region will respond readily to the expanding cover containing the embryo if Mother's Friend is administered externally all during pregnancy.

All reliable druggists sell this remedy for $1 per bottle.

A really valuable treatise on motherhood will be sent free, if you write us.
