MRS. HELENA BLAU,

Young Milwaukee Society Woman.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

Mrs. Helena Blau.

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Why not get a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

WINE of CARDUI

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

WOMAN AND FASHION

Skirts Almost Gone.

The illustration shows a dress of mixed beige wool for little girl from seven to ten years old. The skirt and bolero are both box plaited. The sleeves of the latter are turned back and faced with plain beige cloth and bordered with a bias band of tobacco brown cloth.

The turnover collar and the flaring cuffs are also of the plain beige cloth, bordered with the darker. The sleeves are full at the bottom and have little sleeve caps. The blouse is of white linen or waisting and the girdle is of the dark cloth, fastened in front with a buckle.—Le Guide des Couturieres.

The Law on Waists.

Again the word has gone forth that separate waists are absolutely out of fashion and that blouses must be made to match the skirt with which they are worn, no matter how heavy the material. Like many of the arbitrary laws, this one will be constantly broken. There is no question, however, but that the most elegant costumes have skirts and waists of the same material. In the instance of cloth gowns the bodices are composed of the cloth mixed with either embroidery or lace in such a manner that they are made not only graceful, but they are not too warm. For off waists nothing is more becoming and beautiful than one composed of lace. Crepe de chine is also combined with lace and embroidery.

Pale blue cloth is one of the season's latest dictates, and an exquisite toilet recently seen was of panna cloth in that shade. The style of the gown was extremely simple, being merely corded around the hips and shoulders of the pelerine.

The skirt trimming, equally unpretentious, was fashioned of old time ruchings of cloth. Both sleeves and lingerie wrist ruffles were of blue chiffon. The bodice had a vest and belt of white lace and another narrow vest of cloth, through which was threaded a tie of cerise silk.

The scarf and muff were of moleskin, which harmonized delightfully with the pale blue cloth.—Washington Star.

Ostrich Feathers Popular.

One thing is sure—ostrich feathers are the most popular feature of the winter millinery and appear not only upon the picture hats, but also upon the small hats and turbans. Bunches of small ostrich tips droop over the upturned brim of one hat, and a plume of incredible length made by joining two plumes together trails around the crown of another hat and falls low over the shoulder.

For the Ballroom.

This dainty frock is of sunray plaited white chiffon over rose pink liberty satin. The bodice has a wreath of pink roses round the low cut neck, and the skirt is trimmed with three garlands of pink roses and white satin ribbon.

Black Evening Dresses.

Black dresses for evening wear are getting than ever before, being wrought of filmy fabrics such as lace, chiffon, mousseline de soie, spangled net or "dewdrop" tulle, by which is meant tulle showered over with sparkling crystals. Duchesse satin is again selected for evening wear.

Fight Will Be Bitter.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with death, terrible coughing, fast and exhausting night sweats, hemorrhages, wasting and final termination. Read what T. Roberts of Slab, Miss., has to say: "Little Willie was taken with hard cough, coming on after measles. Started by King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and he soon recovered. Now he is well and strong." Guaranteed by all druggists. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

SOCIETY IN IRELAND.

A Person Is Judged There Entirely Upon His Merits.

An English scribe gives a delightful picture of Irish society, in which, she says, there are "no millionaires and no nouveaux riches." Titles there are in plenty, but position counts for nothing unless the persons in question are "good sorts" in themselves. Whereas in England one is tolerated principally for one's wealth, in Scotland for one's birth, in Ireland it would appear one is judged entirely on one's merits.

"The average Irish household differs from the English in being less stiff, more amusing and more hospitable. Possibly the wall paper may be a trifle moldy from damp and the stair carpets not altogether innocent of holes, while your bedroom jug and basin may not match, but these are counterbalanced by priceless old prints, superb bits of old silver and all the fun of the fair. It is more amusing to pay a round of country visits in Ireland than in England. There is no ceremony, but of hearty, sincere welcome there is no end. There is no anxiety about an Irish party amalgamating, for guests are all drawn into the family circle, whereas an English party does not thaw out until the visit is nearly over and often only shows signs of exhilaration when the hour of departure arrives. It is a mistake," concludes the critic, "for the Saxon to start plans for the improving of Ireland. The Irish standard of morality puts English society to the blush."

To improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion, try a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Mr. J. B. Seitz, of Detroit, Mich., says: "They restored my appetite when impaired, relieved me of a bloated feeling and caused a pleasant and satisfactory movement of the bowels." There are people in this community who need just such a medicine. For sale by all druggists. Every box warranted.

King Edward's Noble Guard.

Like the pope, the king of England has a volunteer bodyguard known as gentlemen at arms, which was established in 1509 by King Henry VIII., and ever since that date has attended the royal person on all state occasions. At drawing rooms and levees two of them stand guard beside the sovereign or within call if he should need assistance. Two more guard the barrier that divides the antechamber from the audience room. Their uniform is striking, consisting of a scarlet coat, heavily ornamented with gold lace, and a brass helmet crowned with white plumes. There are fifty gentlemen at arms, all of them noblemen or military officers of high rank, and vacancies are filled by appointment of the king. The present captain general, as the commanding officer is called, is the Earl of Waldgrave.—Chicago Record-Herald.
