ECLECTIC MONTHLY MAGAZINE,
1858.

The Editor of the Electric Magazine, desirous of increasing its circulation, and extending its usefulness as a literary journal, respectfully solicits your patronage and attention to its merits.

For thirteen years the Eclectic has had favor with the public, and high commendation from the press, for the Sterling worth and permanent value of its pages. Its design and purpose is to present to readers The choicest treasures of thought, from the ablest productions of European writers, as they appear in the Reviews and Periodicals of Great Britain and the Continent. These sources furnish many of the best fruits of the literary activity of the —elegant forms of thought, taste, and research. These will adorn the pages of the Eclectic.

This plan of selecting the choicest articles from the noble family of European periodicals, furnishes an amount of literary reading, which could not be obtained in its original form, except at an exorbitant cost; and the excellent and attractiveness of which no magazine could hope to equal. It is a very gold without dross— mental nutriment for youth or age, without moral poison. Its combined excellencies and permanent value give it a just claim to a place in every well selected public and private library.

TERMS.

The Eclectic is issued on the first of every month. Each number has 144 large octavo pages, on fine paper, neatly stitched in paper covers. Twelve numbers, three volumes, with titles and indexes. Twelve or fifteen embellishments, and nearly 1800 pages in a year. Price, $5.

W. H. DUDWELL, Publisher,
No. 5 Beekman Street, N. Y.

Below are given a few of the very numerous testimonials lately received in favor of the Eclectic.

COMMENDATIONS OF THE ECLECTIC.

From Ex. Dr. Claxton.

An acquaintance with the principal contents of the leading Foreign Magazines is rendered indispensable to every one who would keep pace with the progress of thought and of knowledge in our day — they are, however, so many and so costly, that few can obtain or even read the periodicals themselves. The Eclectic performs well the task of winnowing the wheat from these magazines, thus making what is most valuable in their pages accessible to the American people.

R. BETHUNE CLAXTON.

Cleveland, May 3d, 1857.

In the above opinion of Dr. Claxton I most cheerfully and heartily concur.

FRANCIS L. HAWKS.

New York, Nov. 7, 1857.

From Ex-President Fillmore.

I have taken the Eclectic from its commencement as the best selection of foreign periodical literature which I have been able to obtain. I think the selections are judiciously made, and the work is very valuable.

Respectfully yours,

MILLARD FILLMORE.

From Rev. Drs. Sprague, Tudor & Humphrey!

As a valuable substitute for the worthless reading matter which is so abundant these days, and which is doing so much injury, both to the taste and morals, especially of the young, we take pleasure in recommending the Eclectic Magazine, as a work not only for the literary and professional man, but also for any intelligent person. It gives the best articles from the Foreign Reviews, to which the ablest men of Europe are in the habit of giving their most elaborate productions. It will interest all who have not been enervated by the literary trash which unfortunately is so widely distributed among our people, while it can not fail to enlarge the intelligence and elevate the taste of all who habitually peruse it. The permanent value of its articles are in striking contrast with the floating, ephemeral literature of the day.

RUFUS ROOD,
General Traveling Agent for Eclectic Magazine.

A VERY HARD CASE.—The New York papers tells the following:—

"An enterprising young man in Albany, a few years ago, who had, what he considered to be a valuable medicine, which he wished to sell for the benefit of mankind, prevailed upon an old fellow of his acquaintance to join him in business, and furnish him with the necessary capital to go abroad with. He came to New York, and at once entered upon a most profligate and ruinous course of advertising which at last, roused the alarm of the old gentleman in Albany, who came down to inspect the accounts of the concern, and to his utter consternation he discovered that his prodigal partner had spent his entire capital the first year in advertising. But, examining a little further, he discovered that there was owing to his credit more than five times the amount of the capital he had furnished, as his share of the profits. The accountement of the poor old gentleman proved too much for him, for he went home and died in a fit. If merchants do not want to get rich too fast they should be careful not to advertise."

A "DOMESTIC ROMANCE."—A few days since an Irish domestic in the employ of one of the "first families" in the Nineteenth ward, met with a most singular good fortune, in being united by marriage to a wealthy southerner. The story is, that the southerner was, in some romantic manner, smitten with her charms, and proposed marriage, when he was promptly accepted. The fair domestic went to her mistress and tearfully resigned the charge of the kitchen, stating that she intended to assume the duties of the parlor. She then departed in a carriage, and soon afterward, in fine dress, proceeded to dispose of her former wardrobe to her less fortunate friends. She was soon after married to her "lover," who turns out to be a wealthy southerner with plenty of property in the southern States. The names of the parties have not yet transpired.

COPARTNERSHIP.—It may interest our brethren of the press to know that Dr. J. C. AYER of Lowell, (Cherry Pectoral and Cathartic Pills,) has associated with him, his brother Frederick Ayer, Esq., long and favorably known as a leading merchant of the West. Mr. Ayer will conduct the widely extended business of the firm, which now reaches to the commercial nations of both hemispheres, while the Doctor will devote himself to his scientific investigations and pursuits.—Mercantile Journal.

A FLEA UNDER A MICROSCOPE.—When a flea is made to appear as large as an elephant, we can see all the wonderful parts of its formation, and are astonished to find that it has a coat of armor much more complete than ever warrior wore, and composed of strong polished plates, fitted over each other, each plate covered like a tortoise shell, and where they meet, hundreds of strong quills project, like those on the back of a porcupine, or hedgehog. There are the arched neck, the bright eyes, the transparent cases, piercers to puncture the skin a sucker to draw away the blood, six long jointed legs, four of which are folded on the breast, all ready at any moment to be thrown out with tremendous force for that jump which bothers one when they want to catch him, and at the end of each leg hooked claws, to enable him to cling to whatever he alights upon. A flea can jump a hundred times his own length, which is the same as if a man jumped to the height of 700 feet; and he can draw a load 200 times his weight.—Chambers' Journal.

THE PRESIDENT'S DRINK.—NOTHING STRONGER THAN WHISKEY.—Mr. Montgomery, member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writing a letter to one of his constituents, and which has somehow been allowed to get into the papers, adds the following postscript:

"President Buchanan drinks nothing stimulating, except old rye whiskey. I told him that you used to have the best that was ever distilled in our region, and he made me promise to see you and get him some, if you had it.

"Could you let me have a barrel, or even a half barrel, of the best you ever made? Write me. I will send a keg of it to the old chief, if I can get it."

Whereupon the New York Express says, "old rye whiskey" is only about sixty per cent. pure alcohol. What do they consider strong drink at the capital?—Charleston Courier.

NEW COTTON.—The two bales of new cotton received at New Orleans, from Texas, on the 23th inst., were sold immediately for 15 cents per pound. The first arrival of the new crop last year was on the 15th of August.

NORTH CAROLINA STOCKS.—On the 17th $31,000 of N. C. 6 per cent bonds sold in New York at 97. Virginia 6s, 93.

ANOTHER NOVELTY.—Among the novelties of the season is a Ladies' National Equestrian Convention, to be held on the 8th day of September, at the Union Race Course, Long Island. Among the inducements "to enter the lists" on the occasion, is the offer of three prizes to be awarded to the best female riders. The lady adjudged the most skillful in feats of manage will receive a splendid piano forte, valued at not less than $500.

WHY WILL YOU SUFFER?—Dyspepsia is a brief, but comprehensive term for the numerous diseases which affect the stomach, liver, and in fact the whole system.—Until Dr. Greene discovered the Oxygenated Bitters, medical science had exhausted itself in vain attempts to cure this disease.

MARRIAGES.

Married, on the 27th ult., near Davidson College, by the Rev. E. D. Jenkins, Mr. JOSEPH B. GILLESPIE to Miss KATE E., daughter of Mr. Joseph B. Douglass.

The Printer was remembered, and our friends will please accept our thanks for their kindness. May happiness and prosperity attend them through life.

Married, in this county, on the 29th ult., by J. White, Esq., Mr. DANIEL NIVEN, of York District, S. C., to Miss MARY ORR, of Mecklenburg county, N. C.

DIED,

In this place, on Sunday morning last, after a short illness of puerperal fever, Mrs. LEONORA A. COOK, wife of Mr. William A. Cook, aged about 29 years, leaving a husband and three small children to mourn their irreparable loss.

Also, on the same morning, Mrs. CATHARINE ALLISON, wife of Mr. Thomas C. Allison, in the 27th year of her age. The subject of this notice has been afflicted for 4 or 5 years with epileptic fits, and her friends had resorted to almost every remedy they could hear of, but without any benefit to her. About two weeks ago, a physician presented himself to the family who stated that he had been very successful in treating that disease. Anxious to restore her to health if possible, her friends at once seized the opportunity as they fondly hoped, of having her health restored. He prescribed in her case, and there was a perceived improvement for the better, but unfortunately he commenced stimulating her. As soon, however, as her father was informed of this prescription he countermanded the physician and requested him not to give her spirits—he persisted and the result was, that the fits returned in a more aggravated form and continued until they resulted in her death.

On the 8th of July, 1858, at the house of Col. Wallace M. Grier, of Steel Creek, Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, in the thirty-sixth year of his age, Major JOHN BROWN LEWIS, son of the late Samuel and Narcissa G. Lewis, of Chester District, South Carolina—leaving a wife and two children. His illness was protracted, yet he manifested much patience and fortitude, and died, as he believed, at peace with God, and with his fellow men. Of an unobtrusive and amiable disposition, he had not failed to attach to himself all with whom he came in contact in the world. Of revolutionary ancestry, the spirit of patriotism burned deeply in his soul; and when a call for the Mexican war was made upon the Native District, he left the Seminary at Due West, and enrolled himself as a member in company B, under Captain (now General,) Duncan. He took leave of his family to join his company, accompanied by his brother, Lewis W. Lewis. That brother, upon reaching the place of rendezvous, refused to return, and manifested determination to join his youthful comrades and associates in love, in the tented field. Brown, finding his resolution not to be shaken, from filial affection to his widowed mother, with the approbation and advice of his beloved commander, returned home. He mother received back one son, but parted with another. That other was soon sent home by his companions in arms, not "upon his shield," for they had not yet reached the scene of war's death-ly strife, but a victim to exposure, and the first of that gallant regiment, which mustered more than its complement, of which but few returned to resume their hills and hearthstone. He died in camp at Charleston on his way to the battle fields at Mexico.

The subject of this notice remained with his mother until his younger brother grew up to manhood. In October, 1852, he married—and other some years, finding her health failing, he settled down on a plantation in Mecklenburg Co., North Carolina, near to his wife's relatives and the church of her choice.

About the 1st of May, finding his health declining very fast, Mrs. Grier, wife of Col. William M. Grier, and aunt of Mrs. Lewis, had him removed to her house, one from that moment to the hour of dissolution, watched over him with no remitting attention. The sisterly, nay more than sisterly, the motherly affection never flagged.—Both day and night witnessed her generous efforts to soothe the pillow of affliction, and render the sufferer's descent to the tomb as easy as possible. The friends of the deceased can never forget her disinterested kindness, nor that of her generous husband, whose house has ever been the home, not of strangers only, but not unfrequently the dying house of the friendless stranger—all reminding one very forcibly of what was said and experienced by the ancient apostle of God—"She hath been a succorer of many, and of myself also." And again, "The Lord give mercy unto the house of Onesiphorus, for he oft refreshed me."

Whilst an inmate of this family, the communion of the Lord's supper was dispensed, in the Associate Reformed congregation of Steele Creek, and Mr. Lewis was conveyed from his sick chamber, to unite in celebrating the dying love of the Saviour. During his sickness he never murmured, nor complained of his afflictions, but expressed a desire to be resigned to the will of the Almighty. About mid day of the 8th his eyes closed upon all earthly scenes, leaving a spotless name, and a life of purity much to be desired. Let us hope, that his spirit has been transferred to a higher, a purer sphere, where it may shine an unalloyed heaven—where all former sorrows shall be forgotten—where no fear for the future, is entertained—where no sin shall afflict—no sorrow afflict—no danger affright—where all tears shall be wiped from their eyes—all sorrow banished from the heart, and everlasting joys possess the soul.

In this place of bliss, there will be no need for the outward temple for external worship and ordinances, for the "Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it." No need for a house of prayer, for those who want nothing to pray for—no need of ministers and ordinances to teach those whose knowledge is perfect—no need of the sacraments by which to remember Christ, for they shall see him face to face—no need of the natural light of the sun and moon, for the sun of righteousness shineth forever. God is all, and in all—no darkness of affliction, temptation, and desertion—no night of mental darkness—no night of spiritual darkness—no night of eternal darkness—for "there shall be no night there." Lord strengthen our faith in the belief of this desirable happiness, and set our souls a hanging for the full fruition and final enjoyment of it—See Peter, i. 5. 11. A.

Brass & Composition Castings.

I AM prepared to manufacture all kinds of work in the above line of business. I would call the particular attention of those that have mills or factories, or any kind of machinery that needs composition of durability for mill inks, that I have one of my own, and I have never heard of any thing that would stand half equal to it. I will warrant them to run five years. There are some of my make that have been running fifteen and twenty years. I could furnish more than a hundred certificates of its durability.

To Persons messing Mill Inks and gudgeons I will furnish the set for eight dollars. Try them and save yourselves the trouble of stopping your mill when all else is right.

CONSUMPTION.—The Rev. Dort. Burnett, several years a Missionary in Southern Asia, discovered a simple and certain cure for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Coughs, Colds, and Nervous Debility; also an easy and effectual mode of inhaling the Remedy—a method by which the curative properties of the Medicine are directly conveyed to the diseased organs and the vital ligament. Actuated by a desire to benefit his suffering fellows, he will cheerfully send the Recipe (free) to all who desire it, with full and explicit directions for preparing and successfully using the Medicine. COTTON.—There is so little change in Cotton that it is difficult to establish a price. We continue to quote from 9½ to 11½.

FLOUR.—Flour is in demand at the prices quoted in table, and but little coming to market.

WHEAT.—Wheat is in good demand and prices firm. Prime white will readily bring 75 cts. and prime red 80 cents, if well cleaned. There is so much wheat come to market in such bad condition that it injures the sale at best 5 to 8 cents per bushel.

CORN.—The supply of Corn is abundant for the demand and consequently the prices have a downward tendency.

COLUMBIA MARKET.

COLUMBIA, July 31, 1858.

COTTON.—We have no material change to notice in the price of cotton to-day. The quality offering was not above middling, and therefore it was not a true test of the value of a fine article.
