THE ARMIES IN THE FIELDS OF ITALY.

The following sketches of the material and organization of the armies now engaged in Lombardy are in the main truthful. They form part of the Italian correspondence of the New York Express:

THE SARDINIANS.

Permit me still to add a few farther remarks partly based on the Crimean correspondence of the Paris "Illustration," as corroborated by actual observation. The Sardinian army in the Crimea was a magnificent force, the men are remarkably handsome and neat, bearing themselves right soldierly.

Their battalions of Chasseurs (Riflemen) otherwise styled Bersaglieri, are likewise very fine. It is true that their head-dress—a la Robin des Bois (Robin Hood Hats)—is somewhat astonishing from its Tyrolese cut, but if they have the skill of the famed marksmen of the Tyrol, no one has the right to find fault with the resemblance.

The Sardinian material is excellent, and maintained in the highest condition for service. The field pieces and train which I have examined are extremely well organized, horsed and supplied.

The Sardinian Artillery is truly a model service. On every battle field like our own in Mexico, they did their whole duty to the admiration of their fellow soldiers, and astonishment of the Austrians. The latter are said to have adopted as models for the new batteries, the Sardinian pieces captured when the reserve park was cut off on the Po at Pavia and Piacenza. On the battle fields few of such trophies fell into the enemy's hands, but the terrific disasters of the main army led to the unavoidable sacrifice of the splendid grand park—the result of the inefficiency, treachery, apathy and cowardice of the people. Charles Albert peril'ed his thrown to liberty, to elevate, and render worthy of the fellowship of his own nation, with reason styled the men of Italy.

As an evidence of their superior bravery and reliability, the Piedmontese Demi brigade, in the French service, under Bonaparte, won from that great commander the glorious nickname (sobriquet) of his Passe partout master key, because on position was irresistible to their determined valor; and Marler, an old soldier of "la Grand Armee," throughout his Ecclaircissements Revelations, or rather, Elucidations of the events of 1848 49 bears witness to the surpassing gallantry of the "Intrepid" Savoy Brigade, recruited in the duchy of that name—another grand division of the Sardinian States.

Throughout the Austro-Sardinian campaigns, so exuberant in laurels, so barren of fruits, the Savoyards added leaf after leaf to the chaplet of their renown; and every writer acknowledges their claim to the title of the "bravest of the brave."

At Gambolo, near Montara, 21st March, 1849, after prodigies of valor, when these heroes were compelled, by the main force of their own officers, not the enemy, to fall back; "my captain," a soldier said to the Duke of Dion, Aid de Camp to the King of Sardinia, and charming historian of the late of arms he witnessed and participated in, "my Captain, why do they not let us take Gambolo?" "Friend," replied the young nobleman, "because having no supports (reserves), it would not do to risk the lives of such brave men as you." "What! did Savoy ever need such support or assistance?" was the indignant reply—a reply which spoke volumes, for every combat bore corroborative testimony to the unextinguishable devotion of her children.

THE FRENCH.

A French army beaten is like disintegrated red granite. That which was the hardest stone becomes the loosest sand. It is not want of courage, however, which occasions this, but a want of moral force of stability, which was lost to France when she drove out her Protestant element. The following testimony with regard to French courage, spoken three centuries since, subsequent facts have stereotyped: "The French go the death as if certain of rising the next day." The writer never admired the French cavalry, neither men nor horses, but the mounted Military Police or Gendarmerie and cognate organizations are glorious to look upon. The French Scientific Corps are most likely superior to any in the world, likewise the war intendency and administration.

As to the French army, it very much resembles the Sardinian in its most effective branches, that is, in its artillery, light troops and infantry. As to the infantry, they are just what one of their own officers said of them, "not handsome, but oh! how good."

The French foot are and always have been the best marchers in Europe. The Duke de Rohan, a most illustrious Hugenot General of the XVII century, recorded an opinion with regard to his countrymen, whose truth every day confirms. His maxim as a General, respecting the French troops, were, that they should always be placed by their commander, in such a manner that they might begin an engagement. "Il faut mettre les Francois en estat frapper les premiers." "I know well," said he, one day, "the disposition of the French; they are incapable of maintaining foot by foot, any advantage they may have gained over their enemies; they should always be kept in a posture of attack, and not of defence. The quick and impetuous character inclines them rather to act than to suffer, and to advance rather than to wait the attack of their enemies."

THE AUSTRIANS.

The Austrian army, as a whole in appearance and organization, is unexcelled, but it has always shown a deficiency in those qualities which are the most striking characteristics of its present opponents, energy, enterprise and mobility. As an aggregate of grand specimens of humanity, there is no army in the world that can compare with it. The Austrian Infantry proper is magnificent, the cavalry superb, the riflemen equal to the French, and, like the latter, the infantry is not handsome, but serviceable—As to the Artillery, if the batteries in Italy, in 1851–3, were specimens of it, it is as inferior to the Piedmontese and French, in its material, as its personel was equal—in appearance—to the first and superior to the second, while the horses were superior in every attribute to any military draft horses the writer has ever seen. The engineer corps is rapidly improving, and must be excellent, if instruction can prepare men for practice and practice makes perfect, since experience is the best of masters.

The Commissariat also is most ably arranged and administered, and, theoretically, the medical services, field and hospital, but it is doubtful if it is equal to the French, although most likely far superior to the Piedmontese.

If the Austrian army had so much alacrity and fire as it has recuperative force and discipline, it could march to Turin and perhaps to Paris, but what is strength and weight without momentum? A mallet shell of 2800 pounds, lying in the arsenal, although an object of wonder, is innocent; hurl it from a mortar against an opposing object, and it is annihilation itself.

COTTON.

The blooming of cotton this year, says the New Orleans Crescent, may be regarded as unusually early. We learn that there were several blooms in different parts of Texas as early as the 20th of May—that there was a full and perfect bloom received in Galveston on the 23d of May. Promising expectations of a good yield are favored, though it is altogether premature to consider of the results. We are, however, pleased to observe that planters are in good spirits, they, one and all, prefer good crops to poor ones, even if a short crop is made up by enhancement in price:

The following statement shows the blooming and first frost for fifteen years:

Years.	Blooms.	Early Frost.	Crops.

AWFUL CRIMINALITY.—Within a period embracing from April last, Mr. Benj. I. Herring and wife, have lost three children, all of whom were found dead, on their return after a short absence from home. The last was found dead in the yard about two weeks since, aged about two years. The others were found dead in the same location, all young. A negro girl, slave, about 12 years of age, named Esther, who was hired by Mr. Herring, is now in jail, having been arrested on suspicion of being guilty of the crime. It is said that a little boy, about five or six years of age, described to his father and mother the manner in which the girl choked the children to death.

Coroner J. M Thompson, held an inquest over the body of the last child on Saturday, and the verdict of the jury was that it came to its death by the hands of the girl Esther.—Goldsboro Tribune.

RATHER THIN.—A ludicrous incident occurred this winter, at Woodlawn, on the Bloomingdale road. Jones' hotel of that place, is ornamented with an ostler, whose fun is as fearless as his face is ugly. One day in January, while twenty or thirty fast gentlemen were standing on the front balcony of the hotel, an individual rode up the path, on the thinnest horse mortal eyes ever looked upon. Leaping from his phantom steed, the equestrian said, turning to the ostler:

"Here, John, give my horse some water."

"Sir?" said John with a look of astonishment.

"Give my horse some water!" thundered the stranger.

"Your horse!" ejaculated John, still more surprised.

"Yes, you fool, my horse!" and the stranger looked savagely at him, and commenced drawing the lash of his whip through his hand.

John walked towards him as though he would demand an explanation, and had taken about six steps, when he suddenly stopped like one surprised beyond expression.

"Bless my soul!" says he, "I ax your pardon, sir; but your hanimal was a standin' on a line with that ere kitching post, and I did'nt see him!"

The owner of the spectral beast tried to frown, but a roar from the balcony made him change his mind.

JEFFERSON'S TEN RULES.—Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day—Never trouble another for what you can do yourself. Never spend your money before you have it. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold. We seldom repent of having eaten too little. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.—How much pains and evils have cost which have never happened. Take everything always by the smooth handle. When angry count ten before you speak; if very angry a hundred.

A young "buck," now-a-days, is curiously compounded; he has a beaver on his head, a goat re on his chin, kids on his hands, calves on his legs (and doe skin also), casts sheeps' eyes, and is looked upon by his doe-ting duck as deer at any price.

A young florist being asked by his "Mary Ann" what flower he was most partial to, pressed her to his vest, and exclaimed, "Give me thee, Polly Ann, thus!" (the polyanthus.) She was soon transplanted to her—flower patch—ah!—Louisville Courier.

TO DYSPEPTICS

And all who suffer the tortures which this disease inflicts in one form or another of its many phases, cure yourselves permanently and speedily by using

The Oxygenated Bitters.

The "Weekly Novelletta" of Sept. 18, says:

Dyspepsia is one of the prevailing diseases of our country. This is owing both to climate and the almost universal habit of eating our meals too rapidly to admit of proper digestion. But in spite of these adverse circumstances, this disease, even when it has become chronic, disappears rapidly by the use of the Oxygenated Bitters, which have been found to prove an infallible remedy.

From the Publisher of a widely circulated Magazine.

BOSTON, July 1, 1858.

MESSRS. S. W. FOWLE & Co.,—I have taken three bottles of the Oxygenated Bitters, and have derived great benefit from their use. I have been much troubled with Dyspepsia for several years, and found nothing that afforded me any relief until I used the Bitters. I most cheerfully recommend them to all who are afflicted with this troublesome and stubborn complaint.

JAMES ROBINSON, of the "Student and Schoolmate."

FROM GEN. A. C. DODGE, our Minister to Spain.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 18.

DR. GEO. B. GREEN,—Dear Sir:—The Oxygenated Bitters with which you were so kind as to furnish me, have had a most salutary effect in my case. I was troubled with Dyspepsia for four years, during which time I tried many remedies, but never met with any so good as your Bitters. I am now in the enjoyment of good health, and I hope, and believe, that all who use the Oxygenated Bitters, will find them as serviceable as I have found them.

With high respect your obt. servant,
A. C. DODGE.

NATURE IS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN. This is now admitted by the medical profession, as a fundamental principle of healing science. It is wisely provided by the human economy, that whenever anything is wrong in the physical system, the natural forces of the body are brought to bear to expel the disease. The great aim, therefore, is to strengthen the natural powers. This has been kept in view by the skillfull compounders of DR. J. HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, which operate to give vitality to all the organs of the body. The effect of this medicine upon the stomach, the liver and the kidneys, are prompt and decisive. The patient who is wise enough to quit drugging, and try the BITTERS, soon feels as if he had taken a new lease of life, and as he continues the use of the article, he is overjoyed to find the streams of health coursing through his frame. Let all from whose cheek the bloom has departed, give Dr J. Hostetters Celebrated Bitters a trial.
