Teens Receive Israel Scholarships

Larry Gerber, TISS committee chairman, presents scholarships to (L to R): Joanna Kornhauser, David Ziegler, Dalya Massachi, Tracy Josephson.

Scholarships in the amount of five hundred dollars each have been awarded to four teenagers as part of a Charlotte Jewish Federation program to encourage local teen participation in summer youth programs in Israel.

Larry Gerber, chair of the Teen Israel Summer Scholarship (TISS) committee of the Federation, announced the awarding of the four grants to: Tracy Josephson, Dalya Massachi, David Zeigler and Joanna Kornhauser.

Tracy is a rising senior at Myers Park High School and Joanna is a rising senior at South Mecklenburg High School. Both will be attending Israel Summer Institute sponsored by BBYO. Dalya and David are rising juniors at East Meck H.S. She will be participating in the United Synagogue Youth Pilgrimage while he will attend the Israel Academy, a program sponsored by UAHC, the Reform movement. In accepting the grants, all four students willingly accepted the responsibility to report on their trips when they return and to develop ways in which to encourage other teens to participate in Israel programs in the future.

The members of the scholarship committee were: Larry Gerber, chair; Sally Schrader, Emily Zimmern, Vicki Hopkins and Hal Levinson.

Yiddish Institute Was A Remarkable Effort

The Seventh Annual Yiddish Institute, held at Wildacres, April 25-28, 1985 is now a fond memory.

It was attended by about 90 members who represented 10 states from the Eastern Seaboard.

Baila Pransky, coordinator of the Institute, and Abe Luski, keynote speaker, and the CYI committee; Sarah Ackerman, Gedalia Ackerman, Moishe Bienstock, Sarah Goldman, Yehudah Goldman, Raizel Luski, Lyba Pollard and Yayneh Pransky staged a remarkable event. Even the weather was cooperative with warmth and sunshine enhancing the natural beauty of the North Carolina mountains.

Miriam Kressyn and Seymour Rexite, well known personalities of the Yiddish theater, recalled the history of their profession and entertained with songs and anecdotes that many of us grew up with.

Jacob Blank, a noted lecturer and teacher, spoke about famous people like Herzl, Freud, and Chiam Grade, in addition to speaking about Israel and the importance of furthering Yiddishkeit among our children and grandchildren. He reached us with his intensity and his lifelong dedication to Judaism.

One of the highlights was the regular Sabbath service on Saturday morning conducted by guest Rabbi Leo Hoffman and Cantor George Ackerman. The service was unique in that the Torah and Haftarah readings were chanted in Yiddish. Rabbi Hoffman did a masterful job in translating both portions into Yiddish. Cantor Ackerman chanted the service and the Torah reading in his usual good voice, while Rabbi Hoffman chanted the Haftarah beautifully.

Members also attended lectures, classes and seminars conducted in Yiddish.

Every evening ended with our now famous social gatherings; included were singing, guitar playing by Marvin Bienstock and Mary Marcus of N.Y., and the general feeling of camaraderie among us all.

We made new friends, strengthened the bonds of old ones, and went home smiling and humming the sounds of the weekend.

We look forward to many more years at Wildacres with our hosts, the Blumenthal family, and the opportunities afforded to us by the Blumenthal Foundation.
