HANDBILLS, CARDS, LABELS, BILL-HEADS, BLANK-BOOKS, and all kinds of ordinary job-work done promptly, neatly and cheaply.

POST OFFICE VISITORS.—A great many "peculiar people" call at the post office, among whom may be mentioned the following: The individual who gets a letter about once in six months, but who always struggles to be first at the window; the one who regards his solitary letter as a natural curosity, turning it over, viewing it from an up-hill and down-hill point, as if in astonishment that he should get one at all; the man from the country who inquires for all the folks at his place; the sprace clerk who gets a dozen for his employer and looks as wise as if they were all intended for himself; the indignant specimen, who wonders why the d—euce the expected letter hasn't come, and who holds an earnest colloquy with the clerk as to the probable cause of its detention; the bashful young man, with faint traces of down on his chin, who expects a letter from his sweetheart, and who retires in confusion; the big paunched man who treads on his neighbor's corns; the seedy customer who gets a bill for washing, and tries to make you think it's a draft; these, with the booby who waits an hour on the curbstone to see who goes in and comes out are the most prominent of post-office visitors.

A CHEAP WAY TO GET RID OF NUT GRASS.—The Augusta Constitutionalist contains the advertisement of a gentleman of that city who proposes to furnish, for the pittance of twenty-five cents, information by which farmers and gardeners may get rid of nut grass. The proceeds of the subscription to secure this receipt, are to be applied to the relief of the poor. A forfeit of $100 will be paid in all cases where, the direction closely followed, this information does not result in the total destruction of the grass. The advertiser refers to Messrs. E. P. Clayton & Co., well known factors of Augusta.

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked a Dutch justice. "Not guilty." Den vat the tyful do you here? Go about mit your pizeness."
