Laying Down Grape Vines in the Fall.

For even the hardiest varieties I am satisfied it will be benefit to cut them loose from the trellis and let them lie down. In every instance through my vineyard just now I notice that these canes which lie on the ground during the winter are freshest and bear the most bunches.

For more than a quarter of a century we have advised this practice of laying vines on the surface of the ground during winter, even without any covering, as being of much benefit even to the hardiest kinds of grapes. Any person having a few grape vines where severe frosts occur, may become convinced of the advantages of protection from freezing winds by one winter's experiment with a portion of the plants, or even the branches of the same plant. The great desideratum with many is to procure what are termed iron-clad varieties of fruiting plants. It is perfectly proper to endervor to procure the hardiest kinds, provided they are equally valuable with varieties somewhat more tender, but it is not advisable to discard finer kinds simply because they need some slight protection during the winter.—Rural World.

Seed Wheat—Effect of Climate.

Most of the wheat fields in the South will be sown during the months of October and November. A revival of interest in this crop is quite evident, and a number of farmers who have not grown wheat in several years propose to renew their efforts to produce at least enough for home consumption. The question of seed wheat is, therefore, a serious one to those who have "got out of seed," as well as to others. The idea used to prevail extensively that seed wheat should be sought from the wheat fields north of the locality where it is to be sown, because it is presumed the crop would be more certain if produced from seed grown in a section where wheat culture is more uniformly successful. The idea is plausible on first view, but does not accord with the experience of the most observant farmers nor with the laws which govern climatic influences, with respect of rapidity of development and early maturity of seeds sown, in both cases, at the close of one summer season and which attain maturity at the opening of the next. We all know that seeds of cotton, corn, tender garden vegetables, and other plants which cannot stand frost and must be planted in the spring, when obtained from a more northerly clime, will usually mature their product earlier than seed of home-growth. This is due to the effect of habit which has been impressed upon the plant as an instinct by the necessities of a shorter season of growth in the more northern locality. Cotton, corn, or any of the class of plants above indicated, are directly amenable to this law, and will generally reach maturity earlier in any given locality if the seed be procured from further north.

The same principle applies to wheat and other hardy plants, but the condition of planting being radically different, we should expect opposite, yet entirely consistent results. Wheat is generally sown—even as far north as Illinois and Ohio—in the fall of the year, and the earliness of seeding is according to latitude. Hence, north of us the period of seed time to harvest is greater, and the habit of the plant is conformed thereto. Therefore we ought not to be surprised to find that winter wheat seed from Maryland or Ohio, or even Tennessee, will not ripen so early as the same variety that has been long grown in a more southern latitude.

But the case is different when we use northern spring wheat seed. In this case the conditions are the same as for corn, cotton, etc. The conclusion, therefore, is reached that we may reasonably expect to get an earlier variety of wheat from the extreme northwest—say in Minnesota or Dakota—where the crop is invariably sown in April or May and harvested in August, occupying the field for a period of only 90 to 110 days. Of course, to realize this benefit, the seed wheat from such far northern localities should be sown at our usual time of sowing in the fall. The writer remembers that when he was a boy his father tried the experiment of growing northern spring wheat but without success, because, as now believed, he sowed in the spring instead of the fall and the plants missed the longer, hotter days of June, July and August to which the previous crops had been accustomed. As a rule other things being equal, a plant requires a certain amount of sunshine and heat to mature a crop within a given time; and the longer the days, and therefore the more sunshine available, the more rapid will be the growth and development. In the extreme northwest the days during the period of wheat growth, June, July and August, are much longer and warmer than the corresponding period, March, April and May, in the South.—Southern Cultivator.

Mr. Calvin Baker of Hickory township, Catawba county, during the season just past cut and threshed from two acres of land 50 bushels of wheat and seven bushels of clover seed. Counting one bushel of clover seed as equal to six bushels of wheat, the entire crop was equal to 101 bushels of wheat. Or putting a money value on the crop, and estimating the wheat at 90 cents per bushel and the clover seed at $5.40 per bushel, the entire crop was worth $90.90 or $45.45 per acre, besides the wheat straw and clover hay. We reported a few weeks ago a yield of seventy-two bushels and one-half from a two acre lot in Buncombe county, cultivated by Capt. Fagg. Although Mr. Baker's yield of wheat is less by thirteen and a half bushels, yet the money value of his crop, including the clover seed, is much greater.—Hickory Press.

Farmers' Club.

FORM OF CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

Constitution.

This club shall be known as the Farmers' Club of————Township. Its object shall be to improve the condition of the farmers and promote the cause of Agriculture.

Its officers shall consist of a President, Vice-president and Secretary and Treasurer, who shall be elected for the term of one year.

It shall be the duty of the President to preside at all regular or called meetings of the Club, and to announce the order of business. In his absence the Vice-President shall preside. In the absence of both, the Club may elect a temporary Chairman.

It shall be the duty of the Secretary to keep a record of the proceedings of the club, and carry on such correspondence as the Club may direct.

In addition to the officers there shall be an Executive Committee consisting of three or more members, as the Club may determine, to transact business appertaining to the Club.

Applications for membership must be made by petition, endorsed by one or more members of the Club. Such petition shall be referred to a committee, who will report at the next regular meeting, when a vote may be had upon the petition, a majority of the Club, not of those present simply, being necessary to elect to membership.

No one shall be eligible to membership unless practically engaged in Agriculture. Farmers' wives and daughters may be elected as honorary members.

There shall be no initiation or other fee charged. All necessary expenses shall be defrayed by proportionate assessment or by voluntary contributions, as the Club may decide.

The President, Vice-president and Secretary shall be ex-officio representative members of the Club to the County Club, when such is organized, and shall have full power to vote and act for the Club, unless the Club shall decide to elect other members as such representatives.

The Club shall have power to draft by-laws for government.

The constitution may be amended by giving two months' notice of the amendment proposed in writing, but no amendment shall be carried without a two-thirds vote of the members of the Club.

BY-LAWS.

I. The meetings of the Club shall be held once a month (or oftener) at such time and place as the Club may direct. Special meetings may be called by the Executive Committee if deemed advisable.

II. The order of business shall be:

1. Calling the roll.
2. Reading minutes of preceding meeting.
3. Election of new members.
4. Report of committees.
5. Unfinished business.
6. New business.
7. Election of officers.

III. Elections shall be by ballot, the tellers appointed by the President, and those candidates receiving the largest number of votes, as counted before the Club, shall be declared elected.

IV. After the regular business, the club may hear discussions, essays or addresses upon Agriculture, but no religious or political discussion will be permitted, or nothing calculated to mar the harmony of the Club.

V. Seven members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Each member will have the right to express his views fully upon any subject under discussion, but must do so courteously and not indulge in rudeness. Breach of courtesy will subject the offender to reproof, and if persisted in, he may be expelled by a vote of the Club. An expelled member cannot regain admission under one year.

Every member should feel it his duty to advance the interests of his fellow members, and of his brother farmers, giving such aid and council as they may seek, when in his power to do so.

☞The above form, with slight modification, will answer for the organization of County Clubs.

Let the right prevail.

We have certain work to do for our bread and that is to be done strenuously; other work to be done for our delight, and that is to be done heartily; neither is to be done by halves or shifts, but with a will, and what is not worth this effort is not to be done at all.
