

Once upon a time

a long time ago in a land far, far away there was this guy named Moses. He started his career in a swamp and it was practically all downhill after that. Chased out of town by an army without enough time to bake his bread, he had sand in his shoes for 40 years looking for a place to live. And he survived a burning bush and a mutiny by his followers. Despite his troubles, he was able to give something, deliverance and the "Ten Commandments," for starters.

When we contact you to make your pledge for the 1986 Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign, we might hear that you have payments on your new car, that you've just done some redecorating, that you've got two kids in college right now, that your business is just coming back, that you've just moved into a new office.

We'd like to remind you that those aren't troubles.

They're blessings.

When we call, don't abdicate.

Celebrate.

Moses had troubles.

You don't

Dayenu.
