TWO LOVES.

The sweetest notes among the human heart strings
Are full with music
The sweetest notes in perfect harmony
Are charged with dust
We piped and pipe again for dance or music,
Upon the self-same stream,
While wonder of crime and fear and desolation
Can have no end of sad.

On through the world we go, an army marching
With drooping ears;
Each longing, sighing for the heavenly music
He never hears;
Each longing, sighing for a word of comfort—
A word of tender praise—
A word of love to cheer the endless journey
Of earth's hard toiling days.

They love us, and we know it, this suffices
For passing relate,
Why should they pause to give that love expression
With gentle care?
Why should they pause? But still our hearts are aching
With the growing pain
Of hungry love, that longs to hear the music,
And longs, and longs in vain.

We love them, and they know it, if we falter,
With fingers nearly
Among the unused strings of love's expression,
The notes are dumb;
We shrink within ourselves in sorrow,
Letting the words unsaid,
And, side by side with those we love the dearest,
In silence go we tread.

Thus on we trend, and thus each heart in silence
Retains its ills—
Waiting and hoping for the heavenly music
Beyond the distant hills.
The only difference of the love in heaven
From love on earth below,
Is, here we love and know not how to tell it,
And there we shall know.

SPRIGHTLY SPARKS.

Mauledding a man with a brick might be called a brick kiln.

It was a sad-eyed imp-pulse which made Eve mastlicate the apple.

The law that ought to prevail—justice. The law that does, war law.

If your friends don't stick to you this weather, your clothes do.

Great deeds need to be tested by their spirit. There can be no sanctimony without humanity.

A feast is made for laughter, and wine maketh merry; but money answereth all things.

Education begins a gentleman; but reading good company and reflection must finish him.

Caution: Never marry a woman till you know where her dress ends and her soul begins.

A sociable man is one who, when he has ten minutes to spare, goes and bothers somebody who hasn't.

In this age almost every person is a reader and receives more instruction from the press than the pulpit.

It is a sad fact that it is a great deal easier to live but controversy about religion than it is to live religiously.

If a man has good health it is unfair for him to ask the Lord to give him anything else, because he ought to get it for himself.

Aprons have become artistic, and disdain to be called pinafores. They are now finished at the lower edge by being looped up out of sight.

"A new broom sweeps clean." It doesn't if the boy is scrapping up the back yard and the gang is waiting to get up on his roof to raise a kite.

A young lady says that males are of no account from the time the ladies stop kissing them as infants till they commence kissing them as lovers.

The man who took a seat in the orchestra when his pocket was for the second balcony felt bad at having to change. In fact, he was moved two tiers.

They have taken to introducing sewing machines among the Indians, and before long it will be with difficulty that a brave will be able to read his evening paper in quiet.

There cannot live a more unhappy creature than an ill-natured old man, who is neither capable of receiving pleasures, nor sensible to doing them to others.—Sir W. Temple.

That which we acquire with the most difficulty we retain the longest; as those who have earned a fortune are usually more careful of it than those who have inherited one.—Colton.

It is an unhappy, and yet I fear a true reflection, that they who have uncommon easiness and softness of temper, have seldom very noble and nice sensations of soul.—Granville.

When a friend asked a reformed inebriate the cause of his reformation, he said: "As you are married you will quite understand it when I say getting tipsy made me see my mother-in-law double!"

The man who "woke to ecstasy the living lyre," is notified that it would have been just as well if the living liar had been allowed to slumber on. We have enough living liars now. What the world needs is a few dead ones.

Said the night watchman when about dusk he was invited to drink a cup of coffee, "No, thank you; coffee keeps me awake all night." Then he saw his blunder, looked very embarrassed and tried to explain. But it was no use.

"There is nothing like settling down," said the retired merchant confidently to the neighbor. "When I gave up business I settled down and found I had quite a comfortable fortune. If I had settled up I should not have had a cent."

"My bredderen," said a waggish colored man to a crowd, "in inflection, in all ob your troubles dar is one, 'Whar you can always find sympathy.'" "Whar? Whar?" shouted several. "In de dictionary," he yelled, rolling his eyes skyward.

"Some other folks would deceive you about these goods, but I have been in the business twenty years and never told a lie," said the guileless dry goods clerk. "And why do you begin now?" said the gentle fair one in front of the counter as she gathered her draperies together and glided away.

"I love my wife," young Mr. Oculus, who has been married only six weeks, was saying. "I love my wife as no other man does." And then the rippling smile of approbation went around the company and died away in whispering giggles in shadowed window seats and dimly lighted corners, and the young man felt that he had himself understood just as he wished to be.

HALL'S STANDARD FIRE AND BURGLAR PROOF SAFES.

Read the following from N. C. Snyder, Banker at Grenada, Miss. Thousands of similar letters on file from all parts of the Union.

BANKING HOUSE OF N. C. SNYDER, GRENADA, MISS., March 25th, 1880.

HALL'S SAFE AND LOCK CO., Louisville, KY.

Gents:—I can more fully carry in writing to one of the merits of the Fire and Burglar Proof Safe you sold me about three years ago, and which was never tested in its fire to November last, when my banking house was burned with twenty buildings in one street of this city. My Banking-house, transmitting the first building fire, the back room still standing in one block. In attempting to get the safe out of the house from its great weight, it broke through the floor near the front door, and was thus unmovable. The continued flames of a house near the rear of, and the back room of the bank were concentrated upon the safe, forming a kind of compound blowpipe. No one acquainted with the quality of iron, but will acknowledge that no severer test could have been especially devised to burn a safe than this. But on opening it, when it was still hot, the entire contents of the Burglar Box were uninjured. The Ledger sound. Some of the backs of small and slightly bound books, where this was used, melted off, while the leaves of some of the books and pocket-books was from the intensity of the heat, crisped up. I was away from home when the fire occurred, and when advised by telegram, I felt like the boy in Scotland, who was lowered over a frightful precipice, was asked if he was safe, his reply was, "Yes, my father held the end of the rope." So with me, I had a Hall Safe, and I felt sure its contents were safe and secure—such being my confidence in the entire security of your Fire and Burglar Proof Safe offered. I have the pleasure to say to you that the new Fire and Burglar Proof safe you have specially made for me, has been for some weeks in position in my new quarters, and the skill of the workmanship and the beauty of its appearance are greatly admired. I should not be satisfied with any other safe than yours.

Yours, very truly, N. C. SNYDER.
