With Pen and Pencil.

"No, sir; I don't believe newspaper men are more dissipated than any other class of men who earn their living by their brains," said Mr. A. H. Siegfrid, Manager of the Advertising Department of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press. Still, those of them who do desk-work are tempted to stimulate, for it's very hard on the nerves and stomach."

"As for example—?"

"As for example, in my own case. I stuck to my desk on this paper until my nerves were like a bunch of telegraph wires after a gale, and my stomach kept about as good time as a two dollar watch. My friends suggested this and the doctors advised that, but one day I 'caught on' to an 'ad.' of PARKER'S TONIC, and tried it. I have never endorsed a proprietary medicine before, but I shall depart from my rule and say that the Tonic is not merely the best thing but the only thing that breaks up these attacks. All desk-workers should make a note of it."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior articles under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant flavoring ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the fac simile signature of HISCOX & Co. is at the bottom of the outside wrapper. sept 11-d&w

Farmers, Take Notice.

MORRIS' HOG CHOLERA COMPOUND is just the thing to cure or prevent Hog Cholera and all diseases to which Swine are subject; it will prevent that dreadful disease known as Trichna, and will put your hogs in a thrifty, healthy condition, clearing the kidneys, liver, &c., of worms and parasites

Each package contains one and one-half pounds and will, if given strictly according to directions, cure 10 hogs of the Cholera and put 20 hogs in a condition to fatten in one half the usual time, thereby saving one half of the feed. The farmers of Duplin county are giving it the praise. All farmers should buy a package.

MANS GROWS IN STRIFE.

A noble man may to a narrow sphere
Not owe his training. In his country he
And in the world must learn to be at home
And bear both praise and blame, and by long proof.
Of contest and collision nicely know
Himself and others—not in solitude
Cradling his soul in dreams of fair conceit.
A foe will not, a true friend dare not, spare him;
And thus in strife of well-tried powers he grows,
Feels what he is, and feels himself a man.
—Goethe.

ELECRIFIED LIQUOR.

How Whiskey May be Given Age Within a Few Hours.

The latest and certainly the strangest use to which electricity has been put is to a process of "giving age" to whiskey and wines. It is the discovery of a Californian, who has succeeded in getting patents from the United States, and has at the same time interested the internal revenue commissioner to such an extent that special privileges to experiment with bonded whiskey have been accorded him. A series of trials are being conducted at a store on Washington street, between Montgomery and Sansome, under the supervision of a deputy revenue collector. The process in question is exceedingly simple, and, if all is true that is claimed for it, it will revolutionize the liquor and wine trade. It is nothing more than a quick and cheap method of refining, that being done in from twelve to forty-eight hours, which formerly required years to accomplish.

Two blocks of carbon wrapped up in flannel are inserted in the liquor to be purified, and these carbons are connected with the positive and negative poles of an ordinary Brush electric machine. Electricity is then generated by the usual means and the process of purification and refining proceeds. The chemical action upon the liquor is such that all impurities are attracted to the negative carbon-covering flannel. The excess of fusel oil also finds lodgment here, and when the cloth is removed, it looks as if had been steeped for a day and a year in Far Flat brine. It is asserted that the liquor does not lose proof during the process. Light wines require about two hours of this electric churning; fortified wines are rendered mellow in twelve hours, and the hardest and deadliest sample of alcoholic distillation is made comparatively harmless within forty eight hours. If all that is claimed for the invention is founded on facts its proper importance upon the wine-making industry can hardly be overestimated. It will then be no longer necessary to send casks of port on sea voyages around the world, and Eastern wine merchants need no longer have recourse to the prevarication that French wine, having undergone a sea voyage, is necessarily better than the domestic product. Age, the great disideratum for California wine, can be produced by the aid of a dynamo-electric machine. Every saloon can own a little machine, turned by hand, dog or steam, and every person can be personally convinced that the liquor which is set before them is electrically pure and old. "Give it a shock," will become as common as "A little water, please," the sting will be taken out of many a temperance speech, and mania-potu will no longer be dubbed "horrors,"—San Francisco Chronicle.

SLY BEN BUTLER.

Southerners in Boston Treated with Especial Graciousness.

A special dispatch from Boston says: General Butler's shrewdness in making friends who may possibly be useful to him is illustrated by his efforts to conciliate the Southerners attending the Institute Fair. It is well known that Butler has his eye on the Presidency He knows that he is more vigorously hated in the South than in any other section of the country, and he acts accordingly. He was invited to attend the Foreign Exhibition opening, but was not present. He presided at the opening of the Institute Fair, not because he admired its managers more than those of the Foreign Exhibition, but because he knew that about the fair would centre the Southern interest.

Several Southern States, notably North Carolina, were largely represented at this show. He thereupon puts himself out to be gracious to those Southern gentlemen, and has so well succeeded with Governor Jarvis, of North Carolina, the first prominent Southerner to arrive, as to cause this gentleman to say publicly that Butler is a much better man than he had supposed, or words to that effect. When Mrs. "Stonewall" Jackson and daughter arrived in Boston this morning they were waited upon by Butler, who in his blandest manner paid the widow of the distinguished soldier many attentions, and escorted her down to breakfast.

Fifty prominent business men from North Carolina, many of them from Wilmington and its vicinity, arrived in Boston Saturday night, twenty-five more are expected to arrive on Monday. Governor Jarvis says that within the next five weeks there will be more North Carolinians in Boston than were ever here before.

More Precious than Ever.

"Do you like apple pie?"

The soft sighing wind of a dreamy, one-light-undershirt-and-no-suspender evening in June was kissing the fluffy mass of golden hair that surrounded Ethlyn McNulty's perfectly shaped head, and as she looked trustingly up into the face of the one man in all the wide, wide world to whom she had given the priceless treasure of her girlish, summer-resort love, George W. Simpson felt the balm of her doughnut breath on his lips and knew, that come weal or woe, be the day radiant with the golden sunshine of fortune or darkened by the gaunt, haggard figure of despair, there would always be one heart that beat for him alone. Ere the last rays of another setting sun shall again gild the eternal hills and such stray cows as happen to be standing around, a cassocked priest shall make these twain one for life, and George will be twenty dollars loser. This last thought steals over him as he stands there, Ethyl's arms around his neck, and as it swashes mournfully around the precincts of his soul, his thoughts drift back to the happy past, when he was a merry, light hearted boy with a sore toe. But suddenly the touch of a damask check against his own brings the reverie to a close. A pair of bright sparkling eyes—eyes that will soon be picking out bonnets at his expense—are looking at him, and he fancies that in their depths he sees a tinge of melarcholy, a lambent gleam of no caramels for three days, that goes to his very heart.

"You are sad, my darling," he says, pressing her closely to the 'midship rib of his larboard side. "Why do you look so sorrowful?"

"Because," she replies, "you have not answered my question. I asked you if you liked apple pie?"

"Yes," he says, "I do, I am deeply enamored of pie in every shape."

Hardly have the words left his lips when Ethlyn's head droops and presently her lithe form is shaken by a storm of sobs. George is horror-stricken He has not felt such a shock since the Philadelphia nine won a game.

"Why do you weep, my precious one?" he asks, bending tenderly over her.

"Because," she answers him, her voice husky with grief, "I cannot make pie."

"Is this true? Are you certain there is no mistake?"

"None, none," Ethlyn moans, despairingly; "I cannot cook at all!"

"Then," he says, raining a shower of kisses on the upturned face, "you are more precious to me than ever."—Chicago Tribune.

Another Life Saved.

Mrs. Harriet Cummings, of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes:

Early last winter my daughter was attacked with a severe cold which settled on her lungs. We tried several medicines, none of which seemed to do her any good, but she continued to get worse, and finally raised large amounts of blood from her lungs We called in a family physician, but he failed to do her any good. We then called in a physician—a most skillful professor in one of our colleges—he said that she could not get well. At this time a friend who had been cnred by DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, advised me to give it a trial. We then got a bottle and before she had used it all up she began to improve, and by the use of three botties was entirely cured.

would never have been awarded to Venus if her teeth had been yellow. Frail mortals, unlike the deities of fable, have perishable teeth, but these they may retain unimpaired to an advanced age, if they will use SOZODONT, which keeps the teeth free from impurities which destroy them and renders them objects of admiration. It is pure, refreshing, leaves an agreeable flavor in the mouth and sweetens the breath.
