A FRENCH DISH.

A celebrated restaurateur of Paris makes a delicious dish with rats. He dresses them with champagne and spices. He cannot fill all the orders he receives. In short, the last chic is to eat rat. The market for these little beasts is held in front of the Hotel de Ville. The rats are shut up in a great cage, where the buyer selects his rat, which is then driven by the seller into a small cage, where it is alone. A bulldog is then brought, the cage is shaken, the rat rushes out and is seized by the dog, which gives it a squeeze, and deposits the dead rat delicately at the feet of the purchaser.

DAMAGES FOR RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

In the British Board of Trade returns it is stated that the railroads of Great Britain and Ireland paid in damages for accidents occurring in 1868 the sum of $2,103,855, of which $1,407,940 were for injuries to persons, and $695,915 for damages to goods. The awards for 1869 and 1870 are, as yet, only estimated, since a number of large suits are still pending, but the totals of both years will probably exceed that of 1868.

PRUSSIAN ACCOUNTS.

A telegram from Versailles, the headquarters of the German armies in France, dismisses the French claim to a great victory near Bapaume with the statement that Faidherbe's army has been dispersed. Cool as this is, it must be remembered that the intelligence which comes from Versailles is very rarely exaggerated or untruthful. Bourbaki and Chanzy are reported moving, but that seems to be the extent of their performances, neither of them having yet accomplished anything with the armies under their command.

NOTHING CAN SAVE HIM BUT A SENSATION.

The New York Herald declares that Grant's only hope for continuance in power is to get up something bold and startling. If he does not accomplish this purpose of pandering to the passion of the Northern heart, the Herald thinks the popular mind will seek vent in a political revolution, and another reconstruction of the United States, beginning with the shortest method of settling the national debt."

CANALS vs. RAILROADS.

The New York Tribune remarks that the New York State canals have not proved formidable rivals to the iron routes. Their trafic has not been increased by the reduction in freights, and consequently the revenue has fallen very far short of the expenditure. This is canal history everywhere, all over the country, where brought in competition with railway transportation.

WHAT NAPOLEON SAYS.

Napoleon is reported as having said lately that he will never return to France unless recalled by the deliberate vote of the people, who have four times elected him to rule them. The army, he says, "possesses no more right to place me on the throne than had the lawyers and loafers to push me from it."

INTERNAL REVENUE.

The collections of the United States internal revenue for December are $9,510,174 58, or $2,209,467 98 less than for December, 1869. For the last six months they aggregate $83,113,319 76, or $1,354,968 81 less than for the corresponding period of the preceding year.

How the War Works.

A private letter from Mulhouse, in Alsace, which has found its way to the office of the Public Record, gives a melancholy picture of the ravage and ruin, the suffering and the anxiety already caused by the France-German war. "The women of Alsace and Lorraine," says the writer, "tremble at the thought that, while their husbands, sons and brothers are already gone, when their little sons are grown to manhood, they, too, must be sacrificed to a war destined then to break out more furiously than ever. Here the principal men we meet are soldiers, driving away magnificent oxen, or forcing the unhappy peasants to follow in their march, with their carts laden with food and forage. Soon we shall have neither potatoes nor any other vegetables to eat. Fortunately Basle is at our gates, and all the Swiss here are proud of their little country, so well has she conducted herself. Meanwhile, the war has taken from the shops their ordinary [illegible] of goods. There is no flannel, for example, to be had in Mulhouse. Embroidery will [illegible] from holiday presents; and in Geneva, too, which is occupied in working for the prisoners in France and Germany, only needful and useful things are to be given at Christmas and New Year's; for it seems a kind of sin now to indulge in ordinary luxuries." Such casual pictures as these give a vivid idea of what the war is doing—its influence on domestic life, as well as its horrors in the field.—Phil. Record.

A Band of Young Robbers.

During the last year or two Sacramento and its vicinity has been plagued by a band of native robbers and desperadoes, without being able to detect and punish them. The young ruffians are not driven to crime by destitution, but are the sons of respectable, well-to do people, who have probably allowed them to run at large or read such books as "Sixteen-String Jack," "Paul Clifford" and "Rinaldo Rinaldini, the Captain of a Band of Robbers." Two of these precious boys, named "Al" Geary and "Al" Post, have been making a confession to the following effect: The band consisted of nine young men, having signs, passwords, ciphers, and all other appliances needed in the calling. In May, 1869, they fired a school house; in October tried to burn a dwelling; in July robbed a man of $150, and broke into a clergyman's house. Afterwards they made a raid on the building occupied by the Sisters of Mercy. In February they stole eighteen pairs of boots, while October again found them in a clergyman's house, stealing over $800. In July they took again to the incendiary line of business, doing some little jobs in robbing and burglary. Then they assaulted and tried to shoot Assemblyman King, of Nevada county, after which they broke into a church and stole all they could lay their hands on, besides all of which they committed nineteen other crimes and outrages, definitely pointed out by the Sacramento Record, and all within two years.

Arkansas—The Governor's Message.

MEMPHIS, January 5.

The Avalanche has a synopsis of Governor Clayton's message to the Arkansas Legislature. He congratulates them on the prosperous condition of the State; the dying out of old prejudices and animosities; recommends a reduction of taxes, and, as means to that end, the abolition and consolidation of certain officers, a limitation of taxes, including those of district schools; also, a reduction of the number of supreme judges from five to three, and the abolition of the disfranchisement clause in the constitution, the last to be submitted to the people. He says the present encouraging condition of affairs fully warrants the carrying out of his pledge, made a year ago, and recommends that county assessors act as registrars. He leaves to the Legislature to say whether he shall retain the extraordinary appointing power now in his hands. He has made every effort to ferret out the parties who destroyed State arms on the Mississippi river, ascertained the names of several concerned, but could find no one willing to make the necessary affidavit for a requisition on the Governor of Tennessee. The message was received with applause.

Outrages in Alabama—Retribution.

One of the most outrageous cold blooded murders was committed in Cherokee county, Alabama, last week. Mitchell Davis, a promising young man, was shot and instantly killed by negroes lying in ambush by the roadside. The young man was on the eve of being married, and on his way to visit his affianced. Statements differ as to the motives of the shooting; some saying the negroes intended to kill his cousin, some his father. The negroes fired also on different parties who were hurrying to the spot where young Davis was lying. The excitement in that section produced by this affair is indescribable. But it rose to fever heat when the the report spread, and verified by respectable parties that disguised bands of negroes were traversing the country, murdering white men and women. Already a war between the two races was imminent, when the Ku Klux appeared upon the scene. Taking the law into their own hands, they silently but surely began their bloody work. Last accounts from that section were that four negroes had already been killed.

What They are Doing in Paris.

A balloon letter from Paris has just been received in New York city. Its burthen is the commissariat of the besieged city. It is says that "people are certainly eating rats and cats" in Paris, and describes, in a quaint way, the qualities and peculiarities of rat and cat flesh. Of everything but fresh meat to eat, the Parisians, according to this letter, have an abundance yet. A very large amount of food has been hidden away, and will not be brought out until the last extremity. The date of the letter is December 12.—Balt. Sun.

THE MEDICINE OF THE PERIOD!

KOSKOO!

AS A

Liver Invigorator

STANDS UNRIVALLED!

Being the only known Medicine that Efficiently Stimulates and Corrects the Hepatic Secretions and Functional Derangements of the Liver, without Debilitating the System.

SYMPTOMS OF LIVER COMPLAINT, AND SOME OF THE DISEASES PRODUCED BY IT.

A SALLOW or yellow color of the Skin, or yellowish-brown spots on the face and other parts of the body; dullness and drowsiness, sometimes headache; bitter or bad taste in the mouth; internal heat; in many cases a dry, teasing cough; unsteady appetite; sometimes a sour stomach, with a raising of the food; a bloated or full feeling about the stomach and sides; aggravating pains in the sides, back, or breast, and about the shoulders; constipation of the bowels, piles, flatulence, coldness of the extremities, &c.

The Liver is one of the most important organs of the body, and the whole process of digestion and assimilation depends upon a healthy performance of its functions. When it becomes deranged, and fails in its healthy action, these important functions in the animal economy are interrupted, and in addition, the bile, being crowded back, is reabsorbed and carried into the blood, poisoning its life giving qualities, giving rise to sallowness of the complexion, Biliousness, Jaundice, Headache, Despondency, and the whole train of Hypochondriac feelings. As the bile is the natural purgative by which the bowels are stimulated to carry off the excrementitious matter, if there is a deficient secretion of the Liver, costiveness results, and in its turn aggravates all these various disorders. Under these circumstances, if the Liver is not stimulated to healthy action by appropriate remedies, it becomes swollen and engorged, and inflammation is set up. DR. LAWRENCE'S KOSKOO has a direct and powerful action upon the Liver, and will with great certainty relieve torpidity and congestion of this important viscera, and on this account is superior to any other medicine yet brought to the notice of the public. In these various deragements of the Liver a full dose of the KOSKOO should be taken regularly, with a view to its alterative effect upon the Liver, gradually restoring it to its former healthy action.
