He took his seat amid a perfect roar of applause; whereupon Dr. Satchwell offered the following resolution which was unanimously adopted:

The Medical Discussion at Statesville.

The discussion before the State Medical Society at the recent meeting at Statesville on the nature and treatment of inflammation and fevers, between Dr. Satchwell, of this county, and Dr. Norcom, of Edenton, excited much interest, as it does generally, in the profession, and even causes some enquiry among outsiders who are fond of science. One school is that of conservative medicine which advocates medical progress and at times more vigorous measures in the treatment of severe fevers and high inflammatory diseases than is tolerated by what is called the modern school of Restorative Medicine. The former school use calomel, and in some very violent cases even bleed, while the latter ignore such measures and contend that nutrition, aided by nature, affords the only rational basis for treating disease. This is the main difference, as we learn, between these two opposing systems of the regular old fashioned, or allopathic school of legitimate medicine. In this State Dr. Satchwell is the recognized champion of the Conservative party in medicine, and Dr. Norcom the champion of the Restorative party, or that of Drs. Todd, Bennett and others of Europe. The two champions measured swords at Statesville. Both are highly complimented. It devolved on Dr. Satchwell to open the debate, which he did in an elaborate and exhaustive speech of two hours and a quarter. Dr. Norcom followed with an address of an hour. Each speaker discussed principles and advocated the doctrines of his own school and opposed those of the other. The discussion, as we see, then dwindled down more into a desultory and polemical character, and was carried on mainly by other prominent physicians present. In the course of the debate we learn that Dr. Satchwell made a scathing reply to those two able Editors, Dr. Gaillard of the Richmond and Louisville Medical Journal, and Dr. Austie of the London Practitioner who had made elaborate and disparaging Reviews of a former paper of his before the State Society on disease. These two caustic writers so well known for the severity of their criticisms were handled on this occasion without gloves, and are said to have been effectually paid back in their own coin, by Dr. Satchwell. We take no part in this discussion. "When Doctors differ who shall decide?" We have alluded to the debate as a public matter of important professional interest. Besides, the report of the discussion as published by our friends of the Raleigh News, does not present, as we are informed, the positions of Dr. Satchwell correctly. His opening speech was not a reply to the previous remarks at Newbern of Dr. Norcom, but was a general vindication of conservatism in medicine, against what he deems the radicalism of the restorative school. He did not insist upon the application of the doctrines of antiphlogistic medicine in the prevailing indications and type of disease, except in now and then a case, but contended that every case of disease should be treated according to existing indications and by the rules of common sense and experience. The Raleigh News reports him as advocating "at great length the principles of antiphlogistic medicine" and the erroneous inference therefrom is that he is an unwavering advocate generally of depletion which is not his position. His speech will be published in full as made at Statesville, and then the errors and mistakes of meagre and imperfect newspaper reports of it will be seen, and it will speak for itself.

Since writing the above we find the following in the Statesville Intelligencer: "Dr. S. S. Satchwell's address on Pathology, &c., delivered before the State Medical Society, on last Wednesday afternoon, was a masterpiece in composition and theory. Nothing that we could say would add a jot or title to the meed of praise which justly falls to the honor of the distinguished physician who delivered it."

A Sudden and Strange Attack.

Wm. Cutlar, colored, day janitor at the Guard House, went to the city pound yesterday about 12 o'clock for the purpose of superintending the sale of a number of hogs left unclaimed. After the business was concluded he took a seat on the head of an upturned barrel, and those who accompanied him on the occasion left him sitting there. He failed to return to the Guard House, but nothing was thought of the circumstance, it being supposed that he had gone home, until about half-past 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when an attache of the City Hall was dispatched to ascertain his whereabouts. He repaired first to the city pound and there he found the old man lying on the ground, foaming at the mouth and utterly unconscious. How long he had been in that condition is unknown, but he had evidently been seized with a fit of some sort and fallen from his position on the barrel to the ground. He was immediately placed in a vehicle and carried to his home, where, at last accounts, he was lying in a critical condition.

A Highway Robber Comes to Grief.

Wm. Myers, one of the colored city lamplighters, was on his way home about 1 o'clock on Sunday morning, when, feeling unwell, he stopped and sat down in a doorway to rest himself for a few minutes. This was on Princess, between Sixth and Seventh streets. After remaining there a few minutes two of his colored friends came along and urged him to allow them to accompany him home. This proffered assistance he refused to accept, stating that he would remain there a few moments longer and then go home. They departed and had barely gotten out of sight when another colored individual came up and, halting in front of Myer, called him. He made no answer, and the call was repeated, with like result. The man then approached Myers and gave him a moderate shake, and upon his paying no attention to it, he remarked, sotto voce, "The fellow is drunk!" He thereupon run his hand into the pocket of the apparantly slumbering lamplighter, drew out his book, abstracted what money it contained and dropped it on the ground. He then started to move off, but had proceeded but a few steps when the heavy hand of the burly lamplighter fell upon the shoulder of the highwayman like a sledge-hammer, followed by the exclamation, "I was neither drunk nor asleep, and if you know when you are well off you will hand me the money you stole from my pocket book!" The robber held the money tightly clutched in one hand, but after a brief struggle, coming to the conclusion that "discretion was the better part of valor," he released it. He was then collared by Myers and taken to the Guard House, where he gave his name as Onslow Merrick. Yesterday he was examined by Mayor Canaday and required to give security in the sum of $250 for his appearance at Court. He was then turned over to the Sheriff, who, in default of bail, lodged the offender in jail.

Merrick is said to be a preacher, or exhorter.

The Cotton Crop.

The cotton crop in Anson is represented to be badly injured by the heavy rains which have fallen recently, and not more than two-thirds of last year's yield is expected. There was a large amount of fertilizers used by the planters in that section, but it has nearly all been washed off, and will result in little if any benefit to the crops. The corn crop has suffered considerably, but nothing approaching the same extent as the cotton crop.

— Mr. D. B. Livingston, of Richmond county, who was shot and severely wounded some time since, is nearly well.

— Sunday was a pleasant day and as a consequence the various churches were well attended.

ANOTHER WARNING.

Death of a Young Colored Man by the Accidental Discharge of a Gun—His Involuntary Slayer About to Die of Grief, &c.

On Sunday afternoon, about 4½ o'clock, a fatal accident occurred at a house on the corner of Church and Thirteenth streets, caused by the careless use of a deadly weapon. The victim was a young colored man by the name of Henry Wilson and his involuntary slayer a colored woman by the name of Annie J. Alexander. Wilson, it seems, who resided on the corner of Eleventh and Chesnut streets, and followed the business of a drayman, had been partially raised by the woman alluded to, and was in the habit of visiting her every Sunday, seeming to regard her with almost the same affection as if she had been his mother. On last Sunday afternoon he went to see her as usual, and soon after the two, in company with others, commenced a playful badinage, and finally the woman seized a double-barrel shot gun standing in a corner, as if she was going to shoot him. Holding the weapon in one hand, she let the barrel drop into the palm of the other, the muzzle pointing directly at Wilson, when it was instantly discharged, the load entering just below the right shoulder blade, ranging upward, tearing the shoulder blade in pieces and severing the subclavian artery, causing a profuse hemorrhage. As the strick en man fell he exclaimed, "Oh, Aunt Annie, you have shot me!" and she replied, "Oh, my dear, I didn't know the gun was loaded!" The husband of the woman immediately started for a physician and soon returned with Dr. Winants, but the poor fellow died in a few minutes after his arrival. At that time the floor was covered with blood, which was running into an adjoining room.

It seems that one barrel of the gun had been loaded on Saturday evening by one Ben Farrow, during the woman's absence down the street, for the purpose of shooting bull-bats. She inquired Saturday morning if it was loaded and was informed it was not, and she was not aware that it had since been handled.

Coroner Hewlett summoned a jury yesterday and held an inquest over the body, a verdict being returned that deceased came to his death by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of Annie Jane Alexander.

The woman is said to be frantic with grief and at last accounts it was feared that she would not recover from the effects produced by the terrible disaster.

The remains of the unfortunate young man were taken to the Christian Chapel, corner of Seventh and Church streets, yesterday afternoon, where a vast concourse of colored people assembled. From there the body was followed to its last resting place in Pine Forrest Cemetery by the Cape Fear S. F. E. Company No. 3, of which he was a member, together with another organization and headed by the Rose Bud Band. His funeral was a large and imposing one.

This is another warning of the danger of playing with deadly weapons under any circumstances.

Colored Boy Drowned.

A colored boy, about 15 or 16 years of age, by the name of John ——, employed as a waiter on the Government Steam Tug Jas. T. Boston, was accidentally drowned yesterday evening, about 7 o'clock. The boat was lying at a wharf some distance beyond the old depot of the W. & W. Railroad. The boy left the boat and went on a raft, inquiring of the fireman if he knew how deep the water was at that point. The latter answered he could not tell him, whereupon the boy stripped off his clothes and jumped into the river. It is supposed that he could not swim and imagined that he could get bottom, as he floundered about for sometime and finally sank. There were a number of flats close at hand upon which men were at work, but the unfortunate boy had gone down before any assistance could be rendered him. An effort was made to recover his body, but without success.

Peace Warrants.

Samuel Collier, colored, was arrested yesterday on two warrants, one at the instance of his wife, Caledonia, and the other on the complaint of Mary Vann. The cases came up for a hearing before Justice T. M. Gardner, who required the defendant to enter into security in the sum of $50 in each case to keep the peace, in default of which he was committed to jail.

Capsized.

A small sail boat, belonging to an officer of the Steamship Pioneer, and containing three men, was accidentally capsized on the river yesterday morning. One of the men struck off and swam to the ferry boat, being rescued by the persons on board. The other two remained by their little craft, righted her and bailed the water out of her, seeming to mind but little the ducking they had received.

Miscellaneous.

Constable Highsmith of Harnett Township arrived in this city yesterday, having in his custody one Jerry Kelley, sent under a commitment from Justice Deleware Nixon, in which he is charged with a misdemeanor. On giving bail in the sum of $200, which was required of him, he was released to appear at the next term of the Superior Court.

— The Pastors of the First Presbyterian, Baptist and Lutheran churches being absent from the city, no services were held in their respective houses of worship on Sunday.

Local Dots.

— Some of our citizens who purchase eggs complain that they are damaged by being packed in sawdust.

— Several inquires have been made why the street cars did not run on Saturday night for the benefit of market goers.

— Sandy Johnson and Ella Morrison, both colored, were "granted permission to enter" the County Work House yesterday.

— St. John's Lodge No. 1, F. & A. M., holds an emergent communication this evening, at 8 o'clock, for work in the Master's degree.

— The annual convocation of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of this State will be held in this city, commencing on the 2d of June.

— The Episcopal Convention will commence its session in Fayetteville on Wednesday. Several delegates were to go up on the boat last night.

— It is stated that bees are suffering on account of the scarcity of flowers and that in consequence there will be but very little honey made the present season.

— Rev. Nicholas Talley died in Columbia, S. C., a few days ago. He was a member of the South Carolina Annual Conference and well known in this city.

— Rev. C. W. Warren, by special invitation, preached at the colored Methodist church, corner of Fifth and Red Cross streets, on Sunday afternoon last.

— The Opera House was crowded to overflowing on Sunday evening by those assembled to listen to Rev. C. W. Warren, of the "Independent Church." A number remained outside the building, being unable to procure seats.

Health Matters.

In our next we shall publish in our advertising columns the health ordinance of the city, to which we shall invite the earnest attention of our people. We are glad to learn that active measures have been taken by the authorities for cleansing the city, four carts having been set apart for that duty exclusively.

MERITED DISTINCTION.—The well known Groton Junction, on the great thoroughfare of the Northern lines to Boston, has caused to be built, with a large and increasing population, proud as well as the prosperous, its citizens, in mass meeting assembled, have voted to change the name of their town to "AYER"—after one of the best known men in America, Dr. J. C. AYER, of Lowell—and the Legislature of Massachusetts has enacted that decision into law. We commend the choice, for not only is the name short and distinctive, but Dr. AYER's medicines have made it gratefully known to the ends of the earth. Probably, no living man has carried relief to such countless multitudes of the sick as he, and this high honor, from his neighbors, tells the estimation in which he is held by those who know him.—Bristol Tribune. mar 22-eod1w-th
