THE SENTINEL.

Monday Oct. 29, 1866.

The following advertisement illustrates the greatness of the number of words commencing with the letter "S,"—almost a language of themselves. It is said to be a literal copy of a notice posted in a prominent place in one of the flourishing towns in the County Cork, Ireland:

"Will be sold, or set up for sale, on Saturday, the sixth day of September next, in the town of Skivemeen, Spanker, the property of Seth O'Sullivan, a strong, staunch, steady, sound, safe, sincere, serviceable, stepping, supple, swift sorrel stallion. He is slightly, sprightly, spirited, sturdy, shining, sure-footed, slack, smooded, spunky, well shinned. He is sized and shaped sweetly, saddle steard of superlative symmetry, named and styled, as aforesaid, Spanker, with a small star and snip. He is square-sided, slender-shoulder ed, sharp-sighted, and steps singularly stately. He is free from strain, spain, or spavin. He is neither stiff-mouthed, shabby-coated, sinew-shrunk, spur-galled, saddle-backed, shell-toothed, slim-girthed, short-winded, splay-footed or shoulder-slipped, and is sound in the four points and in the stifle joint. He has neither sick-spleen, sleeping evil, set-fast, snaggle-tooth, sub-tumors, sores or shattering hoofs. Nor is he sour, sullen, surly, stubborn or sullen-tempered. He is neither shy, skittish, slow, sluggish or stupid. He never slips, strips, strays, snifles or stalks in his stall or stable, and scarcely ever or seldom sweats. He has a showy, stylish switch tail on his stern and a side set of shoes on his feet. He can feed on soil, stubble, sinfar, sheaf oats, straw, sage, or Scotch grass. He can carry sixteen stone with a surprising speed, and stride a six-foot stone wall on a stroke. His sire was the Sly Supple Sides, out of a sister of Spindle Shanks, by Samson, a sporting son of Sparkler, who won the sweepstakes and subscription plate last season at Sligo. His selling price is sixty-seven pounds, sixteen shillings sixpence sterling.

A NUT FOR ABOLITIONISTS.—The following little incident, a volume in itself, is related to us by a merchant of Norfolk, himself the agent of the freedman alluded to below, and is worthy of a place in history, and will do more than a hundred speakers can accomplish in refutation of the vile calumnies of abolitionists against the inhumanity of the former owners of slaves. But to the incident: "It happened during the late struggle for Southern independence that a servant of Mr.———, residing in the State of Georgia, near the coast, was overtaken by the Federals, and forced into the service on board a United States vessel. Some months since he arrived in a Southern city, possessed of several hundred dollars. He at once wrote to his master, and on receiving an answer to the letter, he called on a gentleman who was attending to some business for him, and thus reported the correspondence: 'I have just heard from my master; he writes me that his house was burned and his property entirely destroyed by the Yankees; his own health is very bad, and as I know he has a large family to support, I am anxious that you, Mr.———, should arrange my business as soon as you possibly can, that I may take what money I have and go and divide it with him. He has been a kind master to me, and I intend to work for him and his children the remainder of my days.'—Norfolk Virginian.

Facts vs. Theorics.

"Give me a place to rest my lever on," says Archimedes, "and I will move the world." "Give me pure and unadulterated drugs," says Medicus, of the olden time, "and I will cure disease."

In one sense, both of these learned pundits were the veriest charlatans. They knew there was no place to rest their lever on, either to move the world or cure disease. Mechanism was in a backward state, and the medical profession was but another name for sorcery, and all the adjuncts of magic filters and charms of the "evil eye," &c.

But these latter days have borne onto us something more than even superstition and its crew ever dreamt of in their maddest philosophy. In these days of practical science, what was theory of yesterday is fact to-day, and all the old time notions become as foolishes in the sun, and burst and break with every breath we draw.

Let Archimedes shoulder his lever and we will find a resting place for it to move the world. Let mine ancient Medicus part and toil no more for the drugs he so sorely needs, for we have them at our hand, ever ready to serve them at his beck.

Refined in the laboratory of Dr. Maggiel, the finest materials known in the medical profession are obtainable by any one. His Billious, Dyspeptic, and Diarrhea Pills stand unrivalled, and his Salve operates with magical effect upon burns, scalds, and all sores and ulcers of the skin.

In fact, we think Maggiel's Pills and Salve are the wonder of this century, and we are happy in the thought that many others of our brethren of the craft agree with us. We would earnestly counsel that all families provide themselves with Dr. Maggiel's preparations at once, and keep them ready at hand, so as to use them at the most opportune time and as occasion serves.—Valley Sentinel.

TOMATO WINE.—It may not be known to all our readers that an excellent wine can be made from tomatoes. We have drunk wine of this kind, which good judges, unaware of its nature, pronounced still Catawba. The following is said to be a good receipt for tomato wine, which is said to retain all well known medicinal properties of the fruit: Express the juice of ripe tomatoes, put one pound of sugar to each quart of the juice, and bottle. In a few weeks it will have the appearance and flavor of pure wine of the best kind. No alcohol is needed to preserve it. Mixed with water, it is a delightful beverage for the sick.

INFALLIBLE YEAST POWDERS.

Scientific men, who thoroughly understand the subject, concur with great unanimity in saying that nothing enters into the composition of human food so injurious to health as bad bread. The remedy is at hand. MC SIMPSON'S INFALLIBLE YEAST POWDERS, the value of which is thus certified:

RALEIGH, Aug. 24, 1866.

I have tested the Yeast Powders you manufacture and can recommend them as vastly superior to any other ever used by me. In addition to the lightness and sweetness of the bread, the economy is no inconsiderable, as one-third the lard usually required will answer in the making of either loaf bread or biscuit, for pastries and cakes they are excellent.

VINCENT K. DUNN,
Confectioner.

The price of these powders per package is 25 cts. or 75 cts. per pound. To be had at Wm. Simpson's Confectionery store, Fayetteville street, Raleigh, N. C.

RALEIGH, Aug. 23, 1866.

This is to certify that I have used Mc Simpson's Yeast Powders and find them to be superior to any I have ever used. After trying them once, no housekeeper will be without them.

MRS. S. P. HARRIS.

RALEIGH, Aug. 22, 1866.

I have tried Mr. Wm. Simpson's Yeast Powders and find them very good.
