PREPARING FOR MORE RASCALITY.

The Ring have determined to try their hand on New York inasmuch as they were so very successful in Philadelphia. They began their villainies in North Carolina, and having cheated the honest people out of their rights by electing Smallpugus, Gradgrind, Chadband and Company through innumerable frauds, they next tried the same game and successfully in Maine, thence in Pennsylvania, and now they will attempt to repeat it in the great city of the Continent. To this end they have already begun to prepare their rascally plans. The last session of the United States Congress amended the election law, previously concocted, so that frauds might the more easily be attempted and the purity of the ballot could the more easily be assailed.

We learn from the [illegible] that U. S. Commissioner Davenport has begun the dirty work by selecting from among the Ring office-holders one hundred and forty nine of them to act as Supervisors. From what transpired in Philadelphia, we may well imagine whose interest will be protected by them. The people will be the sole sufferers, whilst Useless Simple will be only recipient of favors. Here is the list, showing how the appointments are distributed:

Custom House inspectors, clerks, &c.,	81
Revenue officers,	9
Post Office clerks and letter carriers,	46
Brooklyn Navy Yard employees,	14
Total officials appointed,	149

This is merely a beginning; others will soon follow. We see from this how very little liberty is left to the people even in matters of election. There is the mere semblance of a free ballot—a shadow—a deception. The form is preserved, the spirit has departed. Here it is manifest that the entire machinery of elections is in the hands of the corrupt party in power—that the federal government has invaded the most sacred prerogatives of the States, and prostituted and debauched the ballot.

Heretofore this federal interference has been confined to localities, but it is gradually invading all the States, and its insidious and stealthy progress is discernible now in many towns and cities. The purchase, dearly purchased, inalienable rights and privileges of the people have been assailed, and liberty is threatened with violence and destruction in its very strongholds. The method resorted to by the Grant Ring to undermine and destroy all that remains of Constitutional government is so dangerous a sentiment. It strikes at the very root of the tree of liberty—it is Bedlamism in its essence. It is Louis Napoleonism—blind Cæsarism, without wisdom, without mercy. The surest way to destroy republicanism is under the forms of law, to subvert the purity and freedom of the ballot, and concentrate the power over the machinery of elections in the hands of the federal authorities. Any fool can see that when this is safely done, that the rulers can perpetuate their lease upon office indefinitely. We fairly tremble for the safety of our country when we behold such hellish plots planned with skill and executed secretly but boldly. We can but look forward to the future of our land with doubts and misgivings, when we see our people walking on the verge of national destruction, utterly unconscious of or indifferent to the danger. If they are asleep on the 5th day of November, they will pass under the yoke of bondage far more irksome and unbearable than that of the ancient Pharaohs.

Do not deceive yourself with the idea that Grant is not at the bottom of these insidious and well-concocted attempts upon popular freedom. He is "woodenheaded," it is true, but he is ambitious, avaricious, unprincipled and simple, and is just the tool to be used by men of more cunning and more brains. He does not come to the front in these traitorous efforts against the people and their cherished rights, but he is cognizant of them all, and backs up the assailants with all the tremendous power that he wields.

That great lawyer Selden said most acutely:

"They that govern most make the least noise. You see when they row in a barge, they that do drudgery work, slash, and puff, and sweat; but he that governs sits quietly at the stern, and scarce is seen to stir."

A RAILROAD PROJECT.

The Lynchburg and Danville Railroad has been consolidated with the Orange and Alexandria, under the name of the Virginia and North Carolina Railroad Company. The next step contemplated is to extend the road from Danville, Va., into this State. It is stated those concerned have an eye on one of two directions: either to extend the road in the direction of Statesville, or by Yanceyville, through Caswell county, to the Chatham Coal-fields. The trains will run through from Lynchburg to Danville by next Spring.

WITH THE READER.

The Associate for the present is conducting the SENTINEL. It is necessary for him to make a brief trip to his home at Oxford. He has prepared such matter for this and the next issue, as abundant labors would allow, and having the paper to be managed by the Local, he trusts the reader will kindly overlook any shortcomings, hoping to be very soon at his post again. In the meantime he would urge the friends of the SENTINEL throughout North Carolina, to exert themselves by procuring subscribers to it. He can do this without immodesty as he has no pecuniary interest in the paper. It has been the fast friend of the people, and he does not hesitate to say, that the people of North Carolina owe it to themselves to be fast friends of the SENTINEL.

MORE BAYONET RULE.

Useless Simple is about to try his hand again in the use of the bayonet, his favorite weapon. He can't stand the rebellious spirit of the Southern people, specially in Georgia, Louisiana, Alabama and Arkansas. If left alone, to exercise their rights, they might vote against his Wooden headship; so he will not allow it. He has been busy recently sending troops to those peaceful States to provoke and annoy them. But all this petty spite and tyranny will recoil against him. He is opposed to reconciliation and peace. His proper element is whisky and war. Go it Useless!

GEORGE MACDONALD.—As we doubt not there are many readers of the SENTINEL who are admirers of this versatile and admirable writer, who is now lecturing in the North, we copy from the New York "Tribune" the following account of him. Every reader of the Alec Forbes and Wilfrid Cumbermede, will thank us for reproducing the subjoined graphic picture:

Mr. Macdonald's appearance is prepossessing; physically he is endowed with a generous Scotch frame, which holds a manly front against the exhaustive brain labors of poet, preacher, novelist, and editor, and promises to bear the lecturer gallantly on his way. Rather sparse black hair is the only indication that time and nature have made reprisals. A full and long dark beard and moustache make ample amends for this, however, and the face which is strongly benevolent, and the hand which is fine and magnetic, go to make up a man who cannot but win, in social and public intercourse, by the very largeness of heart and poetic sensibility and necessity of utterance, which he illustrates through Burns as the poet's portion. There is just enough of the Frenchman about him in vivacity and nervous enthusiasm to carry one away in thought to the Norman invasion of Scotland, and to suggest the possibility of some remote ancestor having imbibed Scottish blood with an infusion of the more sparkling Gallic tide.

The lecturer talks much as he writes in his novels, in crisp, impulsive sentences, by no means always rounded into finished rhetoric; yet genius, at times, shapes its own beautiful creations in a way to captivate the ear and lift it above desire for anything like hypercriticism. Humor and pathos are both indicated in his voice, yet with his broad Scotch accent his Scotch may be preferred to his English readings, when he would illustrate his subject by poetic extract. That Mr. Macdonald's tour will be a successful one among us is already established, for what the critics may fall wholly to admire, the people will choose to love.

A Southern beauty is thus described by one of our exchanges:

"She was, in all truth, a splendid creature, of a beauty lustrous and warm as the sunny climate of Providence, where she was born, and with eyes so teeming with expression that they seemed to shed light like precious stones. Her complexion was not white, but of that creamy shade called tetre, which passion can deepen to a ruddy glow; and the color of her lips was a rich moist crimson, which, had she been an actress, would have made her despise the most scarlet rouge as too pink. The folds and waves of her hair clustered so abundantly that when let down they must have fallen to below her waist—silky, raven hair it was, and full of life and suppleness like all else about her. Judging merely by her age, it might have been said that she was too maturely developed, for she looked rather like a young woman than a girl; but all her movements were young, virgin-like, strong and fascinating.

Our U. S. Government Printing is after this style: Since Congress adjourned 750,000 octavo and quarto volumes, varying from 300 pp. to 600 pp. each, have been turned out. There are 255,000 volumes on agriculture and the Ku Klux. Just here is one of the greatest leaks; extravagancies and follies in the country; but Congress seems to like to print documents, upon the nicest paper, to be sold when printed and bound, by the pound, for the waste-bag and the grocers.

Wilmington is have a new lodge of the Knights of Pythias, and lodges will be established at Enfield, Battleboro', Wilson, Rocky Mount, Newbern and Lumberton.

LET US HAVE THE TRUTH.

Our Democratic contemporary, the Democratic "Patriot," in enumerating the difficulties which are encountered in Philadelphia, in unearthing the fraud and treachery practiced upon the Democratic party in the late election, says:

"Should an editor fearlessly lay bare to the gaze of the public the iniquities of these ruffians, and thus stop one of the infamous sources of their supplies, he would soon fall the victim of their revenge. The hired assassin who should stab or pistol him would run no such risk as the bravoes who dogged the steps of Brooks. He would soon have cause to feel the consequences of his temerity in braving the assassins of the "Ring." Should a servile and cowardly public opinion become momentarily aroused in his vindication so as to compel the District Attorney to prosecute and a jury to convict his assassins, there still remains a Governor to grant them free pardon and immunity. The sickening truth is that the "Rings" and their hirelings have not merely control of the ballot boxes, but of every official and political avenue in the metropolis. What they cannot accomplish by fraud they are ready to execute by violence. It is very easy to ask why misdeeds are not exposed and punished. Let him who thinks it an easy matter to encounter the wolves in their lair undertake the job. In the city they are all powerful. But at the Capital their claws can be pulled by keeping out of Democratic caucuses and conventions all those whose guilty complicity with the "Ring" have been made manifest in the recent election."

The dangers here stated have, we think, no influence in screening the secret offenders from exposure, in this city.

The editor who should shrink from doing his duty from any peril to life or limb, would be, in our judgment, as poor a craven as the soldier who shrinks from the post of duty from the same fear. We believe the journalist in Philadelphia who exposes the villainies perpetrated in this city, runs no risk from which his own hand and the laws may not shield him. If not, it is of little importance in comparison with the great public interests at stake.—Philadelphia Age.

For the Sentinel.

MASS MEETING AND BARBECUE IN CHATHAM COUNTY.

The friends of Greeley and Brown met on the 10th inst., at J. T. Jones' Store, in the western part of the county of Chatham, in a grand mass meeting and Liberal rally.

The meeting was called to order by Col. James A. Houston, the President of the Greeley and Brown Club of this township, (Mathews') and the object of the meeting was explained by O. A. Hanner, Esq., our worthy young Representative in the House.

Mr. Hanner, in a neat and appropriate style, welcomed the vast concourse of people (over 500) on behalf of the Club, and introduced as the first speaker, John G. Rencher, Esq., of Pittsboro. Mr. Rencher addressed the crowd for more than an hour, in which time he fully showed up the Grant administration to the entire satisfaction of all present.

After Mr. Rencher's speech, the crowd was next addressed by Hon. E. W. Pou, of Johnston. Want of space prevents my giving anything like a synopsis of Mr. Pou's speech. Suffice it to say, it was to the point and fully sustained the enviable reputation of the honorable gentleman. At the conclusion of the speech many of the assembly pressed eagerly forward to shake the speaker by the hand, and assured him that, like himself, although they had supported the Republican party heretofore, they were now fully identified with the Liberal movement, and should vote for Greeley and Brown in November.

The vast concourse of people now repaired to the table in the grove, upon which was spread a bountiful repast, and after having done ample justice to the good cheer provided by the Club, they assembled at the speaker's stand, and were addressed by Henry A. London, Jr., our able young elector for the Fourth District. We have heard Mr. London often, but believe this to have been the happiest effort of his life. We would like very much to report his speech in full, but have not time so to do. We only add that the "Little Orator fairly spread himself." Well may Chatham feel proud of her young orator.

After Mr. London concluded his remarks, loud calls were made for Hon. John Manning. Mr. Manning came forward and thanked the crowd for their kindness, but owing to the lateness of the hour excused himself from making a speech.

The assemblage then dispersed, and at night many of the young ladies and gentlemen reassembled at the hospitable mansion of Dr. L. W. Gorrell, and to the strains of sweet music, we tripped the "light fantastic" until the warning notes of chanticleer admonished us that it was time for Greeleyites to tear themselves away from the society of love and beauty and seek the arms of Morpheus.

We have witnessed many occasions of the kind, but have never seen anything pass off more pleasantly and agreeably. The very best of order was maintained throughout, and much credit is due the Chief Marshal, O. A. Hanner, Esq., and his worthy assistants Col. John R. Lands, J. T. Brooks, M. F. White, John P. Dark, Charley E. Houston and J. Geo. Hanner, for their efficient management.

You may expect a good report from old Chatham in November. All are up and doing their duty. Our Club in this township numbers upwards of two hundred members, with the following officers: President, Col. Jos. A. Houston; Vice-Presidents, Merrill Rosson, W. D. Andrews, T. J. Phillips and B. F. Headen; Treasurer, James T. Jones; Secretary, J. Geo. Hanner.

Keep the ball in motion and victory will assuredly perch upon our banner in November.

HICKORY HILL.

It is said that Andrew Johnson always pays the ladies the following compliment at the conclusion of his speech:

"I am sure I would be an unworthy representative of the sex to which I have the honor to belong, if I allowed the present occasion to pass without paying a compliment to the charming ladies I see before me. From the ancient days of antiquity down to the present time, woman, to use the words of the poet, has been the noblest work of God, and her bright smile haunts me still. I am second to no man in stern devotion to woman, for no other sex claims so much of our warmest feeling and as a beam on the face of the waters, she is the paragon of an animate, the salt of the earth, the ultima Thule of man's ambition. I say to the charming ladies before me, in the words of Elias, it is good to be here, for the smiles from your beauteous eyes are as the balm of Gilead and the milk of the cocoanut to our souls."

This is as sweet as summer. It is as soft as the breath of a young crow, and as pathetic as a kitten's first catterwaul; or the bleat of a stray lamb on a bleak hillside.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The exhibition now opened at Moscow was visited last month by about 30,000 persons daily, and the British contributions to the exhibition from the first attracted much notice. It is understood that many of the principal articles exhibited from this country will, after the close of the exhibition, be permanently placed in the Moscow Museum.

THE VOICE OF THE PRESS ON THE GREAT OUTRAGE.

[From the Lexington (Missouri) Caucasian.]

Friday night of last week, when every body employed in the Caucasian office was steadily at work, and when all other honest people in the Western hemisphere were, or ought to have been, asleep, a hellish conspiracy was being stealthily carried forward in the beautiful city of Raleigh, North Carolina. It was a demoniac labor of low, cowardly Radical malice—the offspring of eternal hate—the result of the damnable doctrines taught by every representative Radical malefactor, who has been heard since the present campaign opened. A Democratic printing establishment was blown up with gunpowder, in order to hush the voice of its heroic editor. * * * * *

The hellions who blew up the Raleigh SENTINEL are the John Brown's of '72, whose doubly damned souls are marching on at the head of the New Revolution. Let them keep step to the music of their divilteries, and with their patriot saint of Ossawattamie; for we shall live to see thousands of them hanged from sour-apple limbs and crawling into their coffins to hide from a long pent up retribution.

The brave editor, Josiah Turner, is undismayed. The Wilmington "Star" says he is as "cool as a cucumber," and will not be muzzled by this new Radical style of argument. He has been incisive in his exposition of Radical villainy, and to the horror of his opponents, succeeded, by the aid of his contemporaries, in getting out an edition of the SENTINEL the very next day. Great indignation exists throughout North Carolina and the country, at this most foul, dastard, diabolical act. It is after all, but the result of the damnable principle upon which the scoundrel Grant seeks his own re-election. As he has said, the business and banking interests of the country, with every other help necessary, were at his command, and if all combined failed to win, he would blow them all up and wreck the country. These Raleigh midnight gunpowder conspirators are only carrying out the imperialist platform. War is as imminent as it is necessary, and hence we record these damnable outrages and threats with a sense of stern pleasure.

[From the Battleboro' Advance.]

This is another fruit of Radical teachings. It is not only an act of hostility towards Mr. Turner, personally for his manly and independent course, but it is a blow aimed at the Liberty of the Press. It is but the out cropping of Radical rule in the South, if we are to be cursed with it for four years more. It is but the forerunner of that despotism, which will strike down, not only the freedom of the press but freedom of speech and the purity of the ballot box, the weapon of freemen in a Republican government.

Will the American people declare that they prefer violence and hate to peace and friendship? Will they declare on the 5th of November that they prefer that this country shall be ruled by an iron rod of despotism rather than see its flag wave over a nation of freemen? We hope and trust not.

The party of hate and violence, which relies upon election frauds and war prejudices at the North, and ignorance and mob law at the South to sustain its power—which opposes peace and reconciliation between all sections and races—which arrays class against class and protects rogues in office, must expect to witness acts of violence, negro riots, the destruction of private property by midnight incendiaries and even the murder of innocent citizens for the expression of their honest sentiments or the exposure of Radical crimes.

These are but natural results. And if such a party is sustained after its vile and wicked acts have been exposed, it is a sad proof that corruption is not confined to the office-holders, but, that it has spread among the people. When men begin to wink at and encourage crime, they become criminals. Let the honest men of the land arise in their strength and vindicate their principles. Dark clouds are hanging over the country. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty.

(From the Southern Home.)

The ruffian scum have again and again made assaults upon Mr. Turner for his fearless exposure of their thieveries and villainies. More than once attempts have been made to assassinate him. The sanctity of his home has been invaded and his wife's bed chamber has been twice fired into by the tools of the Radical leaders. He has been insulted and mobbed by by cowardly scoundrels too craven to meet him in a fair fight. Once before an attempt was made to destroy his press, and he lost hundreds of dollars by the damages caused by the brutal employee of some Radical chief. He was arrested by Kirk's scum and thrown into a felon's cell. But under all the threats made and the open acts of violence, the courage of the man has never quailed and he has not abated one jot of his manhood, nor failed in a single instance to expose the thefts, robberies and crimes of the rogues' party.

Radicalism is essentially ruffian in its character. Its proudest boast is that it has "put the bottom rail on top." It glories in the fact that the decent, respectable men of the country are under the heelsof the scum of mankind. It wants a war of races at the South. It wants the property of the South under the control of vagrants and paupers. It wants civil liberty subverted, the majesty of the law trampled upon and the only government to be that of the bayonet directed by Grant's beastly marshals. Freemen of North Carolina! will you not rise in your might and hurl from power Grant and the low brutes he has put over you as your masters?

[From Statesville Intelligencer.]

We gave in our last week's paper the very latest news of the destruction of the office of the Raleigh SENTINEL, by some fiend in human shape. This is an undisguised effort to stop the voice of a free press, and is not by any means the first attempt to throttle Mr. Turner's efforts to thwart the diabolical machinations of the carpet-baggers and other thieves who have plundered the State, and who are now fattening upon their ill-gotten gains.

Because Mr. Turner has been fearless in his exposures of the tricks and rascalides of the vile crew who have plundered and robbed the State, he has been an especial object of the barbed shafts of radical villainy. The gigantic frauds of Littlefield, Swepson & Co., in the radical Legislature of 1868, furnished matter for a series of editorials, which were ventilated by his caustic pen, in a manner which raised the special indignation of these violators of the law and honesty, and his life even was threatened.

To break the force of his bitter denunciations he was denounced as a Klukker; the Ring of the Kuklux; and most outrageous and sensational falsehoods were told by the radical press throughout the country. Finding their efforts unavailing they attempted assassination.

When we consider what Mr. Turner has suffered in behalf of principle, we feel that he is entitled to the especial sympathy of every honest son of North Carolina. He may have been too bitter in his denunciations, but he has been moderate compared to the especial manner in which he has been singled out as an object of malice.

This last act of destroying his office is but the crowning act of radical villainy—the last of the series so far—and merits the just condemnation of every person in the State. Moderate Republicans, learn that this deed of diabolism is but the result of radical teaching, not perhaps in so many words, but by inference, and that sooner or later, the just recompense will be meted out. Take warning before the day of retribution comes. Put your shoulder to the wheel of reform to-day and help us to bring about that peace, honesty, reconciliation and reform so much desired by every good citizen.

On last Thursday it was our privilege to walk over and look at the remains of what was once the SENTINEL office, and we are satisfied that the work, could only have been done by a most consummate villain.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

M. de Tocqueville, brother of the eminent writer and philosopher, Alexis de Tocqueville, has publicly given in his adhesion to the Republican form of government now existing in France, and loudly praises M. Thiers.

Prof. Agassiz has been elected one of the eight foreign associate members of the French Academy of Sciences, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Sir Roderick Murchison.

Colonel Henry B. Beecher has been elected Captain of the Albany Burgesses Corps. Colonel B. is a lumber merchant in Albany, a son of Henry Ward Beecher, and served in the volunteer and regular army during the war.

Vienna gossip states that the Emperor Francis Joseph was only induced to attend the meeting of the Emperors at Berlin by the repeated prayers and solicitations of his wife, the Empress Elizabeth, who asked him to go to that city and shake hands with his inveterate enemy, the Czar of Russia.

It appears that the present "Monsieur de Paris," as the French executioner is called, has been making ostentatious and theatrical displays when travelling on business with his "improved" guillotine; and, in consequence, President Thiers has issued orders that he shall henceforth abstain from such drolleries.

The "Victoria Faithful Service Medal," instituted in the present year by the Queen to reward Her Majesty's personal servants, is in gold and silver, bearing on the obverse the royal effigy; on the reverse, the name and office of the recipient within a wreath of the rose, shamrock and thistle. The link connecting it to the clasp is composed of the naval monogram beneath an imperial crown.

The Cologne "Gazette" learns from a Russian newspaper that repeated earthquakes, since the middle of July, have caused great alarm in and near the town of Shemacha, in the Eastern Caucasus. Very severe shocks have recently occurred and the inhabitants, in consequence, have been so dreadfully frightened that they have left the city, and are encamped in the country. Some are under tents, but others are unprotected.

It may be among "things not generally known" that until the first of December next there will remain open at Bordeaux the poetic competition to which the bards of all nations are invited to compete. Those who possess eyes with the fine frenzy rolling can select what they please—the principal point is to contribute something.
