THE SENTINEL.

THE DEAD POET.

His young bride stood beside his bed
Her weeping watch to keep;
Hush! hush! He stirred not: he was dead
Or did he only sleep?

His brow was calm, no change was there
No sigh had stilled his breath!
Oh, did he wear that smile as fair
In slumber or in death?

"Reach down his harp," she will y cried,
"And if one spark remain,
Let him but hear Loch Erroch's side!
He'll kindle at the strain."

"That tune o'er held his soul in thrall,
It never breathed in vain;
He'll waken as its echoes fail,
Or never wake again."

The strings were swept; 'twas sad to hear
Sweet music floating there,
For every note called forth a tear
Of anguish and despair.

"See! see!" she cried, "the tune is o'er,
No opening eye, no breath;
Hang up his harp—he'll wake no more:
He sleeps the sleep of death."

THE CHICAGO FIRE STILL BURNING—It is a year, six months and nine days since the fire of October 9, 1871, and yet, strange to relate, two gentlemen claim that the champion blaze of creation has not subsided yet. While a party of gentlemen yesterday were passing the ruins of the Catholic Brothers' school, on Van Buren street, east of Clark, their attention was attracted by the escape of smoke, and, out of curiosity, they instituted an investigation. After making an excavation, a small pile of glowing coals was reached, and when the air came in contact with it, a vigorous flame burst forth. The discoverers resolved upon making the fact memorable, and, accordingly, obtained some potatoes, roasted them, by the fire, ate a lunch, then lit some cigars at the blaze, covered the live coals over with brick, and departed. The gentlemen who vouch for the above are Mr. J. S. Hewins, carpenter and builder, Van Buren street, and Mr. J. B. Bailey.—Chicago Inter-Ocean, April 19.

DISSOLUTION.

This is to give notice that the copartnership heretofore existing as DOUBIN & FRANCIS is this day dissolved by mutual consent. All the business of the firm is in my hands for settlement and collection.

I shall continue to carry on the business manufacturing of Boots and Shoes, &c., at the same place, under the CITIZENS' NATIONAL BANK, and take the same workmen in my employ. Thankful for past favors I hope to merit a continuance of the same.
