The "East Carolina" correspondent of the Petersburg Index thus describes the terrific storm of Saturday night and Sunday morning, which visited Edgecombe, Halifax, Wilson, Nash and other counties. The storm raged for an hour. During that hour trees were torn up, or mutilated of their foliage. The surface of the earth was hinged and carpeted with fragmentary verdure. The hail stones varied in size from a partridge egg to a man's fist. Shutters were, in some instances, demolished, wall shingles broken in, and panes of glass shattered into invisible atoms. In portions of Nash, near Square R. W. Boddy's, birds were killed in the forests. Their screams were heart rending, and they would seek for protection their greatest enemy, man. Dumb brutes would mutely appeal for shelter, by hugging dwellings as closely as possible. Calves, lambs and the smaller animals were knocked senseless. In Wilson county hogs, in exposed localities were stricken dead in their tracks, and everywhere poultry, unprotected, bit the dust. That is, they would, had there been any dust to bite. Lovers of spring fries, chicken salad, and broth are now in sackcloth and ashes. Like Rachel they refuse to be comforted. If the tragedy had been less bloody, it would have been amusing. Each jump of ice was a dead shot, and when it struck a fowl, it keeled over like lightning.

HOME AFFAIRS

JOHN SPELMAN, City Editor.

Auction Sale.

Don't forget the sale of valuable lots to-day belonging to C. B. Harrison, Esq., by W. H. Jones, Auctioneer. Sale to commence at 12 o'clock.

Lost and Found.

Some curious small iron fixtures with two blades to each may be had of M. J. Tate, office Life Association of America. They were attached to a package, but do not belong to the Company.

Personal.

We were pleased to have a visit on yesterday from Messrs. J. B. Hussey, of the Piedmont Press, and R. M. Furman of the Asheville Citizen. These gentlemen are returning from the Press Convention at Goldsboro'.

The New York World.

We are glad to see that this paper is getting slashed well for its unmannerly slurs upon the South because of an occasional duel. It would be well for it to attend to its own corrupt society before attacking a better people every way.

Religious Revival.

We learn that an interesting religious meeting is progressing at the Methodist Chapel in the Eastern Ward. There have been some professions of religion already and the interest of the meeting is on the increase. The revival began at a prayer meeting held in a private house. This is very much as it was in Apostolic times. The New Testament records several such revivals. We trust the good work will continue.

Enterprise.

It is worth a visit to the handsome drug store of our friend William Simpson, to see the extensive apparatus he has for manufacturing and bottling soda water, and various mineral waters. We learn that the fixtures, including the magnificent Arctic soda fountain, cost over $5,000. He is now shipping continually, bottled waters to various parts of the State. Such enterprise deserves extensive encouragement, and we trust one of our cleverest citizens will receive it.

An Omission.

There is one question the Press Convention did not consider. We think that the dignity and intelligence of Southern editors ought to revolt at the printed puff notices and criticisms manufactured North that are sent South to be inserted in our papers. For one we will never agree for Northern publishers to tell us what we shall say about their publications. It seems to us it would have been well if this subject had been ventilated, and the practice had been properly participated and repudiated forever.

A Very Able Argument.

We are under obligations to Col. Ed. Graham Haywood for a copy of his very able argument for the "Plaintiff and Appellant, in the case of Blount vs. Windley, in the Supreme Court of North Carolina, at January Term, A. D. 1873." It is a pamphlet of 129 pages. It is sufficient to say that this argument is well worthy of him who is, we believe, by common consent, placed at the head of the legal profession in the State. We were much amused at the incisive way in which the learned advocate "goes for" the Chief-Justice in that little matter of the quotation from my Lord Coke. The learned counsel quietly remarks that "The Court can hardly have fallen into the anachronism of citing Lord Coke as authority for the law arising out of the incorporation of banks of issue, and the character and nature of bank-bills, both financial inventions unknown to the English law until near a century after Coke's time." And yet this is precisely what the Chief Justice was guilty of. He will be a little more careful hereafter, we opine, as to what authorities he introduces, especially if Col. Haywood is in Court "taking notes."

The Pic-Nic Excursion.

We regretted our inability to accompany the Presbyterian Sunday School and their friends on their pleasant excursion to Kittrell Springs and to participate in the pic-nic which we learn was simply delightful. Our city editor being absent it was impossible for the writer to leave. We are pleased to hear that the children and the "grown folks" enjoyed themselves hugely. Some 400 persons constituted the crowd that left Raleigh. Everything was conducted in the most perfect order, and the utmost decorum prevailed throughout. The Kittrell Springs grounds and hotel were fully extended by Maj. Thos. H. Blackwell, who knows well how to dispense hospitality in more than one and splendid. Before the excursionists left for the train, on motion of Prof. W. C. Kerr, the thanks of the school were unanimously voted Maj. Blackwell for his kindness, and three long cheers were rendered with a will by the young and enthusiastic guests. Some appropriate remarks were also made by Mr. S. J. Brown. The excursionists returned in safety, arriving at the right hour for the enjoyment of a hearty supper. We trust that all who participated in yesterday's festivities may have many returns of equity at [illegible].

The Press Convention.

[BY OUR OWN REPORTER.]

SECOND DAY.

GOLDSBORO', May 9.

The Convention re-assembled at 9 a. m. Mr. Mann, of the Wilmington Post, from the committee on that subject, reported a Constitution and By Laws, which were considered and adopted.

A telegram was received from the Georgia Press Association, in session to-day, conveying greetings and asking for any important action taken by this body. The telegram was responded to.

Mr. Biggs from the committee on advertising and other matters made a report which was acted upon. One of the recommendations of this committee was to put all Advertising Agencies on a footing with all other advertisers. This was opposed, on several grounds, by Mr. Spelman, of the SENTINEL and Mr. Mann, of the Post, and supported by Messrs. McDiarmid, Duffy, Johnston of Intelligencer, Statesville, Stone, Harris, and others. The recommendation, after considerable discussion, was adopted, there being but one dissenting voice.

Mr. Nason offered a resolution requiring every publisher of a newspaper in the State to deposit with the Association the name of the paper, name of editors and publishers, also the length and width of columns, rates of subscription, advertising, &c. Adopted.

Mr. Cameron, from the committee on Resolutions reported. The following is the material portions of the report.

To the Members of the Press Convention:

GENTLEMEN: Your committee to whom was referred certain questions affecting the interests of the calling at large, beg leave to submit the following suggestions:

1st. That in our opinion it would be greatly conducive to the best interests of every member for the publishers of all papers to adhere strictly to published rates, and the convention will discountenance any editor who may deviate from the same.

2. Whereas, The custom amongst many publishers in the State of receiving advertisements from Advertising Agencies at such rates as are inimical to the general interest of the press, therefore,

Resolved, That the convention disapprove of any discrimination in favor of any Advertising Agency, north or south, and that the Press feel themselves in honor and in duty bound to charge published rates to any Agency and will not deviate from such rates to take effect on the expiration of the present contracts, and that all "special rates" of a lower grade be discontinued.

A letter was received from T. B. Long, Esq., Special Agent of the Postoffice Department, promising his aid in increasing the postal facilities of the State.

On motion of Mr. Engelhard a resolution was adopted to provide for the publication, in the newspapers, of all legal advertisements.

On motion of Mr. Mann, a resolution was adopted requiring prepayment for legal advertisements.

On motion of Mr. Harrell, a resolution with a view to having abolished the present law in regard to the payment of postage on newspaper exchanges.

On motion of Mr. Cameron, a resolution of thanks was tendered to Mr. T. B. Long.

Also a resolution of thanks to Dr. White, proprietor of the Humphrey House for his kindness and liberality in entertaining the members of the Convention.

An invitation to the members of the Convention to visit the next State Fair, was received from President Holt, and accepted.

On motion of Mr. Furman, a resolution was adopted approving of the State Centennial and urging up n the people of the State its celebration.

On motion of Mr. Duffy, the Secretary was instructed to prepare and furnish a copy of the Constitution and By Laws to every editor and publisher in the State for his approval, the return to be made within ten days.

On motion of Mr. Woodson, of the Raleigh News, Col. Walter L. Steele was invited to a seat in the Convention.

The resolution looking to a uniform system of charges for job printing, previously read, failed to be taken from the table for re-consideration.

The following are among the resolutions adopted by the Convention:

Whereas, It appears that several papers in the State have adopted the practice of having the outsides or insides of their papers, containing advertisements, printed elsewhere, which practice is detrimental to the dignity and good character of the profession.

Therefore, the Convention of the Press of North Carolina do resolve, that it deprecates and disapproves of such practice as aforesaid, and do recommend and urge that it be abandoned at as early a day as practicable.

Whereas, The prevalence of the credit system of subscriptions has been found to work serious loss to publishers who have adopted it, and whereas experience proves that the cash system is the only safe one; therefore,

Be it resolved, That the cash system be adopted as far as possible, and adhered to as closely as practicable.

Resolutions favorable to immigration, and to foster other general interests of the State were also adopted.

The following new delegates reported: J. B. Whitaker, Goldsboro' News; H. A. Foote, Warrenton Gazette—by proxy; and Woodson, of the Raleigh News, in person.

The election of officers of the Press Association was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

OFFICERS.

President—Jos. A. Engelhard.
Vice-Presidents—1st, C. N. B. Evans, 2d, J. C. Mann, 3d, P. F. Duffy.
Treasurer—John Spelman.
Recording Secretary—R. F. Fulghum.
Corresponding Secretary—J. D. Cameron.
Executive Committee—Jordan Stone, H. E. T. Manning, G. W. Nason, R. M. Furman, and J. B. Hussey.
Committee on Legal Advertising—J. D. Cameron, P. F. Duffy, and J. C. Mann.
Committee on Immigration—S. T. Williams, S. T. Carrow and W. J. Yates.

Votes of thanks were returned to the President and Secretaries, and after the transaction of other unimportant business the Association adjourned at 1 p. m., subject to the call of the President or to the next regular day, second Tuesday in May, 1873. The next meeting of the Association will take place at Raleigh.

Subsequent to adjournment the Executive Committee met and elected Jordan Stone, Chairman, and J. B. Hussey, Secretary.

TERRIBLE TORNADO.

MESSRS. EDITORS: The recent published accounts of a very disastrous tornado in a portion of Columbus county, and also a very terrific hail storm from Henderson to Marion, on both sides of the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad, has revived the recollection of a tornado, or whirlwind, which occurred in the county of Tyrrel on the 4th day of June, 1858.

I was, at that time, a resident of that county. The evening of the 3d was dark and lowering. About 10 o'clock after the family had retired—I was aroused by heavy thunder, with lightning and heavy rain. In a short time I heard knocking at the front door, and, on going down, found a negro man, belonging to Benjamin Spruill, who resided about three miles off. The negro appeared greatly alarmed; he could scarcely make himself intelligible, but I understood from him that a whirlwind had blown down every house on the plantation, and that his master and mistress, and the baby, were dead or dying. I got my horse and we rode rapidly to the horrid scene. The rain was still falling in torrents, the darkness was oppressive, and we could see nothing only when a flash of lightning came. I rode up to where the house had stood, but it was not there, the dwelling was gone. The negro conducted me through the dark to the ruins of the dwelling about 300 yards from its former position. We groped about among the debris of the house, which was lying in a confused heap, and hearing groans we soon found Mr. Spruill, apparently crushed with the timber, covered with blood and vomiting profusely. After great effort we removed the timber from him and stretched him out on a door. We soon found Mrs. Spruill, who was only a few yards from her husband, confined and unable to move, and crying for her husband and baby, whom she believed to be dead or dying. She was soon relieved, and near her lay the infant in its cradle, perfectly quiet. Neither Mrs. Spruill nor the infant were hurt in the least. By this time the rain had ceased, and it had lightened up some, and I found it necessary to do something for the sufferers. I found an old milky, the seat and body broken off, but the wheels and shafts were good, and we placed a door on the shafts, laid Mr. S. on it, put his wife and child by him, and rolled them about half a mile to the house of a Mr. John Nichols, a house with but one room, and sent off for a physician. I did not expect that Mr. Spruill could live, and looked for his death every minute. At day light some neighbors came, and we went to examine the ruins. The dwelling a large two-story house, with shed and piazza, with two brick chimneys had entirely disappeared, together with smoke house, dairy and cook house, and the bricks of the chimneys and even the underpinning of the house, to the ground, had disappeared. The paling around the house, and even the posts which had been inserted in the ground were all gone. The whole of the building had been taken up and carried away by the force of the wind, but the great portion of the dwelling was as I found it about 300 yards northeast of its former position and literally crushed. We found the spot where Mr. S. laid by the blood, and also where the wife and infant laid, and all were amazed how it was possible for the lives of either to have been spared. We soon heard that the force of the whirlwind had been as extended about two miles in a western direction. I started and found the whirlwind had crossed the main road, about half a mile while, and had leveled every tree and bush, some forty pines and gums were strung off thirty or forty feet from the ground. No one could tell from what direction the wind came by the fallen trees. After great difficulty I got through and reached the house of the widow Hoskins. The sight was appalling. Mrs. Hoskins had three sons and four daughters, from eight to twenty-two years old. The house was heavily built, one and a half stories, with two rooms 20 feet square on each floor, and an 8 foot passage. The building was literally crushed down, and the entire lay in strange confusion. It did not appear possible for any one to have been in the house when it fell and be saved; but this large family escaped without any injury. They had retired for the night and were left with nothing but the clothes they had on. Strange it was, not every article of clothing belonging to the family, except what they had on was gone. Every trunk or chest, was crushed or opened, and the contents gone. There was no particle of a bed or bedding to be found in the house; but feathers and rags were scattered in the woods. Every house was demolished but a log crib. About three fourths of a mile east from Mrs Hoskins lived Samuel Leigh, Esq., and about the same distance, northwardly, lived Capt. James Forlen, and their houses were about 1 1-2 miles apart. The force of the wind passed between these two houses, but each felt the effects. Leigh's house was blown off the pillars and a chimney blown down, with but little other damage. Capt. Forlen's house was unroofed. The whole roof was taken off, but no damage was done to the main building. A young lady was sleeping in the upper chamber and the bed on which she laid was taken up and deposited with her on it, in a canal some 100 yards distant. Every house was demolished but a log crib. The whirlwind followed the sound side, doing some injury, and soon was lost in the sound. Many very strange and almost incredible incidents occurred which might be related, but my communication is already too long. A short history of this whirlwind was published in the Raleigh Register.

Mr. Spruill, the gentleman referred to, is now living and is a very worthy citizen of Tyrrel county, and will corroborate this statement. There are other citizens yet living who were eye witnesses of that I have described.
