DEATH OF A MILLWRIGHT.—Rufus Warren, the noted millwright died in this county last Monday.

A MOTHER DIES ON WAY TO HER SON.—Last Saturday in this county Joseph Goodie felled a tree and it fell on him and hurt him badly. His old mother was sent for and she started immediately for her son riding behind one of the neighbors on horseback. Just before reaching Lessville the old lady complained of feeling a little badly, and stopped at Wiley Lynn's store to rest. She died in less than five minutes after getting in the store.

TAXES!—All delinquent tax payers will save themselves the costs of an execution by settling immediately, as the list is being made out for sale of property under execution for taxes for 1874, and will be advertised at once. A large number of executions for taxes upon property for years 1872 and 1873 has been placed in my hands for collection. I am instructed to sell property and make returns at once.

A COLORED WOMAN A HEROINE.—Mr. Badgett died in Hillsboro of scarlet fever. It is a fearful disease, and the one that risks it for a friend must have a faith in God passing the so-called fashionable religion of the present age. Ireanna Jackson is a colored woman who had nursed Mr. Badgett's children, and formed an attachment to the family. When she heard of his illness she left her home in opposition to the wishes of her family and stood by the bedside of the dying man for days and nights faithfully and affectionately administering to his wants until the last. Ireanna has passed the meridian of life, but all her days has been a fast friend to the white people. A Hillsboro correspondent hopes that when she dies a monument may be erected to her memory, with the simple epitaph, "She was a good woman."

Leonard M. Long vs H. J. Long et al, Columbus. Called and continued.

Amos Wade vs. city of Newbern. Motion to dismiss for want of proper bond argued Jan. 13. George Green for counsel, Smith & Strong for defendant.

J. Francis King vs. J. R. Winants, New Hanover, continued.

HOW WE LIVE—THE FAMILY AND THE MERCHANT.—As a bit of common sense preaching we came across the following from DeWitt Talmage, reported in the Herald last Sunday. He says: There are thousands of families moving from neighborhood to neighborhood, staying long enough in each one to exhaust all their capacity to get trusted. They suddenly find out that the neighborhood is unhealthy, and they hire a cartman, whom they never pay, to take them to a part of the city where all the druggists and butchers and bakers and grocers will be glad to see them come in, sending to them the best rounds of beef, until the slight suspicion comes into their brain that all the pay they will ever get from their customer is the honor of his society. (Laughter.) There are about five thousand such thieves in Brooklyn. There are circumstances where men cannot meet their obligations. It is as honest for some men to fail as it is for other men to succeed. They do their best, and through the misfortunes of life they are thrown and cannot pay their debts. That is one thing; but when you go and purchase an article for which you know there is no probability of your ever making recompense you are a villain! Why don't you save the time of the merchant and the expense of an accountant for him? Why don't you go down some day to his store, and when no one is looking shoulder the ham or sparerib, and in modest silence take them along with you? (Laughter.) It is the lesser crime, for in the other case you get not only the merchant's goods, but you get his time and you rouse his expectations. If you are going to steal do it at the least possible damage to the trader. Society has to be reconstructed on this subject. It is not the absolute necessities of life that we find so hard to meet, but the fictitious ones. God promises us shelter, but not a mansion, in this world; and raiment, but not chinchilla; and food, but not canvasback ducks; so long as we have enough to meet the positive necessities of life we ought to be content until we can afford the superfluities; but just as soon as you see a man deliberately consent that his outgo shall excel his income you may know he has started on the broad road to bankruptcy and moral ruin. This wholesale extravagance accounts for a great deal of depression in our national finances.

A combination known as "Carrington's Circus," has been exhibiting around in this State and South Carolina recently. It disbanded in one of the neighboring towns of South Carolina last week, and the manager, performers and hangers-on, or a part of them, have been in this city for a day or two past.—Char. Observer.

Mrs. and Miss Pendleton, of Cincinnati, O., were among the guests at the Central Hotel. The former is the mother and the latter the sister of Hon. George H. Pendleton, the gifted and distinguished statesman of the buck-eye State. They are on their way to Aiken, S. C., where they will spend the winter.—Charlotte Observer.

Lest persons abroad should become alarmed by reports of the prevalence of this malady in this place, we take occasion to state on the best authority, that there have been only two or three cases of scarlet fever among children here, and those of a mild type. The case of Mr. Badgett who died from that disease was one of exceptional violence, as is always the case in adults. There is no occasion for alarm.—Hillsboro Recorder.

THE LADIES.

Blood will tell. A granddaughter of Dr. Paley has beaten all the boys at Cambridge in moral science.

A San Francisco husband denies that the new chemiloon dress arrangements are any improvement on the old style. His wife has adopted it, and it takes her seventy minutes on an average to get unharnessed at night, and on one occasion the numerous India rubber straps got into a snarl, and, suddenly collapsing, caused her to perform a double-somersault, during which her head came in contact with the ceiling of the room, knocking her senseless.

There lives in the vicinity of Hanover, New Hampshire, a girl of such exquisite beauty that people come from long distances just to get a peep at her, but unfortunately she has an incurable passion for hunting skunks, and a close approach to her person is far from agreeable. She makes money out of her strange vocation, however, having sent 262 skins to the Boston market last year.

The minister calmly said that it must be. He could not marry them unless they both did truly and duly tell him their ages—such being the regulation to which he must bow. The young man mildly responded, "Twenty-six;" the young woman—ah, the young woman! Answer! Never! "Then you can't be married." Her soft cheek grew white as the snow that rests upon the mighty hills, her eyes were filled with anguish. But she cried, "Thirty one." Truth like this should have been rewarded, but it wasn't. The bridegroom observed that he had understood the bride was only twenty-five, and he couldn't forgive deceit. "Farewell," he said. She remarked that this was justice, and they parted forever. Which ended their remote and melancholy story.

A FEW OF THE NORTHERN PRESS ON SHERIDAN AND GRANT.

[New York Staats Zeitung, Independent.]

What were the arbitrary measures in France compared to those in Louisiana? and still they ruined the Democratic party. The arch traitor in the White House may hold public opinion in contempt. But he will hear from it in a few days.

[Boston Globe, Independent.]

We have had enough of this business of Federal bayonets in the South. It is time now for a little fair and honest legislation.

[Utica Herald, Administration Rep.]

It is a strange and shocking sight; the United States army, at the point of the bayonet, compelling a partisan organization of a State Legislature. The Republican party must disown it, or take the consequences from an aroused and indignant people.

[Philadelphia Inquirer, Republican]

Sheridan's suggestion and demand are alike atrocious. They stand alone in their monstrous bloodthirstiness; in their defiance of law, justice, humanity and the judgment of mankind. This is the work of disfranchising a State, and giving up its revenues to alien adventurers less respectable than the freebooters who once made the Gulf their headquarters; and now, in furtherance of that monstrous wrong, the more atrocious suggestion is made that those politically opposed to them, shall be given up to the sword, butchered like Cuban schoolboys or Piegan Indians by Cavalry Sheridan.

[Boston Post, Democrat.]

The scenes in New Orleans are a timely warning to the people of the United States. They must come together openly and resolutely against this outrage and betrayal of their liberties. No business can take precedence of this. It involves the salvation of the Republic.

[Boston Advertiser, Republican.]

Military despotism now exists in Louisiana. The American people will not sanction it.

[Boston Journal, Republican.]

An election contest, when both parties have been guilty of frauds, is no ground for carrying the bayonet into legislation halls.

[Albany Journal, Administration Rep.]

The Republican party must not be betrayed into a false position. It cannot justify, and must not attempt to justify, military domination of legislative bodies. It must clear its skirts of it.

ALL ABOUT.

Vice-President Wilson said to-day that he would rather spend the rest of his life in the penitentiary than approve of Sheridan's conduct in New Orleans.—Baltimore American.

A good story is told of a recent "smash up" on a Western railroad. A gentleman, who in coming from Baltimore to Rock Island, had met with four accidents, was on this occasion in the car that was turned completely over. Making his way through a window and gaining an upright position, he looked around him and cooly inquired, "What station do you call this?"

We were shown yesterday by Messrs. T. J. Latham and J. L. H. Mc[illegible], an exceedingly handsome Past Grand regalia, manufactured by [illegible] Bros. of Baltimore, at the instance of individual members of John Hutchinson, Esq., connected with Eureka Lodge I. O. O. F. The regalia is to be forwarded to Mr. Hutchinson, at Wilson, in a few days and can be seen in the meantime at the banking house of R. H. Rountree & Co.—Newbern Commercial.

The Lexington (Ky.) Gazette says: An express package came to a young lady in this city not long ago from A. T. Stewart's and attached to it was a tag, upon which the letters C. O. D. were plainly written. The package was sent to the room, and great was the anxiety to examine its contents. But the servant said the express man was waiting for the bill, some $150, which was not a little perplexing under the circumstances. At last the solution struck her and she translated the cabalistic letters thus: C for call, O, for on, D. for dad—"call on dad," and so told the servant, and the bill was promptly paid.

A bad little boy in Portland lit a pack of shooting crackers, and threw them into the street to see them "go off." One of Ike Batman's mules came along and swallowed them before they "went off." The mule walked about fifteen feet and stopped. Things wasn't acting right inside. He began to taste the smoke of fire-crackers. He laid his left ear around against his ribs, and heard something. It was them crackers having fun. The mule picked out about three and a half miles of straight road and started. A negro met him about a mile the other side of the alms-house going south, white with perspiration, with streams of smoke shooting out of his nostrils, mouth and ears, while his tail stuck straight up, and a stream of blue and green [illegible] ten feet long followed [illegible] found his mule [illegible] ing half way through a farm-house near Paddy's Run, still smoking. The man had got his family out and put 'em up into a lot of trees. Ike hauled his mule home, when he got cool enough on a dray. The man is going to remove his house further back off the road, and his wife and oldest daughter will be baptized when the water gets warm.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ICE COLD.

THE WEATHER NORTH—A YOUNG LADY ASSAULTED ON THE ICE. —PLAYING BASE-BALL ON THE ICE.—FREEZING SCHOOL GIRLS IN OMAHA.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—An unknown man was found yesterday morning in White House, N. J., frozen to death. From his appearance he seemed to be fully 60 years of age, and was evidently going on a visit over Sunday. He was well dressed, and had a scar under his right jaw, supposed to be of a scrofulous nature. A silver tobacco box, with the name of Levi Tise scratched on it, a pocket book containing $1.40, a small comb, a toothpick, and a white handkerchief were the only articles found upon his person.

A daring attempt at highway robbery occurred on the ice at Central Park, Saturday afternoon. A young lady about twenty years of age fell while skating. Before she had time to regain her feet, two ruffians, who stood near, rushed upon her, and while one held her down, the other released the catches of a fine pair of club skates which she wore. Her watch and pocket book were also seized by her assailants, who were making off with their booty when the young lady raised a cry and started in pursuit. The robbers were stopped by citizens who handed them over to the Park Police. The boldness of the attempt created considerable flurry on the pond for a while. The robbery of skates in this manner was very frequent some years ago, but recently such attempts have become very rare.

The skating-lake at Prospect Park on Saturday was filled with young people, but toward the close of the afternoon the keen, sharp wind drove away great numbers. A short game of base-ball was played on the ice by miscellaneous players, forming two sides of ten each, designated respectively Brooklyn and Prospect Park, the Brooklyn ten winning the game. The cold wind prevented the usual enjoyment of a good skating match, and another game was proposed for next Saturday.

OMAHA, Jan. 10.—The extreme cold weather here and west beyond Cheyenne continues. The thermometer here Friday night reached 21 degrees below, and at Cheyenne, 38 below zero. It moderated a little yesterday, but is still very cold. A school girl was so badly frozen here on Friday that she died.

LOUISIANA IN CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Jan 12—SENATE—Howe of Wisconsin, made a blood and thunder speech, endorsing Grant, and spoke of the Red River troubles in Louisiana.

Gordon said that the Senator, by implication if not by direct words, charged that murders were committed in Red River parish, and if it be true, it was a most remarkable fact that the Attorney for Louisiana, who belonged to the same party as the Senator, did not prosecute the criminals. The Senator had said that the Courts were weak; if the Attorney had not the brains or nerve to draw up a bill of indictment, the Democratic party was certainly not responsible. (Applause in the gallery.)

Howe defended Sheridan.

Bayard read Sheridan's dispatches, and told Howe he would find but one sentiment outside in regard to those dispatches.

Howe asked Bayard did he believe the Republican party wanted to substitute a despotism for a Constitutional Government?

Bayard said he could scarcely believe that the Senator asked him that question seriously. He did believe that the Republican party had trampled upon the Constitution till there was scarcely a vestige of it left. He had seen effort after effort to break it down till he believed, as he believed in his existence, that the party paid no respect to it.

Howe then concluded his buncombe picturing the same old ship with a flag to it, and that he would stand to it so long as a plank was left, &c.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING ON THE STAGE—AN ACTOR BADLY HURT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11, 1875.

A dispatch from Humboldt, Tenn. states that Thomas J. Geddis of this city was accidentally shot in that place on the night of the 30th by Miss Florence Denison. They were engaged in the performance of the Indian drama, "The Wept of the Wish ton-wish," in which a scuffle ensues, and Miss D. draws a pistol. On this occasion, in drawing it, the trigger caught and the load was discharged into the breast of Mr. Geddis, making a dangerous wound. Both parties have been travelling and giving dramatic performances since June last, when they left this city, and were to have returned here professionally in February. Mr. Geddis learned the printing business in this city, but afterwards adopted the stage as a profession.

"I'M NOT AFRAID."

[The latest trifle in the literary world, and which was first brought into public notice by Mr. Geo. R. Knight, at the Academy of Music, last Friday night.]

The shrewd [illegible] of blood and flame
When riding down to Orleans came
A trooper bold, with heart of ice,
Whose banner bore this strange device—
"I'm not afraid."

His brow was black, his eye beneath
Burned like the cigar 'twixt his teeth,
And like exploding bolsters rung
Stentorian accents from his tongue,
"I'm not afraid."

Don't, cried the maid in wild despair;
Don't look so savage or you'll scare
The gentle children all to death.
He only growled with bated breath,
"I'm not afraid."

Don't try it on, an old man said,
If brains you've left within your head;
He paused in doubt and heaved a sigh,
Put thumb to nose and winked his eye,
"I'm not afraid."

Beware the phantom White League rage;
Beware the Banditti savage.
Full five feet two he upward rose,
Then said and blew his martial nose,
"I'm not afraid."

Now roomed in the St. Charles Hotel,
He each five minutes rings the bell,
And as the servant opens the door,
Growls out the dread words o'er and o'er,
"I'm not afraid."

RELIGIOUS.

Prayer is a note indorsed by Christ, and paid by the infinite God.—Frothingham.

A statistician has estimated that there are in New York and Brooklyn forty-five hundred women who expend annually $8,000 each in dress.

It is no rare thing when the wedding march sounds to see dragging through the aisles a wedding dress that has cost $1,000 or $1,500. Things have come to such a pass that when we cry over sin we wipe the tears away with a $150 pocket handkerchief.—Talmage.

Rev. DeWitt Talmage preached last Sunday in New York from the following text in Isaiah: "Moreover, the Lord saith because the daughters of Zion are haughty and walk with stretched forth necks and wanton eyes, walking and mincing as they go, and making a tinkling with their feet, and their cauls and their round tiaras like the moon. The chains and the bracelets, and the mufflers, the bonnets, and the ornaments of the legs, and the head bands and the tablets, and the earrings, the rings and the nose jewels, the changeable suits of apparel and the wimples, and the crisping pins, the glasses and the fine linen, and the hoods and the veils."

The $10,000 subscription of A. T. Stewart & Co. for the Centennial celebration at Philadelphia has been followed by these additional contributions: Hardt & Co., $5,000; Kurscheedt, King & Co., $5,000; Fred'k, Victor & Achelis, $5 000; Pomeroy & Plummer, $5,000; Whittemore, Peet, Post & Co., $5,000; W. L. Strong & Co., $5,000.

But the difficulty in renting out our store to persons who could furnish the means for conducting the Business as it should be, together with the pressure brought to bear on us, to continue in Raleigh this first class store, by a very large number, of our friends both ladies and gentlemen, have compelled us to surrender our desire to retire and to-day we announce that on and after January 1st, 1875, we will still offer to the Public the advantages of this First Class

We return our sincere thanks to a generous public for the very large patronage extended our firm, through a period of half a century. NEW GOODS AGAIN AT Creech's.

SECOND STOCK THIS SEASON.

It affords me more than ordinary pleasure to offer to the trade and consumers of Dry Goods, a second stock bought within the last few days in New York, and will be sold at prices which enables me to ask competition no odds.
My stock of Dress Goods embrace a large and complete line of beautiful shades and colors, from low price to fine fabric. My stock of piece goods, Hats, Boots, Shoes, Carpets, Yankee Notions, &c., is no doubt the largest to be found in the city, and to which I would call the special attention of close buyers, and here allow me to say that I do not propose to close or wind up my business, but on the contrary to extend it. So bear in mind Creech's is the place.
Those who study economy and profitable investment can do no better than to give me a call.
Being truly alive to the demands of the hour, and anxious to secure a large trade, claim to put before the public the largest stock to be found in the city.
