Shirlee Wadsworth

Shirlee decided that collecting the names wasn't enough. If the institutions and organizations were to be helpful to newcomers they needed to know more about them. She has now put in place a committee which calls newcomers to welcome them and which collects demographic and interest data. All of which is or will be shared with the institutions and organizations.

More than 65 such data gathering calls have been completed.

As word of Shirlee's work has gotten out, people are constantly passing new names on to her. She is especially delighted when the newcomer is still unpacking or, better yet, when they are still awaiting the arrival of the moving truck.

Shirlee Wadsworth is proof positive of how valuable an asset newcomers are to our community. She herself is a newcomer having arrived in Charlotte just this past August.

Before they had unpacked, Shirlee and her husband Jim had been to Shalom Park and made contact with the JCC and Federation. Just as rapidly, they affiliated with a temple.

Shirlee's arrival coincided with the development of the Shalom Y'all Weekly Newcomers Group, and she joined right in. When the group decided that something needed to be done to gather the names of newcomers, Shirlee volunteered to chair that effort.

In the months since she took on that responsibility she has discovered and uncovered almost 200 names. A person or family moving to Charlotte is a "discovery". A person or family who has been here for a while but has just decided to get involved in the Jewish community is an "uncovery".
