Dark Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a great many years, and although I am past eighty years of age, yet I have not a gray hair in my head."
Geo. Yellott, Towson, Md.

We mean all that rich, dark color your hair used to have. If it's gray now, no matter; for Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color to gray hair.

Sometimes it makes the hair grow very heavy and long; and it stops falling of the hair, too.

WIT OF PRESIDENT WOODROW.

New Head of Princeton Makes Himself Popular With Students.

A Princeton man tells of an incident of Dr. Woodrow Wilson's elevation to the presidency of Princeton which he regards as indicative of the way in which he will hold the students in leash by ready wit and a genial smile instead of trying to awe them with his dignity.

When darkness fell over the project, on the evening of the day on which the announcement of Dr. Wilson's election was made, some of the more boisterous spirits organized a celebration, and, having requisitioned horns and a goodly number sheet of bread lettuce, descended upon the new president.

At the first toot of a horn he knew what was coming. It is one Indian could break loose in Wilson was out among the screamers, and sing each one in the head and thanking them individually and each one by name in a conversation, promising not to use the lettuce blade much in addition, made departure without a word of chide and to get rid of.

When the students recover from this unexpected overthrow of their plans some one shouted:

"What's the matter with Woodrow Wilson?"

And the answer came loud and clear:

"He's all right. He's a bricks."

The students then marched away, singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow," and carrying their lettuce heads with them.

GOOD ROADS.

Interesting Information.

THE following interesting information is taken from the recent article entitled "Road Building with Convict Labor in the Southern States," by Professor J. A. Holmes, and will be of interest to those interested in the good roads movement.

Portable jails on wheels are novelties which are now in use in several localities. These movable jails appear to solve the problem of preventing the escape of convicts employed at great distances from the prison proper. In Alabama superintendent clay are freight car boxes provided with barred windows and mounted upon wagon trucks. As the road improvement progresses they are drawn forward by horses and followed in such a movement goes to pieces behind it, and is the temporary prison camp. Morning and evening the convicts are marched about the road operations to their quarters. To facilitate their being safely guarded during the night without too great risk and expense each prisoner, when he arrives, is fastened by a leg iron or one arm manacled loosely to a chain or rod from which he can be easily released the following morning.

Even of tents little comprise the [illegible] quarters. These are easily made, fairly comfortable. Ample ventilation is afforded in summer and during the cold months there is a stove in each tent.

One of these portable prisons, which can be dismounted and transported in sections, is now on the public roads of North Carolina. One of these movable jails is mentioned to accommodate [illegible] convicts. Its sides and ends are of boards nailed together in sections. The roof is corrugated iron, in sections in pairs. Large tents are used in Alabama.

Women in camps are the cooking and washing for other migratory camps. This work is usually done, however, by negro men, convicts, and in some cases it is performed by hired labor. The convict guards are usually assigned such tasks as the carrying of water or the running of errands.

A mill and cotton gin are attached to certain camps where slaves are made to escape. With these the Mississippi [illegible] make it impossible for prisoners to run rapidly, thus doing away somewhat with his movements during the regular road work.

Officers of the convict system of road building say that it offers too many opportunities for the escape of prisoners, yet in many or two, however, the actual escapes amount to less than [illegible] out of one hundred. Almost [illegible] convicts representing ten States, [illegible] upon their roads. This numbers an army of 1871 road builders, each of whom costs his State [illegible] and [illegible] half cents a day. [illegible] in the county jail he [illegible] and one half cents more [illegible]. Hence [illegible] a cheaper article [illegible] than laughing [illegible] or [illegible]. All told, the cost of convicts [illegible] in these States ranges from [illegible] to one half that of hired [illegible] employed on the same work.

[illegible] States employing convicts are Florida, Georgia, [illegible], Louisiana, Mississippi, [illegible], South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. In the two Carolinas and Georgia there is a per [illegible] of convicts hired out. Their labor is separated at cost of only [illegible] cents per convict per [illegible]. An Imagination Staggerer.

If we could have good roads it would add more to the value of farm property than all other public improvements put together ever have. It would reduce the cost of getting our crops to market more than one-half, and in saving of feed that is now lost to idle horses, it would amount to a sum that staggers the imagination.

A Practical Result.

Every day that a team remains idle it is something for which no return will ever be received. If we had good roads the teams could be used on the farm when the ground was in condition and the crops could be hauled to market at such times as farm work could not be prosecuted.

A Remarkable Statement.

It has been computed that the average cost of getting crops from the farm to the railway station is greater than putting it from the railroad station to the seaboard.

A Farmer's Opinion.

"If I were a question of farm wagons with narrow tires furnished free of expense, or such wide tire wagons as I am using at my own cost, I should contribute to the latter." A Farmer.

Have Wide Tires.

The very best way to make and keep good roads is to have wide tired wagons.

THE MIND OF THE CHILD.

Be Happy if You Have a Boisterous Infant—The New Scholastic Ideal.

In the new annual report of the Commissioner of Education will appear a paper entitled "Infancy." A Study of Child Character," which will deal with the ideas that dwell in the brain of a very young child and are developed into thought. The data concerning the development of the child mind were gathered from recorded observations of hundreds of children, while they were at work or play. Deductions are made, from the facts presented, that every exercise, part chiefly of a mental nature, is injurious to the child; that the young mind in the course of growth may be permanently injured by overstudy, that when a child is growing rapidly he is disinclined to exertion, and on the other hand that too much exercise will check growth.

The report says that restlessness in children up to six or seven years of age is a good sign, but a bad sign after that age. The report says: "The restless child should naturally develop into a man of action. Much is who have restless children can go counter out of the fact that this condition shows a normal and desirable development. The boisterous child is a little [illegible] daily good angel."

A quiet child, the report says, is not necessarily one that will develop into a bright man or woman. Such a condition in a child is often due to stunted rapid growth or of sickness.

The report concludes: "We are suffering from a false ideal of a [illegible] which has been handed down to us from the Renaissance. We seem to think that to master books is the easy way to become learned and to become learned is to be happy. We can add nothing to [illegible] information from books and the object of education is not to make many scholars. The [illegible] may become learned from books [illegible] passed. We live [illegible] and observation and experiment are mindless and morbid. Our ideal [illegible] is no longer an [illegible] man surprised with a well-stored mind he knows, brooding over his [illegible] in the small hours of the morning on [illegible] a well rounded man [illegible] who knows books [illegible] and affairs as well [illegible] drink deeply from many [illegible] an honorable [illegible] who has [illegible] thoughts."

Parcel Carrying.

For many years the endless belt method of carrying merchandise from place to place in large buildings has been in use and has [illegible] well. Its place, however, is being rapidly taken by the telephone system, in which an overhead wire, merchandise may be carried suspended, with electricity as the motive power. One of the uses of telephones, which appeals to everybody, is in railway stations for carrying baggage.—Baltimore Sun.

LAST OF FORT GUNNYBAGS.

From Its Windows San Francisco Murderers Were Hanged.

What is possibly the most interesting historic building in San Francisco, the old two-story structure on Sacramento street, between Davis and Front streets, which served as headquarters for the vigilance committee of 1856, is being partly torn down. It will be rebuilt and its identity so merged in the new structure that its historic interest will be lost.

It was here that organization of the committee proceeded, and in its rooms that, on the following day, Casey and Cora, the slayers of King and Richardson, were imprisoned after their surrender by the authorities to the committee. The trials were held here, and from the projecting beams of the old building Casey and Cora were hanged on the afternoon of May 22, while thousands of armed vigilants kept back the 20,000 people that crowded into the vicinity of the scene of execution.

The committee continued to meet in the same rooms, and the subsequent fortification of the building with a breastworks of gunnybags filled with sand gave the place the name of "Fort Gunnybags."

Not until William T. Coleman and his fearless associates had completed the work that struck terror to the hearts of the lawless and had adjourned, did the building now being destroyed cease to be the center of fearful and wholesome interest.

Journalist's Triumph.

Miss Janet Priest of Minneapolis has proved to the satisfaction of a coterie of self-satisfied players in her vicinity that in her case where there's a will there's a way, and, incidentally, that she is not what is called in the sporting section either a "piker" or a "bluffer."

Miss Priest is the dramatic critic of the Tribune in that city. Recently she commented adversely on a performance given by some members of the Frawley company. She was subsequently asked if she could do better. Miss Priest is merry and replied by studying one of the roles in question and appearing in one of the performances. She scored an immediate "hit" and has been asked to continue in the profession. But this she declined to do and has returned to her former labors.

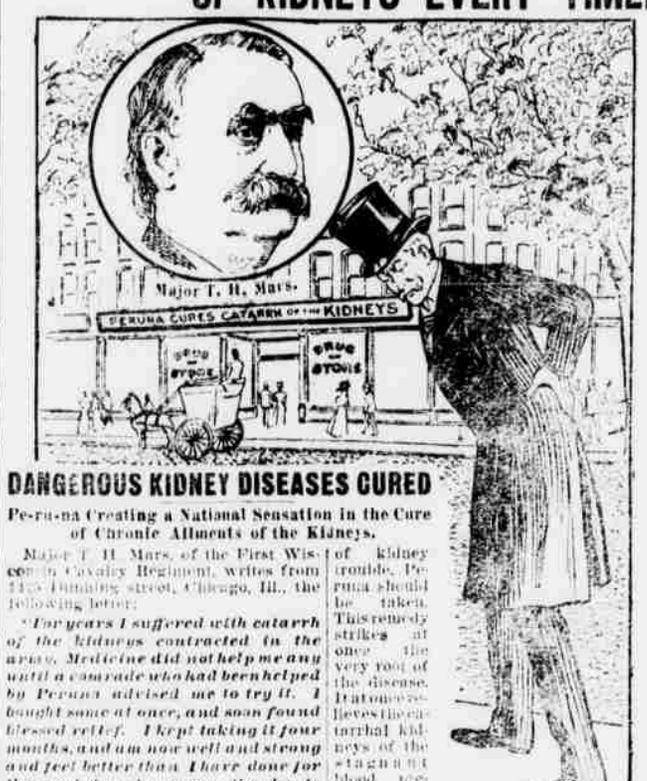
PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH OF KIDNEYS EVERY TIME.



DANGEROUS KIDNEY DISEASES CURED

Pe-ru-na Creating a National Sensation in the Cure of Chronic Ailments of the Kidneys.

Major T. H. Mars, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry Regiment, writes from 1115 Fanning street, Chicago, Ill., the following letter:

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the kidneys contracted in the army. Medicine did not help me any until a comrade who had been helped by Peruna advised me to try it. I bought some at once, and soon found blessed relief. I kept taking it four months, and am now well and strong and feel better than I have done for the past twenty years, thanks to Peruna."—T. H. Mars.

Mr. John Vance, of Hartford City, Ind., says: "My kidney trouble is much better. I have improved so much that I only wants to know what medicine I am taking. I recommend Peruna to everybody, and some have commenced to use it. The folks all say that if Dr. Hartman's medicine cures he is great."—John Vance.

Mr. J. Beake, of Petrolea, Ontario, Canada, writes: "Four years ago I had a severe attack of Bright's disease, which brought me so low the doctor said nothing more could be done for me. I began to take Peruna and Manalin, and in three months I was a well man, and have continued so ever since."—J. Beake.

At the appearance of the first symptom of kidney trouble, Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease. It removes the catarrhal kidneys of the stagnant blood, prevents the escape of serum into the blood, Peruna stimulates the kidneys to excrete from the blood the accumulating poison, and thus prevents the convulsions which are sure to follow if the poisons are allowed to remain. It gives great vigor to the health, action and digestive system, both of which are apt to fail rapidly in kidney disease.

Peruna cures catarrh of the kidneys simply because it cures catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they realize and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them should cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because the component parts are known to the whole world and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effect, is Syrup of Figs, and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by ladies and children.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally on the stomach, liver and bowels, is nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing the constipation habit which results from the use of many other cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood transformed into strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines when they are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the form of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle Syrup of Figs.

Regard should be had to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principle with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to the care and skill of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers may offer to increase their profits. The genuine article may be bought anywhere at all reliable druggists at fifty cents per bottle. Please to remember the full name of the Company

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only.

In the fall of [illegible] I was afflicted with Sciatic Rheumatism so much so that I had to use a cane to aid me in walking. Upon sitting down, there was no ease to my thigh, and the only position in which I could bear my leg was straight out in front of me, even in a reclining position. Realizing the nature of the disease, I began treatment at once, but received no relief until induced by Mr. J. T. Thompson, of Greenville, to try the drug firm of Boiler & Booter, to take a Rheumacide, which I obtained a bottle from them under the guarantee of Mr. Booter that if it did not cure me the money would be refunded. One bottle relieved me, and I have had no rheumatism since that time.

W. A. Cooper, [illegible] was down with a severe attack of rheumatism, and [illegible] was turned in bed on a sheet. After the use of several bottles of RHEUMACIDE, he was pronounced well by the attending physicians, who [illegible] believed in the efficacy of your medicine.
