[illegible] ... The interests of the merchant, the farmer and the stockholders of the road are reciprocal. To the merchant and farmer it is of importance that this Company should ... the road at the cheapest possible rates; and it is the duty of the Directors of the road to lower the tariff of freights to this point.

Again, it is the bounden duty of the Directors to adjust their tariff so as to carry the Merchandise and produce over the greatest length of road.—Let us examine and see if this has been done.

I will suppose that New York is to be the great centre in which most of our produce is eventually to find a market, particularly our wheat. The railroad freight on a bushel of wheat from Charlotte N. C. to Charleston S. C., is twenty cents, thence by sea to New York eight cents—making the whole cost of freight from Charlotte to New York twenty-eight cents. The freight on a bushel of wheat from Charlotte to Wilmington is twenty-seven cents and ship-freight to N. York eight cents, giving to the Southern route an advantage of seven cents a bushel on the transportation of wheat, and also to Charlotte merchants the advantage of seven cents a bushel on the price of wheat, which enables them to pay better prices than the Concord and Salisbury merchants can afford. The result of this is that all the counties West of Rowan, and a part of Rowan also, send most of their wheat or flour by wagon direct to Charlotte, from whence it is sent South, not paying a cent to the central road. Another result of this condition of things is that the merchants of Morganton, and other points similarly situated, finding so many more returned wagons from Charlotte than from Salisbury, that they order all their goods to be sent to them via Charleston; a clean loss to the central Road.

The freight on wheat from Concord to Charlotte is six cents per bushel, and I am enabled to land a bushel of wheat in New York by the Southern route from this place for thirty-four cents, whilst on the other route via Wilmington, it would cost me thirty-six cents, and I have also to contend against the Charlotte markets.

The freight from Charlotte here on all articles, except corn, wheat and flour, is about wagon rates. On the article of hay we are charged fifteen cents per hundred, although our bales are as heavy and but little larger than cotton bales. A wagon may haul hay to Charlotte and be allowed eight dollars per day and then do it cheaper than the N. C. R. R. The rates on sugar, coffee and salt, are so high that all the country South of us haul their produce to Charlotte, sell it at better prices, and get their groceries cheaper than we can afford to sell them. The farmers in the neighborhood of the Harrisburg Depot—were liberal in their subscriptions towards building the road. Yet these men already cut off from the benefits of the road, so far as transportation of produce is concerned. The distance from this Depot to Charlotte is 12 miles. From Charlotte they are charged six cents per bushel on corn and wheat; thirteen cents per hundred for cotton, and fifteen cents for hay; and generally fifteen to twenty-five cts per hundred for dry goods. The prices force them to haul all their produce to Charlotte. The argument is, short distances wont pay. The Yorkville Road is only twenty-five miles long, and it pays a great deal better than I fear the Central Road ever will pay. I believe that if we could compete successfully with Charlotte, we could send one hundred thousand bushels of Wheat from this point over the North Carolina Road. We hope to send half that quantity to New York the ensuing season, but our contracts will be made for its delivery in Charlotte—of course it will be wagoned there, entailing a loss upon the road. A few men living in the neighborhood of Gibson's Mill or Caudle Creek, eight miles from Concord and sixteen from Charlotte, can deliver a wagon load of wheat in Concord in a day—it will take two days for its delivery in Charlotte, yet the advance on the bushel, which the Charlotte merchants is enable to pay over what we can pay, will pay him well to haul his wheat to that point—and once at Charlotte it is lost to the Central Road forever. The Wilmington and Charlotte Roads will be along some of these times, and then the matter will be at rest.

It is unnecessary to consider cotton. From Charlotte to Goldsboro' it is $2.40 per bale; from Charlotte to Charleston $2.25. Cabarrus county will this year produce 5,000 bales of cotton. We dreamed once, that the cotton would find an outlet via Wilmington, and the result has proved that we were indeed dreaming. To sum up the whole matter, we, in Cabarrus, have come to the conclusion, that so far as we are concerned, the great North Carolina Central Rail Road is a failure, and we defy them to adduce freights on us—it is now at wagon rates—I expect to send to Charlotte from Concord, by wagons the ensuing season, one thousand bales of hay—of course these wagons will haul back all of my Fall stock of goods.

At present rates of freight, commissions and exchange, will cost the farmer full fifty cents to sell a bushel of wheat in New York, but from this section of country, it is certain that the price of wheat must come down, and this cost of fifty cents upon the bushel will act as an embargo upon the cultivation, and the farmer will be forced to abandon it.

I think that wheat instead of flour should go to market, yet the board discriminates in favor of flour. It takes at our best mills, on an average, 5¼ bushels of wheat to make a barrel, the transportation of these five and a half bushels of wheat over the road at 20 cents per bushel will amount to $1.10, while but 75 cents is charged for the transportation of a barrel of flour the same distance.

Major Gwynn, who had a good deal to do in fixing the tariff of freight on the North Carolina Rail Road, confidently expected cotton to go North from Charlotte, and pass on this road. Many persons thought it would come up from as far South as Chester, and yet cotton can be sent to New York via Charleston a fraction less than it can be had down in Wilmington, and so with the products of the country generally. Governor Morehead and Major Gwynn had a hard struggle with the Charlotte Company about a few feet of ground about the Depot at Charlotte, insisting that to give up these few feet would materially effect the local business of the Central Road at that point. What a humbug!

You would naturally enquire can or will these things be remedied. The remedy rests with the directors.

A bale of cotton is sent from [illegible] to Charleston 160 miles, for 75 cents a bale—other freight in proportion—and yet the income of this Road is [illegible].

I would remark so far as I am concerned as a merchant, were it not for Charlotte I would have but little interest in the subject of freights for my neighbors who bide in my own market, has the same Freights to pay that I have and brings me on a loss, but the difficulty is the freights go to Charlotte and then they are lost to myself and to the road. With all these difficulties, I think when the figures are made out for the business of the road, we will compare favorably with other points on the road. I write in great haste.

Yours very respectfully,
CALEB PHIFER.

P. S. The other letter alluded to above will be given the next week's paper.

THE JANUS FACED GOVERNOR.

Just as we expected, as soon as Gov. Bragg leaves the West to canvass the Eastern Counties he becomes perfectly mum on the subject of internal improvements and endeavors to prejudice the minds of our Eastern friends against Mr. Gilmer, on account of his votes in the Legislature, where as a Western man he showed himself the true firm and consistent representative of a Western constituency. In other words, Gov. Bragg has taken back, upon the never failing resort of small politicians and demagogues, the attempt to stir up sectional feeling, and sectional prejudices, and instead of endeavoring to allay that sectional strife which has so long caused our beloved old State to bleed at every pore, and has so long retarded her prosperity, we behold the pitiable spectacle of our Governor transposing the State, and for mere party purposes, endeavouring to array the East against the West, and to destroy those kind and amicable feelings which have for the last few years existed between these portions of the State, and under the influence of which, such a stimulus has been given to our commercial and agricultural interest and which is causing N. C. to be known and honored abroad. Alas, that one Demagogue, shall have it in his power to disturb these friendly relations or in any manner to dampen the spirit of internal improvement. We quote from a letter written by a friend who heard the discussion at Windsor, Bertie, County on June 18th.

"Gov. Bragg does all he can to injure Gilmer in the East on account of his Western votes when in the assembly, but so far it is no go. Mr. Bragg has never yet mentioned internal improvements in any of his speeches down here in the East and he cant be forced to say one word in favour of any kind of internal improvement, no, not one word, though we understand that when in the West he entertained and expressed sentiments quite different from those he holds in the East. We of the East who know Gov. Bragg, are not at all surprised at this course, it is characteristic of the man and is in keeping with the acts of his whole life. But really I think Gov. Bragg is excusable for not saying any thing in the East favourable to internal improvements, for it would be amusing to see a man who has for years been so well known in the East as the bitter and constant opponent of such works, trying to convince our people that he is in favour of rail roads. Mr. Bragg has the impudence to do a great many things but this would be too glaring."

So it seems that Mr. Bragg is attempting to play the same game that he did two years ago, on the question of internal improvements—he has two faces on this question, one for the West and one for the East, so also in regard to Mr. Gilmer's financial scheme. In the West Mr. Bragg was so dull and stupid that he could not understand any thing about it, but now in the East where he thinks it will not be popular, he seems to understand it fully. Can it be possible that such a trickster as this can again deceive the people of N. Carolina? Is poor old N. C. to be forever kept back from occupying her proper position, and that exalted stand to which she is so justly entitled by demagogueism and sectionalism? We hope not, indeed we know that she will not. The people have begun and will continue to think for themselves.—Our State must and will have rail roads; such roads are absolutely necessary to the prosperity of the West, her people cant exist without them, and he who attempts to decieve the West by shuffling and double dealing on this vital question, will find that he is dealing with a people who are fully awake to their necessities and who will put their foot upon any treacherous demagogue, who attempts to trifle with their best interest. The same writer also adds, that Mr. Gilmer in the East is heard with great enthusiasm and applause, and that he is gaining popularity very rapidly.

FACTS FOR THE PEOPLE.

Thomas Bragg, who never gave a vote, made a speech, or gave one cent for the N. C. Rail Road, when he goes forth on a canvass to denounce the Americans of his State as traitors, dark lanterns, and secret oath bound conspirators, rides free on said road. When John A. Gilmer goes forth to defend his fellow citizens against these foul charges, he has to pay for riding on the road which he toiled and labored to build. When Robert P. Dick desires to go to Winston to abuse Mr. Gilmer, he rides free on the N. C. Rail Road, and yet Mr. Dick tried to defeat Mr. Caldwell of Guilford for the Legislature, because he, Mr. Caldwell, voted for the Eastern and Western extension of said road.

☞ Some days since, as the passenger train was backing up from Montpelier Junction, a child was discovered standing upon the track. Conductor Hebert and J. Marsh (of Northfield) immediately tried the brake with all their strength. The train could not be stopped—the child stood unmoved—it must die! Mr. Marsh placed himself on the lowest step, and as the train advanced, swung around his foot and swept the child from the track, saved! Mr. Marsh informs us that up to that moment he thought of nothing but the child; afterward, and for days, he was hardly himself, and even in his sleep he saw the child, and awoke in terror, so severe was the shock on him.

CARD.

Editor "Watchman," Salisbury, N. C.:

Dear Sir—Will you permit me through your columns to return in a public manner my thanks to the "Executive Committee" and other officers of the "Greensboro' Mutual Insurance Company," for the kindness shown me by them on the 18th inst., and particularly the Company's kind and gentlemanly Secretary, Peter Adams, Esq., whose urbanity and kindness I cannot soon forget. My store-house with my stock of goods was entirely destroyed by fire on the night of Wednesday, June 4. On which property I had insurance in the "Greensboro' Mutual Insurance Company," which covered part of my loss. As soon as I made my misfortune known to the Company in the manner pointed out in the policy of insurance, they promptly paid the amount of insurance; not claiming the ninety days allowed by the terms of the policy. Such a course on the part of the Company not only calls forth the thanks of the sufferer, but will give it the confidence of its members, and deservedly place the Company in a favorable position before the public.

FOR THE WATCHMAN.

Mr. Editor:—The Republican Banner of the 24th instant, seems to be dreadfully exercised on account of my former communication, and deals out a profusion of slang and billingsgate in an attempted reply. There are two old sayings that apply with force, at least to one of the editors: "galled jades will wince," and "one renegade is worse than ten Turks." Our shafts flew straight to the mark.

We take it for granted the article in the Banner is the effusion of the junior editor. He is a nice man, so freshly from "frequenting gravel pits" and with the "horrid oaths" burning upon his lips, to talk about an "irresponsible caste" and "depriving ourselves of the rights of freemen."

How long since he became so pacified—so saintly—such a fit moral censor? Who granted him absolution for his "Dark lantern" sins? Has he been on a pilgrimage to Rome? Or has he Bishop Hughes' placebo for a wounded conscience in his pocket?

Was he not whilom a wide-mouthed "Know Nothing" as he is now an unscrupulous Anti-American? Why this sudden change, if not that he has bent the "pregnant hinges of the knee, that thrift might follow fawning." We do not know that we ought to notice such a writer, nor would we if he did not hold the position he does, as an editor, for we do not know that he got an honorable discharge from the "Know Nothing Order." When did he withdraw if ever? He was a third degree member, and if he did not regularly withdraw he is in an equivocal position.—We can inform the refined editor that we do not write from the Mountains. We write from this district, and we write what we know.

We do not care what were the editor's opportunities "of knowing Mr. Warring's views," we reiterate that he is "an open, avowed and up to the hub dis-unionist," and we will prove it if he denies it himself. One question for the Junior; when you "swore away your rights and joined the Know Nothings," how did you recover them. The Standard says they are binding forever and none can absolve from them!

UNION AMERICAN.

ROWAN HOUSE, June 23d, 1856.

Mr. Bruner—Dear Sir: In order to correct "the report" that my unfortunate boy Sam "was in liquor" at the time of the accident on the 15th June, which terminated his life, I desire the publication of the enclosed certificate from gentlemen who last saw him at the house. I am sure he was entirely sober, else I should not have suffered him to go near the depot on that day.

Very respectfully your ob't serv't,
H. L. ROBARDS.

We do hereby certify, that on the evening of the 15th June, being Sunday evening, on which the unfortunate accident befell Sam Brandon, the property of Col. H. L. Robards, that we saw said boy not ten minutes before the accident, and that he was entirely free from the influence of liquor. We knew Sam well, being boarders at the Rowan House. Our attention was particularly called to Sam at the time, by his master calling on him to go to the depot in place of Sam Boyden, who was absent, and this after his omnibus had left for the cars. We noticed him well, and heard him in conversation with his master.

We further state, that since Col. Robards has owned Sam, we have never seen him intoxicated. Previous to his ownership of the boy we were unacquainted with him. Sam waited on our rooms.

The second session of the above named Institution will commence on the day above mentioned. The United Baptist Institute is surrounded by the finest Mountain scenery in the State—in the immediate vicinity are two first-rate Mineral Springs; and separated from any local cause of disease. It is now in a very flourishing condition—under the superintendence of James H. Foote, A. m., and H. J. Grimes, Esq.

Those desiring a pleasant home in the beautiful county and a healthy climate, and near one of the best Literary Institutions in the country would do well to attend the above sale.

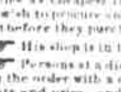
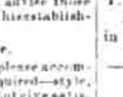
THOMAS E. BROWN.
Carriage, Buggy and Sulky Builder.



SALISBURY, N. C.,



IS now carrying on the above business, and invites the public to call and examine his work. He is manufacturing very superior vehicles, and feels confident he can give satisfaction to all who want a first rate article. He can put up work at low prices, if it be desired, but would always recommend the better qualities as cheapest in the long run. He would advise those who wish to procure any thing in his line to call at his establishment before they purchase elsewhere.

☞ His shop is in the rear of his Livery Stable.

☞ Persons at a distance ordering work, will please accompany the order with a description of the article required—style, quality and price—and when delivered, if it does not give satisfaction they will not be required to keep it.

With the advantages of the Railroad at his door, he will take almost any kind of trade in exchange for work—such as Corn, Wheat, Flour, Oats, Bacon, Lard, Horses, Provender, Timber, &c., &c. His is kept up as usual, and those who wish either to buy or to sell first rate horses or mules, are invited to call.
