Frocked vicars of the church, famous medical men and lawyers met in the great hall of the British Medical Association Tuesday and organized a crusade to legalize "mercy killings" in Great Britain.

Rescuers Lost

The whereabouts of four men seeking Paul Redfern, long-lost aviator, was hidden Tuesday in the dense jungles of South America. Unconfirmed reports seeped through to the outside world that the four had abandoned their airplane and started on foot through the wild hinterlands to where Redfern has been rumored held by natives as a "white god."

Review Refused

Bruno Richard Hauptmann's chances of escaping the electric chair were definitely narrowed Monday when the Supreme Court, in a one-word verdict, refused to review his conviction for the kidnapping of tiny Charles Augustus Lindenbergh, Jr. Only two avenues remained open to the former Bronx carpenter and one-time German army machine gunner. One is an appeal for clemency to the New Jersey board of pardons. The second is a petition for a new trial if fresh evidence can be found.

Assassinated

Walter Liggett, national literary figure of Minneapolis, Gov. Floyd B. Olson's most outspoken foe, was assassinated Monday night. Liggett, the second anti-Farmer-Labor editor to die by assassin's bullets in 10 months there, was shot by two men as he drove up to the rear of his home. The men, apparently lying in wait, fired three shots into Liggett's body as he got out of his car in an alley to open his garage doors.

Big Money For County Farmers

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration Has Poured Almost $3,000,000 Into This State During Months Of July August And September

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration poured almost $3,000,000 into the pockets of North Carolina farmers during the month of July, August and September. Payments to Brunswick county farmers during this period totaled $8,560.97.

Rental and benefit payments to farmers co-operating in the crop adjustment programs accounted for $2,578,086.79 of the total, said Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College.

The largest sum went to tobacco growers, who received $1,443,792.83. Cotton growers got $997,218.76, corn-hog producers $128,642.57, and wheat growers $8,432.63.

In addition, cotton growers who placed surplus tax-exemption certificates in the national pool received $1,361.73 from the sale of these certificates to other growers.

The $437,904.53 in administrative expenses went largely to pay committeemen, farmers who help administer the programs locally, Dean Schaub pointed out.

The rental and benefit payments are still flowing to the farmers, he added, but the amount for October and November have not been tabulated to date.

The payments are made from funds raised by processing taxes on the commodities covered by the various adjustment programs.

Benefit payments on all crops in this county for July, August and September were $8,560.97.

Annual Sales For The Prevention Of Tuberculosis Being Sponsored This Year By Members Of The Woman's Club

The annual sale of Christmas seals to secure funds with which to wage war on tuberculosis is well underway in Southport and Mrs. Annie K. Vitou, who is in charge of sales, reports that early sales have been very encouraging.

The National Tuberculosis Association has made great contributions toward the control of tuberculosis. Through committees of the "best minds" it studies every phase of tuberculosis, has the laboratories of thirteen Universities co-operating in research work and has recently greatly improved the tuberculin used in the skin and other tests for infection with tuberculosis. It prints the American Review of Tuberculosis, the scientific medical journal of tuberculosis, the Outdoor Life for patients and laymen. The Bulletin, which is distributed free for the asking, prints books and pamphlets which if read will keep physicians and laymen abreast of the newer things. Through committees it has developed the proper making and interpretation of X-ray plates both in adult and child. It has printed all seal supplies for every state in the union and furnishes cost. It has advised our government on potential load of tuberculosis among our soldiers following the war and amount of beds probably needed, methods, etc.

Unusual Interest In McCoy Divorce Action

Special Venire Of 35 Men From New Hanover County Summoned For Jury Service; Two Cases Have Been Consolidated

A jury selected from a special venire of 35 New Hanover County men was completed Tuesday morning and trial of the McCoy case was well underway by the time court adjourned Tuesday night.

The case was called for trial Monday, but Judge W. C. Harris, of Raleigh, and lawyers for both parties were of the opinion that the case should be decided by men from out of the county. Court took recess until Tuesday morning.

The various civil actions of J. J. McCoy against his wife, Gladys McCoy, and of Gladys McCoy against here husband, J. J. McCoy, have been consolidated into a case in which J. J. McCoy is seeking an absolute divorce from Gladys McCoy upon the grounds of adultery.

F. D. Hinson, correspondent, was the first witness on the stand. He was followed by his mother, Mrs. W. R. Hinson, Duncan Harvell, Mrs. Olivia Mercer, Mrs. Claude Knox, Mrs. Rockwell Swain, J .D. Johnson and Rockwell Swain.

The sordid testimony offered Tuesday afternoon was fully enough to satisfy the crowd of curious spectators who were present at the trial.

ADD THIS DEER HOUND TO LIST OF RETRIEVERS

M. A. Northrop, Brunswick county coroner, has the prize hunting story of the week—the tale of a retrieving deer hound.

It seems that last week while deer hunting near the Orton plantation with Sam Watts, Calvin Wescott and Gibb Collins the coroner and his hunting companions jumped a deer and shot at him 13 times without bringing him down.

Bewildered, no doubt, by the deafening blasts about him, the young buck took refuge in a pond of water. Then along came Monk, the deer hound, to do his stuff. Spying his quarry at bay in the pond, he proceeded to wade out, grab the wounded deer by the tail and bring him ashore to the hunters, who had arrived upon the scene by that time.

Brunswick county was formed in the year 1764, from the counties of Bladen and New Hanover. It derives its name from the Prince of Brunswick. It is situated on the extreme southeastern portion of North Carolina and bounded as follows: On the north by the Cape Fear River, which separates it from New Hanover and Bladen counties! on the east by the Cape Fear River, which also separates it from New Hanover county; on the south by the Atlantic Ocean and South Carolina line; on the west by the Waccamaw River, which separates it from Columbus county.

The county seat is Southport, formerly Smithville, a distance of one hundred and seventy-three miles from Raleigh.

In historical facts Brunswick county is very rich. It is composed of six townships, which are as follow: North West, one of the most productive farming sections. The home of Governor Russel is still in a nice state of preservation, and the site of Governor Tyron's home is properly marked. The finest home in all Brunswick is in this township, on U. S. Highway 117, and is owned by Mrs. Lindsey Walker.

Smithville township, the home of the county seat, Southport, was formerly Smithfield, is now the largest town in the county. There is situated some of the most historical sites—Old Fort Johnston and the Garrison just

Heavy Shrimping Season Comes To A Close As Many Boats Leave

The big rush of the shrimping season has passed and the fleet that numbered more than 125 boats ten days ago has been reduced to not more than 25.

The attraction of large shrimp, which are now being caught in southern waters, caused many local boats to go to St. Augustine, Fla. Two Southport dealers have gone to that state to look after their interests in that section.

Not all the boats which departed last week went to Florida. Some of them were from Morehead City, and have returned there to get ready for the sink-net fishing. Others from outlying sections of Brunswick county have returned home for the winter months.

Most of the boats here now are shrimping for Fodale, Wells, Grey, Arnold and the Fishermen's Co-operative. While the big catches for the season have already been made, there probably will be more good days for the boats.

Meanwhile, other products brought in by the boats are being handled. Grey and the Fishermen's Co-operative are buying sea bass, and arrangements are being made by Chas. E. Gause, manager of the latter plant, to buy as many clams as he can get.
