Hickman Child Drowns In Creek

11-Year-Old Doris Hickman Drowned Friday About Noon In Dutchman' Creek; Her Brother Saved By Resuscitation

Doris Hickman, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferney Hickman, was drowned Friday while swimming in Dutchman's Creek two miles from town, and her brother, Avon, 13, was rescued and revived after being worked on for more than an hour.

According to reports of the tragedy, the two children were members of a birthday party group that decided to go in swimming in the creek at a point where they were unaware of its depth. Discovering the water to be over their heads, members of the party began to scream, attracting the attention of men working nearby on the W. B. & S. section crew.

Hardy Bryant, colored, and Archie Johnson, white, assisted
