A severe rheumatic pain in my left shoulder had troubled Mr. J. H. Looper, a well known druggist of Des Moines, Iowa, for over six months. At times the pain was so severe that he could not lift anything. With all he could do he could not get rid of it until he applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm. "I only made three applications of it" he says, "and have since been free from all pain." He now recommends it to person similarly afflicted.

THE BLACK DIAMOND R. R.

Augusta, Ga wants it.

Knoxville Journal.

Col. Boone left last Tuesday for Augusta, Ga., and returned to the city Friday evening. To go by the shortest route is via. Marietta and Atlanta, Ga., which is 336 miles. When the Black Diamond is built it will reduce the distance to 294 miles or a saving of 102 miles.

Col. Boone says that upon his arrival at Augusta he was taken in charge by the mayor; Hon. W. B. Young, who took him to the Cotton Exchange and he was then introduced to all the members, who constitute the manufacturing interest of that city.

Colonel Boone says Augusta is well laid out and contains a population of 50,000. Has five large cotton mills run by water power. Each mill occupies a square of land as large as the square bounded by Gay, Unibd, Prince and Church streets

The Savannah river is tapped by a canal seven miles in length, passing through the heart of the city, with three distinct levels of the canal, which enables the city to have all the water power that 100 mills will ever be able to consume.

The canal cost originally $2,000,000, and was built by the city of Augusta, which that city has only appropriation of 15,000 bonds. The first bonds bore seven per cent interest, now refunding them at 4½ per cent, which sold his week, whilst Colnoe Boond was in Augusta, at $105½. The actual result of the building of that canal is that it pays its own way, supplies the city with water (the city owning the water works) which is pumped all over the city by the same waterpower turnished by the canal, and in addition has been the direct cause of putting down $8,000,000 worth of porperty upon the last duplicate—so much for foresight and good judgement. Augusta is known as the Lowell of the south. Has two of the finest streets in the world.

The main street, which is called Broad street, is three miles in length 140 feet wide between curbs, with sidewalks, 20 feet wide.

Green street, the residence street is 165 feet wide, with two rows of trees in the center for pleasure purpose.

Col Boone says that in all of his life he was never so well treated as he was by the Augusta people.

He says as one mode was introduced to him the next question was Augusta not only wants your road, but must have it. What can we do to get it? Colonel Boone said that he had as yet no proposition to offer but would as soon as the maps, which would show the country to be traversed by the extra Black Diamond system from the Ohio river to the sea, were out, that he would return to Augusta and tell them what was needed to perfect the Georgia franchise. Colonel Boone said as an inducement for the people of Augusta to take bond, that he would fix the rights of way between North Carolina line and Augusta so that the haul on coal to Augusta should equal the present rate to Charleston, viz: 2.05 per ton—Augusta now $2.55 per ton, and the same coal is carried through Augusta to Charleston, some 137 miles further and laid down for 50 cents less per ton.

Col. Boone says the mayor and common council arranged for a trip to the head of the dam, across the Savannah river, seven miles above Augusta, and they would not take no for an answer and that together with the commissioner of agriculture and superintendent of the fisheries of the state of Georgia, who were in August, the trip was made in a pleasure yacht. The city of Augusta owns a spacious dwelling and grounds at the dam which are used to entertain the guests of that city. An elaborate spread was given and the whole of Thursday was spent in taking Augusta's visitors that day at home. Col. Boone says that his trip has nerved his energies and he returned more than satisfied of his ability to build the Black Diamodd from the Ohio river to the sea at Savannah, Ga. He says that his trip to Augusta was gratifying from the fact that he heard no one doubt for a single moment but what the road could and would be constructed.

Some years ago an effort was made by the people of Augusta to locate the Rabun Gap route to Knoxville but failure followed because of a division of sentiment as a portion of the people worked for a road to Chattanooga, Tenn, called the Augusta Elkton and Chicago R. R. Col. Boone says that ex-Senator Walsh president of the Augusta Chronicle paid him two visits and urged upon him the importance of two things. That Augusta wanted the Black Diamond and must have it and hoped that he Col. Boone would not falter in the work until it was accomplished. Senator Walsh stated that 118 miles of the road between Augusta and Savannah could be easily and cheaply constructed as the fall of the river in that distance is only 100 feet in the 118 miles.

A preliminary line has been made from Augusta to Hartwell, the county seat of Hart county about 100 miles north of Augusta and the grades are light and easy of construction. Col. Boone says from what he can see that fifty 250 miles of road in Georgia can be constructed double track at a cost of $15,000 per mile.
