Morganton Mites.

The Star.

Glen Alpine Springs will open for visitors June 15.

With the great increase of business in Morganton a bank is an absolute necessity.

Electric lights have been placed in the cotton factory and are working like a charm.

Married, at this place last Sunday, Mr. Thomas Lowdermilk and Mrs. Ida Amos, all of Burke. Rev. H. F. Kestler officiated.

The supreme court on the 19th inst. affirmed Judge Boykin's decision in the case of Wilson vs. Pearson. This puts Mr. Richmond Pearson, as executor for his father, in for about $7,500, and ends a lawsuit that has been in the courts for about twenty-three years. It secures to the heirs of Charlie McDowell all that famous property known as the Quaker Meadows, or McDowell farm, on the Catawba river one mile from Morganton. It satisfies Maj. Wilson without interfering with these heirs, which it was thought at one time would have to be done to bring the suit to a close.

Frost Thick as a Knife Blade.

Franklin Press.

A heavy frost fell in certain sections of the county last Wednesday night and ice was formed about as thick as a knife blade. Corn was bitten but will come out again. The fruit was more or less injured. There was a slight frost in Franklin the same night but not enough to do much damage. This is about the latest frost within the recollection of the oldest inhabitant.

Reduction Works Sold.

Charlotte Chronicle.

The Piedmont Reduction Works at Thomasville were sold at auction Monday by the receiver, and were bid off by the company's attorney at $29,000. These works were erected for the manipulation of ore from the Silver Valley mine at a cost of $100,000. A log railway was built to the mine 16 miles distant. There are as yet no indications that work will be resumed.

Miss Florence Little that was, the young lady of York county, S. C., who distinguished herself last fall by secretly marrying a young man named Mintz, and next week marrying another suitor, Dr. D. C. Atkinson, has been arrested upon a warrant of bigamy sued out by her first husband's father.
