The Value of the A. I. B. Lecture Course As Applied to the Public Schools

----::----

By M. G. Mann, Vice-President and Cashier of The First National Bank, Tarboro.

(From The Tarheel Banker)

What the A. I. B. Lecture Course could mean to the future citizens of North Carolina is such a big question that I almost hesitate to take it for my subject, but I believe so firmly that the banker as well as the school teacher has a part to play in the training of our boys and girls that I am glad to give my views regarding the wonderful lecture course prepared by the American Institute of Banking. The time has not been so very long when people thought the schools throughout our country should only teach reading, writing and arithmetic. I am glad, however, that the people engaged in training our boys and girls—the future citizens of this great nation—are awakening to the fact that they must have real business training and since this is true the business is the very life-blood of the nation and is one of the first things that should be taught them. With all due respect to the great men and women engaged in teaching in our State I am sure I am correct when I say a great many of them have never had the training that would fit them to teach the children real business principles, and since this is true is it not the banker's place to see that the boys and girls in his town are taught the principles of banking? How can this be done? First, one would have to secure permission from your superintendent or principal to go before his school and talk to the pupils. I am frank to state that I do not believe we have a man or woman in North Carolina engaged in teaching that would refuse when they fully understand your request.

The first subject given by the A. I. B. is the deposit slip and I am sure any country banker who may by chance read this article will agree that if we do nothing more than teach the boys who will be our customers of tomorrow the need of each customer preparing his deposit ticket in his own writing we will have accomplished a great deal.

If we could say to each boy and girl in our High Schools, "Go to the bank and open a bank account," I am almost certain 75 per cent of them would not know how to do more than find the bank building. If every school in North Carolina could have these lecture courses presented to them by the bankers of the various towns 95 per cent would know how to open an account, and this would be the first step (the one which is always the hardest to take in any line of work) in teaching the boys and girls the value of saving.

There is no doubt in my mind but that the majority of our High School pupils do not know the use of checks and this is the second subject prepared by the A. I. B. to be presented to the schools. Other subjects to be discussed are endorsement of checks, demand and time deposits, how credit works, promissory notes, credit and character, various letters of credit, transferring money, the value of traveler's checks, a general discussion of savings banks, trust companies, what is wealth, what is capital, what is money, and the value of money. Also a number of other subjects that will be of value not only to the boys and girls of our schools but to our teachers as well.

In giving them lecture courses I believe the most effective way would be to have enough of the blank forms such as deposit slips, checks and notes for each boy and girl to have one in their hand during the course of the lecture. This will enable them to know the various forms when they see them in the regular course of business. The High School pupils should be asked to write a paper on each subject discussed and the banker should offer a substantial prize for the one preparing the best paper. After completing the lecture course the High School pupils should be divided into sections and each section taken to the bank and allowed to open an account and follow the deposit through the bank from the teller's cage to final filing of the slip.

I believe if every boy and girl in North Carolina could be given such an opportunity that they would have a better conception of thrift and would really enjoy saving and depositing their money. How many bankers in North Carolina are willing to give a little of their time in preparing these lectures and giving them before their respective schools? If you are may I not ask that you write to Mr. Paul P. Brown, Chairman Education Committee, North Carolina Bankers' Association, Asheville and ask him to send you necessary information regarding these lectures?

DENMARK NOT INCLINED TO TARIFF PROTECTION

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 9.—The Danish government has announced through one of its ministers that it has no intention of departing from the national policy of free trade. Consequently it is expected to oppose some pending tariff bills. A tariff, the government feels, would relart an early fall in the price of foodstuffs.

The government is seeking support for a bill under which no importer would be allowed to bring products into Denmark from any other country without at the same time placing orders for an equal quantity of goods with Danish manufacturers.

MRS. JOHANNA RAY IN JAIL THREE WEEKS

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 9.—Mrs. Johanna Ryan has begun her third week in the city jail, where she was placed September 22 when she refused to sign certain papers, as ordered by Superior Judge E. M. Card that would effect a property distribution between herself and her former husband. Mrs. Ryan gave no sign today that she contemplated a change of mind.

NO FOUNDATION FOR REPORT AGAINST U. S.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—A reuter dispatch from Christiana announces that there is no foundation for the report of last week that the arbitration court at The Hague had practically decided in favor of the Norwegian ship owners in their action against the United States shipping board in connection with Norwegian vessels alleged to have been seized by the United States during the war. The dispatch adds that the court is still discussing the case.

FORMER EMPRESS ZITA PLAYS "POOR RELATION"

BUDAPEST, Oct. 9.—(By The Associated Press).—Former Empress Zita is anxious to leave Spain, where poverty compels her to "play the poor relation" according to Count Joseph Karolyi, the royalists' leader whose return from Spain recently inspired the royalists to bring her back to Hungary.

The former empress has sold all her jewels, according to the count. The income from her estate in Hungary is insufficient to meet her expenses because Hungary's depreciated currency. She is willing to live with her children in the castle of Gondello, near Budapest, and will promise not to interfere in politics, the royalists leader claims.
