Capitol City News Briefs

Special to The News.

Raleigh, N. C., April 3.—About noon today in Wake superior court the jury took the case of State vs. Everitt Spence, charged with killing Walter Chavis, colored, nearly two years ago. The hearing began Tuesday afternoon. Two hours last evening were devoted to argument by counsel and three other speeches were made this afternoon before Judge Briggs charged the jury and directed them to take the case. Spence is a mere boy, son of a well known farmer in New Light township. He and several older companions, all drinking, stopped a wagon in front of a negro church in East Raleigh, fired into the crowd, Chavis being killed, the defense claims while he was stooping to get a rock to throw at the wagon. The killing by the boy is admitted, but self defense is pleaded. A verdict for manslaughter is demanded by the solicitor.

The A. & M. baseball team left this morning for Greensboro to play Guilford College there this afternoon. They go to Charlotte Saturday for a second game with Davidson. The team is accompanied by a goodly company of student-rooters and it is claimed that the boys are in fine form for playing winning ball. They return to Raleigh from Charlotte and will play Dartmouth College for two games Monday and Tuesday.

Superintendent J. E. Cole and the trustees of the North Carolina Methodist Orphanage are considering plans for an additional cottage for the steadily increasing number of children coming to the institution. There are now 133 children being cared for. The plant now consists of the main building which cost $12,000, one cottage building and the superintendent's residence. The completed plans for the institution call for seven cottages. It is the second of this number that is under consideration now.

The registrars and poll holders for the state prohibition election in Wake county have just been appointed by the Wake board of elections, the election to be May 26. The boards of elections in all the counties are to make similar appointments at once.

A man intimate with political situations for many years and successful himself in a number of campaigns, having served in congress as well as in other high offices, said today that while he intends to vote the prohibition ticket he is not at all certain that prohibition will carry. He thinks that the rural districts are more than likely to show up an anti-prohibition sentiment along with a number of the towns. He further suspects that a number of communities that are prohibition will vote anti-prohibition in this election for the reason that they feel that those communities in the state that now have saloons or dispensaries should be left to control their own affairs and prohibition sentiment developed within those localities rather than forcing prohibition upon them.

The North Carolina Grand Lodge Masonic Temple is going up rapidly. There are already five stories of the outer walls up, all the seven stories of reinforced cement structural work having been, of course, in position for some time. The temple will in all probability be ready for occupancy July 1.

Superintendent J. S. Mann, Warding J. M. Fleming and Clerk T. M. Arrington of the State Prison, have just been re-elected for another term by the board of directors, composed of J. G. Hackett, Wilkesboro, chairman; W. E. Crosland, Rockingham; R. H. Speight, Edgecombe; J. P. Kerr, Asheville; and S. H. Hearne, Albemarle.

The funeral of Charles A. Hart, a most highly esteemed retired business man of this city, who died last night, aged 80 years, was conducted from the residence this afternoon by Dr. I. McK. Pittinger of The Church of the Good Shepherd. He was in the hardware business for many years and served in the Confederate army.

The three-story brick building erected here as a temple by the negro Masonic lodge, is nearing completion. The lodge is now meeting on the third floor. It is built largely of the material from the building on Fayetteville street that gave place for the splendid North Carolina Grand Lodge Temple for white Masonry.

A $3,500 pipe organ is to be placed in the auditorium of the North Carolina school for the blind, Superintendent John E. Ray having left last night for Hartford, Conn., to close the contract for the instrument. He will stop in Washington and call on President Roosevelt with other prominent citizens of the state and Mr. Hayne Davis to urge the president to participate in a North Carolina Peace Convention to be held in Raleigh, Wilmington or Greensboro.

The farmers in the Fuquay Springs section are to be addressed Saturday by Governor Glenn on state prohibition.

O. J. Barrett, noted pitcher of McRae, Ga., was signed today by "King Kelly," manager of the Raleigh team. Kelly expects to have eighteen men here by May 1st ready for the preliminary practices, the weeding out to go forward then to the opening of the season.

Hon. J. Y. Joyner has gone to Guilford county to make several educational addresses. C. H. Mebane, of the department of education also left today for Randolph to make several speeches on local taxation and general school improvement.

Mr. Horace Taft, brother of Bill, told a newspaper interviewer the other day, that Bill was going to be President. What else could Horace say?

SUFFERING & DOLLARS SAVED.

E. S. Loper, of Marilla, N. Y., says: "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I have ever found." Heals burns, sores, ulcers, fever sores, eczema and piles. 25c at Woodall & Sheppard's, druggists.

WHAT DID LOWELL SEE ON VENUS?

In the April American Magazine Professor Harold Jacoby, of Columbia University, throws a bomb into the camp of those astronomers who claim that they have seen canals on Mars and therefore conclude that Mars is inhabited. He shows that the real photographs of Mars which Professor Lowell has made are only three-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, and that the larger pictures are simply hand drawings made from visual observations. And visual observations, he says, cannot be depended upon. To show that this is true, he says:

"It will be remembered that some ten years ago, Lowell observed on the planets Venus and Mercury, certain systems of geometric markings. As it is impossible to suppose that all planets possess intelligent engineers, it is an essential of the Martian theory to show that these Venus markings are quite unlike those now seen on Mars. Accordingly, in his book entitled 'Mars and its Canals,' published in 1906, Lowell refers to those older Venus observations in the following words:

"'The Venusian lines are hazy, ill-defined and non-uniform.'

"Referring now to the original article in which he describes what he saw on Venus, and which was printed in the Monthly Notices of the Royal Astronomical Society, London, 1897, we find the following:

"'They (the markings on Venus) are not shadings more or less definite, but perfectly distinct markings. I have seen them when their contours had the look of a steel engraving.'

"The only way in which these two statements concerning Venus can be brought into some sort of accord is to suppose that in the interval of nine years, the observer has for some reason changed his opinion. If this is the case, it is difficult to understand why he did not quote his remarks of 1897 in the book of 1906, and state specifically that the older statement is incorrect. However this may be, the juxtaposition of these two statements cannot be regarded as other than a proof of contradiction in the evidence of this witness; it constitutes a strong indication of unreliability so far as his observations of faint planetary markings are concerned."

EXPORTS OF COTTON

Value of Cotton Exported From July 1, 1907, to March 21, 1908.

Since July 1 there have been exported 6,382,000 bales of cotton, or 56.6 per cent of the crop estimated as ginned to March 1, 1908. It is estimated that during the first three weeks of March 361,000 bales have been added to the exports. This shows rapid falling off compared with the records by months in preceding years. The tables follow herewith for four years, beginning with July, give the monthly record of export movement, in bales:

	1904-05	1905-06
July	99,457	320,851
August	109,832	322,761
September	7,702	603,525
October	1,201,440	889,305
November	1,181,800	908,939
December	1,190,993	1,094,503
January	812,149	647,821
February	503,030	512,827
March (3 wks)	659,980	478,892
April	595,064	550,461
May	632,713	295,422
June	533,573	325,845
Total 12 mo.	8,333,793	7,041,152

	1906-07	1907-08
July	176,433	84,674
August	180,061	66,779
September	592,181	379,936
October	1,176,727	969,630
November	1,266,069	1,318,888
December	1,328,727	1,309,106
January	1,270,468	1,268,080
February	863,634	737,605
March (3 wks.)	769,140	316,000
April	639,227	....
June	182,289	....
June	182289	....
Total 12 mo.	8,632,829	6,381,698

From the above figures it is clear that the months during which heaviest exports occurred in 1907-08 compare favorably with the earlier years. The earliest months of the fiscal year were exceptionally light, and the prospect is for a rather light movement during the concluding months of the year beginning with April and ending with June. The value of this cotton at the average export value of 11.6 cents a pound approximates $378,000,000.
