JIM BARNES' PURSE

It was a thirty-six hole match, medal play, with a first prize of $100, a second prize of $50 and $25 for the third, with a special $25 for the best eighteen holes. The amateurs were to get silver trophies instead, had there been any need of them.

The first round found Jim Barnes, Tom Kerrigan and Gil Nichols all tied with the best score of seventy-one, with Michael Brady next in 73—a pace too fast for the amateurs this day, although Carter has often shown that he can do it, even better than this. Alex Ross, Herbert Lagerblade of Pinehurst and W. E. Reid the English professional, were all in line with seventy-five, and it was still anybody's match, with the wise ones still backing Nichols.

The second round was a triumph for Clarence Hackney, who made the low score of the day, a clean seventy, the equal of any ever made in a tournament on the course, once equalled by Alex Ross last year.

A COUNTRY NEIGHBOR

But Jim Barnes bore off the palm, and the big money with a gross score of 144 for the thirty-six holes, making the last eighteen in 73. Tom Kerrigan was within a stroke of him in seventy-four, he and Hackney dividing second honors with 145 apiece.

Michael Brady of the Oakley Club and Alex Ross squeezed in only two strokes behind the winners in 146, exactly the score with which the latter took the prize in this same contest last year from Ouimet, king of golfers.

The summary shows each round and the total scores:
