Bell Anniversary

Mrs. Bell's response varied slightly: "I think our happiest days were when we had all of our children with us."

Theirs has been a simple life; daily she will be found cooking and careing for their home; and he may be seen [illegible] fishing, listening to the radio or studying astronomy.

One can truthful judge the John A. Bells and agree with the sentiment written long ago by Frederic Amiel—

"To know how to grow old is the master work of wisdom, and one of the most difficult chapters in the great art of living."

This they are doing!
