FAITH IS THE SURE PROOF

The Evidence of Things Hoped For

DR. CHADWICK'S LESSON

Faith is Man's Sixth Sense, It Cannot Be Defined—Exercise of This Sense is the Assurance of Things We Hope for and the Proof of Things Not Seen.

The bible study and inspirational services being conducted here by Dr. Chadwick will end next Thursday. The meetings have been steadily increasing in power and interest each day and the discourse this morning on "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" might have been regarded almost as the grand climax. Tonight Dr. Chadwick preaches in the Baptist Tabernacle.

"Faith" was the subject chosen this morning by Dr. Chadwick and his text was Hebrews, 11 chapter, 1 verse.

Faith was the foundation for the Christian and the Bible is the handmaid of faith. The Christian life begins in faith, continues in faith, is sustained by faith and has its glorious end in faith. Yet nowhere in the Bible is faith defined. The book seems indeed to avoid a definition of faith. The reason for this is that faith is a faculty of man, it might be termed man's sixth sense. Like sight, you may define its operation but not the sense itself.

Nothing is accomplished without faith. No one in the congregation came to this service except upon faith that the preacher would be here. Not a railroad trip is taken except upon faith in the engineer and the conductor. The fact that you breakfasted shows your faith in the cook. All that is asked, said the preacher, is that man will take into the spiritual realm the same faith he uses in the natural and material. Faith is simply the operation of that faculty you exercise in the every day affairs of life.

There is a great difference between opinions, they may be right or may be wrong, and convictions. The first are things you care to argue about, the second are things you build upon. You cannot define any of man's senses but you may describe or illustrate the operation of the senses. The same is true of faith. The Bible says "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." This is understood by few but the revised version makes this plainer; it reads "Faith is the assurance of things hoped for and the proving (or the conviction) of things not seen."

Dr. Chadwick then entered into an explanation of this passage. The word "substance" is most difficult to understand. Faith gives shape, form, reality, substance, certainty to things for which we hope. It puts to the proof, as by process, the things not seen. By faith you gain reality, substance, proof, of the things hoped for by you, so the minister repeated with emphasis. By faith the Christian sees in the distance the promises of God and, being persuaded by faith of the reality of the promises, embraces in the heart these promises and confesses before men these things for which he hoped. You hope for something, you are persuaded of its reality, then you go forth confessing that certainty before men. That is the process.

Dr. Chadwick illustrated faith by the example of money. You say you have a silver dollar, you have not but you have what represents the credit of the government for that sum. You have a check for $1,000, and you say I have a $1,000 because by faith in the signer of the check you believe that his check is as good as the money. God gives you his check and as surely as you exercise faith you will have that check cashed.

Faith is a process of putting to the proof; it is not accepting anything upon the assurance or orders of another. Faith must rest upon this experience, it must be put to the test for it is the proving. The man is yet to be found who called upon the name of the Lord and the Lord did not save him. But he must exercise the faith he must call.

The greatest libel on religion was uttered by Huxley when he said "Science believes in justification by verification while religion believes in justification by faith." This is not true. Faith is the surest verification, but you must exercise this faith, which is the proving of the things hoped for.

A dead faith is no faith. The working of faith is the saving power. When Christ was asked "what is the work of God?" the answer was "This is the work of God that ye believe." If your faith is not a working faith then it is useless. There may be said to be three stages or kinds of faith:

Faith which receives.
Faith which reckons.
Faith which risks.

The first is a pure acceptance of Christ, it saves the soul.

The second is the faith which sanctifies, which deadens unto sin and makes alive to God and righteousness.

The last is the triumphant faith, the faith which risks. This was illustrated by many striking examples from the old testament of the exercise of faith; Elijah on Mount Carmel, Joshua before the walls of Jericho. Dr. Chadwick proceed to believe that in this day faith worked miracles as marvelous as miracles. He told of an instance where there were no provisions in an orphanage for breakfast next day, when two men in the institution knelt and prayed the Lord to send food. That night at 10 o'clock it came into the heart of a Christian man to send food and at 6 o'clock next morning the food necessary for 2,000 children arrived. Perhaps some one will say "I have had no such manifestation." No, and you have not fed a 2,000 orphans on your hands and appealed to God to provide for them.

Dr. Chadwick's sermon was one of the workings of faith.

By faith we understand; God is the author and creator.

By faith we come to know; know the things that are hoped for, that cannot be explained to others. The most precious things that we do know in this life are known by faith. You tell an unsaved man that you know that you have been redeemed by Jesus. He laughs and says what is that to me? Nothing, for he can only come to the blessed knowledge of God by exercising this faith.

By faith we worship; our offering to God is acceptable because of the faith behind it.

By faith we receive the witness of God; Enoch by faith walked with God, an inward witness and an outward walk according to the inward witness. A man has no more faith in an article than he is willing to take risk in it.

By faith we wait for the fulfillment. Abraham, the father of the faithful, was given as an example. There in conclusion Dr. Chadwick gave a strong lesson of the workings of faith in prophets in the old testament.

ties were in control of a majority of the reputable commercial concerns of Salt Lake City.

On cross-examination Mr. Carlisle, counsel for the protestants, developed that in the list of business houses submitted, sugar, salt, smelting, mining and electric light interests were omitted and that many of these are controlled by Mormons, though the witness thought the majority of stock was controlled by gentiles.

Under examination by Senator Dubois the witness admitted that he had a strong suspicion that the sugar trust controls the sugar factories of Utah and Idaho. He did not believe, however, that Mormons owned the great part of the non trust stock.

Mrs. Beavis had for a number of years been a true and faithful member of the Baptist church here. She leaves a number of relatives and friends here and a daughter in Edgecombe.

The rain and sleet here for three days have greatly hindered field and garden work. It is commonly reported that very little plowing has been done on the farms, though considerable work has been done in composting and such preparation for the crop.

Dear Sirs: I was laid up last November with Rheumatism in my feet and ankles, but after taking four bottles of Rheumacide I have not been bothered since. I tried every one kind of liniment and was under two doctors, and all I tried had no permanent cure but Rheumacide. Now, I am pleased to say, it has not been necessary for me to take any medicine for Rheumatism since February last. Everybody that I recommended it to has had the same result.
